Actor Keith Sales returns to Heppner for performance

Actor and scholar, Keith Sales, will be in Heppner on Sunday, February 26, to present another Oregon Chautauqua program. This time the theme is the complex of legends surrounding the Grail. Sales draws on research in fields as diverse as history, Anthropology, literature, folklore and the visual arts to tease out the story of an object that has held human fascination for thousands of years. He begins with myths that date back to the Iron Age and traces the tale through the Arthurian legends to the present. Along the way he touches on Christian faith, the poetry of Alfred, Lord Tennyson, and the psychology of Carl Jung. It is a story full of romantic idealism and dedication to a quest that seems more important than life itself.

Finally Sales points out the relevance of these ancient strands of myth for life in the last years of the 20th century.

Keith Sales is involved in the theater in Portland. He has performed and directed many well received productions for the stage, television and radio. In addition he finds time to research and speak on literary topics for the Oregon Humanities Council. Some in Heppner will remember his talk in 1993 on Irish poet, William Butler Yeats.

The 2 p.m. talk at the Morrow County Museum is sponsored by Oregon Trail Library and is made possible by a grant from the Oregon Humanities Council, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Admission is free of charge, and the public is welcome.

Soroptimist award YCA awards

Jessica Stefani (l) and Bridget McElligott honored at Soroptimist

Bridget McElligott and Jessica Stefani, both Ione, have been selected as local recipients of the Soroptimist International Youth Citizenship Awards.

First place award winner Bridget McElligott "has displayed strong citizenship responsibilities" in maintaining the household since the loss of her mother, said a Soroptimist spokesperson. She has made the trip to Portland several times to help feed the homeless with her youth group and has helped with the St. Jude Bike-a-thon and Cycle Oregon.

McElligott has been an active 4-H member for nine years and led a first year cooking club. She has been active in school activities and is currently senior class president. Her plans are to get a degree in speech therapy and work with young children in a school setting.

Second place winner Jessica Stefani is also a member of the Ione Youth group and has been active in helping to feed the homeless in Portland. She says she feels that it is important to become involved with any activity that strives to better the community.

Stefani is a member of National Honor Society and International Club, which is planning a European trip this spring. She has been active in tennis, volleyball and basketball and is editor of the school yearbook this year. She has trained as an OSSOM (Oregon School Safety on the Move) counselor, to teach about self esteem and drug awareness. She plans to attend the University of Oregon, majoring in magazine journalism with hopes of becoming a writer for a high-profile magazine.

Nordic Ski Club season underway

The Arbuckle Nordic Ski Club postponed the start of the ANC-BMCC cross country ski classes for one week. The classes are set for Saturdays, Feb. 18, 25 and March 4. Members will meet at 9 a.m. at the west parking lot of Heppner High School to pool rides and head for the mountains, now covered with fresh snow. All ANC club members are encouraged to go on the ski instruction outings to help teach the basic skills of nordic skiing to the beginners and join in the fun.

The orientation meeting for the ski classes went very well with a total of 23 registered, according to president John Edmundson. Elwood Stout, An-job" of teaching the basics of food, clothing, survival, route

Former resident featured in journal

Dr. David Hall, agricultural science and technology instructor at Crook County High School was recently featured in the National Association of Colleges and Teachers of Agriculture Journal. He is the son of Gene and Harriet Hall, Heppner.

The article gave favorable review to a video tape he co-developed while on the agricultural education faculty at The Pennsylvania State University. The tape, titled "From Farm to Food", was developed along with an instructional packet of activities and projects to be incorporated into lessons designed to study food and where it comes from. The package focuses on the top contributions of food made by Pennsylvania agriculture. The program was designed specifically for elementary students but may serve older clientele as well.

One of the other developers in the project was Hall's oldest daughter Jodi Brown, who is also in agricultural education.

Tree pruning clinic slated

Healthy trees contribute greatly to the quality of life in eastern Oregon, says Carol Michael-Bennett, Morrow County Extension agent. If trees are taken for granted, they may receive too little care or are damaged by inappropriate practices.

Two basic tree pruning workshop for homeowners will be conducted in Morrow County in February. The workshops will be conducted by the Oregon Department of Forestry, in cooperation with the Morrow County Extension Service, and the cities of Boardman and Irrigon.

The first clinic will be offered in Irrigon, February 22, at 2 p.m. The location will be the training room of the Irrigon Fire Hall, which is at the intersection of Northeast 7th and north Main, across from the Irrigon City Park.

The Boardman clinic will be held February 23, and begin at 2:30 p.m. at the Oregon Trail Library, 201 1st NW, Boardman (old US Bank Building).

The Oregon Department of Forestry will begin both programs with an audio-visual presentation, then take participants to city property for a "hands-on" pruning experience. Participants should be prepared with appropriate outdoor clothing.

There is no cost to attend this free educational program.

Participants will learn: proper tree care; the dangers of topping trees; how to have the best looking trees in the neighborhood, and correct pruning techniques. A similar program is scheduled in Heppner March 23, at a location and time to be determined. For information about the Basic Tree Pruning for Homeowners in these communities, contact the Morrow County Extension Service, 1 800 342-3664.
