

WWII Smithsonian exhibition to go on display in Heppner

The Morrow County Museum has been chosen by the Oregon Council for the Humanities as one of only five museums in Oregon to host a new Smithsonian Institution traveling exhibition, "Produce for Victory: Posters on the American Home Front, 1941-1945."

The exhibition, which features the vibrant posters which helped mobilize America to "produce for victory" during World War II, will be on view beginning May 13, and continuing through July 12.

According to a news release, the 25 posters represented in "Produce for Victory" were among the hundreds which proliferated in American factories, lunchrooms, offices and grocery store windows during the 1940s. These images encouraged state-side Americans to consider themselves production soldiers in the war effort, working to achieve victory in tandem with the Armed Forces. As one series of posters stated, "This is your America... Keep it Free!". Many of the posters proposed an idealized post-war America, where everyone would own a home, buy goods, and raise families in safe, secure neighborhoods—an image that is still potent today.

At the Morrow County Museum, the exhibition will be complimented by a diverse roster of presentations designed to give audiences the opportunity to learn about and discuss various aspects of life on the home front, particularly as it was experienced in Oregon. Planned programs include "The Tuskegee Airmen and the Fight for Racial Equality During the War," to be held

May 18; "The USO Tour of 1943," a musical revue, May 21; "Art on Alert: The Poster in World War II," June 1; "1942-Oregon's Most Exciting Year," June 15; "Women's Lives on the Homefront," June 22; and "Fighters on the Farm Front: Oregon's Contribution to the War Effort," June 29. All programs will be Thursday at 7 p.m. at the museum, except "The USO Tour of 1943," which will be at the Heppner Middle School gym on Sunday at 2 p.m.

"Fighters on the Farm Front: Oregon's Emergency Farm Labor Service 1943-47," a photographic exhibition from the Oregon State University archives detailing our state's agricultural efforts during the war, will also be on display at the museum at the same time as "Produce for Victory."

"We are very pleased to be able to bring 'Produce for Victory' to our area," said museum director Marsha Sweek. "This exciting Smithsonian exhibit is an appropriate centerpiece for the nation's commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the end of WWII. 'Fighters on the Farm Front' provides a uniquely Oregon perspective on the same period and features several photographs from projects in Umatilla County."

"Produce for Victory" was organized by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Services, the National Museum of American History and the Oregon Council for the Humanities. It has been supported by funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Smithsonian Special Exhibition Fund and the Rockefeller Foundation. Media sponsorship of the exhibit in Oregon is provided by Oregon Public Broadcasting.

Program helps build kids confidence

A free program at the Oregon Trail Library in Boardman on Tuesday, May 16 at 6 p.m., will help parents learn practical ways to direct attention to positive behavior, encourage good ideas and let children know they are special, says Carol Michael-Bennett, Morrow County Extension agent for Oregon State University.

The program, "Building Self

The Morrow County Museum is open 1 to 5 p.m., Saturday through Wednesday and is closed Thursdays and Fridays. For more information about the exhibits, or to arrange for special times for group visits, call 676-5524 during open hours.

Confidence' will be taught by Michael-Bennett, and is especially helpful for parents of two to five year olds. There is no cost to attend and registration is not necessary. The library is located at 203 NW 1st Street (the old U.S. Bank building).

For more information, call the Morrow County Extension Office at 676-9642, or 1 800 342-3664.

Good turnout for bike-a-thon

Forty-nine participants made the annual Lone St. Jude Bike-a-thon, held Sunday, April 30, a success this year, said coordinators Janet Thompson and Anne Morter. Even the weather cooperated with balmy temperatures, mostly sunny skies and light breezes. Although the pledges have not been turned in yet, organizers suspect a good amount was raised for the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, TN.

Thirty-five riders pedaled the 22 miles from Lone to Ruggs, with Colin McElligott, Ione, and Dr. Jeanne Berretta, Heppner, leading the way. They finished the course in one hour and 27 minutes. Abby Key, 6, earned the distinction of being the youngest rider to make the long haul, pedalling in with her mother, Shelly, and several friends.

Fourteen people toured the one mile route in the lone city limits. Modes of transportation varied more on this course, with Charissa Gates completing several circuits on roller blades, and Stephanie Cutsforth and Clayton and Beth Morter getting around on all-terrain tricycles. Leaders on the town route were Barbara Collin, Alan Rietmann, Tyler Raible, and Kim Morris, all with 12 or more laps.

Medical college lists honor roll

Scott Richards, Heppner, was named to the dean's list for the School of Health Sciences and Humanities of Medical College of Pennsylvania and Hahnemann University (MCPHU), announced Willard P. Green, Ph.D., dean of the school.

Richards was enrolled in the physician's assistant's program of the school and was one of the many students selected for the dean's list after the summer

The riders, helpers, and support people were all treated to cold drinks, ice cream cones and cookies upon their arrival at the finish line in lone.

The deadline for turning in pledges and donations is May 15. Funds should be turned in with pledge sheets in an envelope to the Bank of Eastern Oregon in lone, or to Morrow County Title and Abstract or Judy Davis at Pioneer Memorial Hospital, Heppner. Riders should include their T-shirt size circled on their pledge sheet. A list of bike-a-thon participants will be posted soon in lone and Heppner. Participants are urged to turn in money on time so that the T-shirts can be ordered.

Funds raised from this event and others like it benefit the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, which is a leading children's cancer research facility and is funded mainly by donations from the public. St. Jude has one of the lowest overhead of any of the major health charities, with 86 percent of every dollar raised going to current and future needs of the hospital, said organizers.

Thompson and Morter were pleased with the day. "The turnout was great and the weather cooperated wonderfully. We expect a good return to St. Jude and that is what it is all about," said Morter.

1994 semester. "Academic excellence is a goal that Richards and others at MCPHU have seized for themselves," said Dr. Green. "This pursuit reflects a commitment to purpose, which in the future, will be parlayed into serving others with dedication and hard work. MCPHU is proud to honor this commitment and recognize that these students will be leaders in the world of health care tomorrow."

Drama club presents two-act comedy

Drama students run through dress rehearsal for play

"Lagooned" a comedy by Tim Kelly, will be performed this Thursday, May 4, at 7 p.m. and Friday, May 5, at 6 p.m. at the Heppner High School cafeteria.

Admission is $1 for students and $2 for adults.

According to a press release, the play, set on a tropical island, is "equal parts of 'Fantasy Island', 'Treasure Island' and 'Gilligan's Island'."

"Those wild characters from Tim Kelly's ever popular play, 'Don't Rock the Boat', do their best to survive on a weird atoll in the South Pacific, the home of cannibals, jungle drums and nasty wildlife-including a gorilla," said the release.

"They don't realize the island is actually part of Fantasy Tours, an organization that stages shipwrecks for clients willing to pay the price. The phony natives think the ship's loonies are customers and the loonies think the natives are genuine. Naturally when the belching volcano demands a bride, the hilarity explodes. Oh yeah, the U.S. Navy has mistakenly designated the island for target practice."

The comedy has a cast of 10 men and 19 women. Cast members include: Tracy Blodgett, witch doctor; Brian Koffler, Hula, servant of the princess; Rondi Robinson, jungle princess; Sherry Sieler, female sailor; Jon Hanna, confused naval officer; Brandi Marshall, cruise director; Cimmie Huth, Mandi Gutierrez and Jaylene Papineau, young show business hopefuls; John Qualls, cruise ship captain; Patty Anderson, society matron; Robbie Schultz, crew member; Beth Cookston, beautiful film star; Katie Kenny, her secretary; Annie Hiesler and Katie Nichols, little old lady cruise passengers; Jessica Van Winkle, jogger; Phillip SpicerKuhn, ship's officer; Ethan Burnside, gorilla; Dani Hill, nurse Jane; Angela DeBo, passenger; Bryce Tucker, island hermit; Chad Skroch, pirate leader; Josh Coiner and Chris Dickenson, pirates; Kristina Grant, aviatrix; Dodie Givens, mayor and tour manager; and Rebecca Ward, travel agent.

Director is Bryce Tucker. Ethan Burnside is lighting and sound technician and Tucker and Travis Wilhelm are in charge of set design. The stage crew includes Wilhelm, Blodgett, Nichols, Kenny, Stacy Lauritsen, David Gray and Grant. Nancy Swarat is faculty advisor.

The play is published by Eldridge Publishing Company.

Dr. Jeanne Berretta speaks to fifth graders on tobacco use

Dr. Jeanne Berretta spoke to fifth graders at Heppner Elementary School as part of the Oregon Academy of Family Physicians (OAFP) 1995 Tar Wars Program.

Tar Wars is an in-school lesson presented by volunteer family physicians to the fifth grade classes in their communities on the image of tobacco use, refusal skills and tobacco advertising.

After the presentation, each student was encouraged to draw a poster emphasizing the positive aspects of a tobacco-free lifestyle. The posters will be judged at the OAFP Scientific Assembly in May, with the winner and his or her parents receiving a trip to Denver and a chance to participate in the national contest. At the national contest, the top 10 posters will be chosen and the first place winner will receive a trip for four to Disney World. The OAFP is the largest medical specialty society in the state.

Kathryn Healy joins Angus Assoc.

Kathryn Healy, Heppner, is a new member of the American Angus Association, reports Dick Spader, executive vice president of the national organization headquartered in St. Joseph, MO.

The American Angus Association, with over 27,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry association in the world, according to an association news release. Its computerized records include detailed information on over 12 million registered Angus.

The association records ancestral information and keeps records of production on individual animals for its members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best animals in their herds to produce high quality, efficient breeding cattle which are then recorded with the association. Most of these registered Angus are used by U.S. farmers and ranchers who raise high quality beef for U.S. consumption, said the release.
