

WWI program at museum

"1942-Oregon's Most Exciting Year," is the topic of a program to be presented by Tom Edwards, professor of history at Whitman College, at the Morrow County Museum on Thursday, June 15, at 7 p.m.

Dr. Edwards' talk will concentrate on the regional changes the Northwest experienced during 1942 following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. The state of Oregon was initially without an adequate defense force, thus volunteers formed guerilla companies and the state guard. In this first year of war, Oregon citizens of Japanese descent were removed to internment camps, defense industries as well as traditional industries boomed, school children practiced fire drills and everyone had to adapt to shortages and automobile restrictions.

Dr. Edwards' appearance is the fourth in a series of programs being held in conjunction with "Produce for Victory, Posters on the American Home Front 1941-1945," a Smithsonian exhibit, and "Fighters on the Farm Front," an OSU exhibit, which are on display at the Morrow County Museum through July 12. The Morrow County Museum is open 1-5 p.m. Saturday through Wednesday. Admission to the museum and to this series of speakers is free.

"1942-Oregon's Most Exciting Year," is presented in part by a grant from The Oregon Council for the Humanities, an affiliate of the National Endowment for Humanities.

Registrations due June 9 for 4-H camp

June 25-28 is the date, and Cutsforth Park is the place for the annual Morrow, Gilliam, and Wheeler Junior 4-H Camp. All enrolled 4-H members currently in grades 4-6 are eligible to attend. Camp quotas will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis with a registration deadline of June 9. There is a history of camp filling ahead of the deadline date, said Bill Broderick, Extension agent.

This year's theme, "Jungle Fever," has classes and activities including rock painting, weed waltzes, sand candles, tracking, mask making, outdoor cookery, tree planting, biking, campfires and ceremonies.

Broderick is the Camp director with assistance from Elva Madden and Cindy Osterlund, Extension agents for Wheeler and Gilliam counties. High school 4-H'ers from the three counties serve as camp counselors for tent groups of campers. Volunteer staff will include a camp nurse, cook and cook's helpers and class instructors.

To help keep the cost at minimum, many hours of volunteer time are utilized, not only at camp but prior to camp as well, said Broderick. A camp cleanup day will be held June 21 from 9 a.m. until finished. Chores include cleaning the kitchen and dining hall, setting up tents and waterproofing, stacking wood and generally getting the site ready. Volunteers will be welcomed. Those attending should bring a sack lunch.

For additional information or camp registration forms, contact the Morrow County Extension office, 676-9642 or 1 800 342-3664. Extension programs and activities are open to all.

State conservation tour planned at Frederickson's

The 1995 Oregon Wheat Growers League State Conservation Tour will be held on June 6 at the Frederickson family farming operation in Boardman. Vernon and Gary Frederickson will be honored for their achievements in natural resource conservation, which are integral in their farming operation.

The program features a barbecue lunch at noon, hosted by the Oregon Wheat Growers League. Following lunch are remarks from deputy state conservationist Leonard Jordan and Wheat League president Mac Levy, and a tour of the conservation efforts underway on the Frederickson farm. The field day will be held at the Oregon Hay Products facility, just north of the Port of Morrow exit from Interstate 84, one mile east of Boardman. The public is invited to attend.

The Frederickson's operate two separate farms. Frederickson Farms has leased 745 acres of cropland from the United States Fish and Wildlife since 1969. This land is in and around a wildlife refuge, which restricts chemical application and some other farming activities. Portview Ranches, a partnership between Vernon and Gary, has leased 1600 acres from the Port of Morrow since 1985. As part of this lease, the Frederickson's apply effluent from processing plants at the Port of Morrow to fields, which provide soil nutrients and also help control wind erosion.

For additional information, contact Morrow County Extension agent Phil Nesse, 384-2271, or Daren Coppock at the OWGL office, 276-7330.
