Ione Garden Club meets

A video "Ruth Stout's Garden," was shown by Birdine Tullis at the Ione Garden Club meeting at the home of Leila Palmer on Wednesday, Feb. 14.

The video was an interesting account of Mrs. Stout, who is in her 90s. She told of her 35 years of gardening, which was done with "very little work."

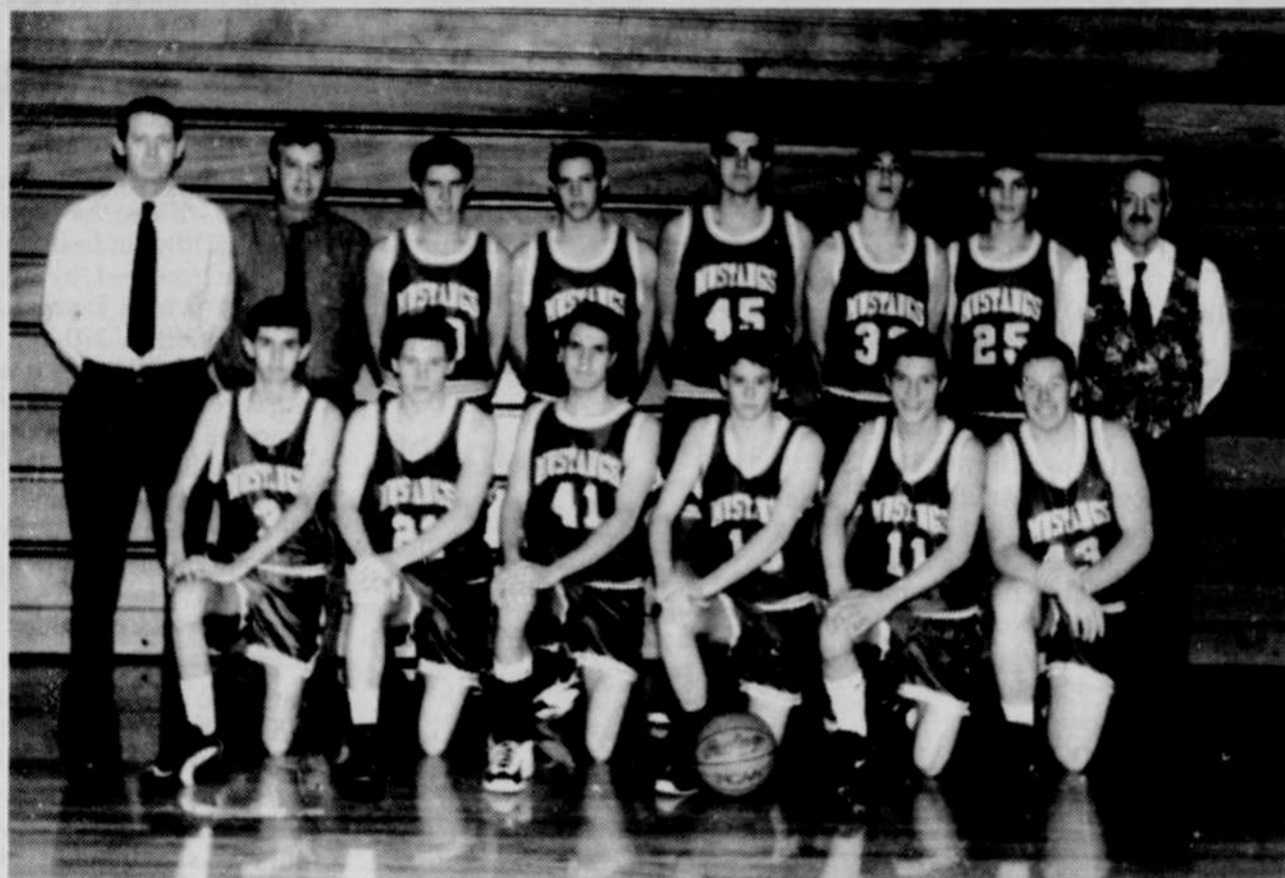

She eliminated all cultivating such as spading and hoeing and merely placed the seeds in the ground and covered them with a mulch of hay. She suggested using a little cotton meal to give seeds a boost when planting, and stated that she raised enough vegetables for her and her husband on a 45 x 50 foot garden plot.

Discussion was held on the plant sale and Oregon Garden Week observance. Julia Hill was a guest for the day.
