

All Saints' Church to celebrate St. Pat's

In honor of St. Patrick's Day, All Saints' Episcopal Church will be celebrating this feast day on Sunday, March 17. Father Al Miller has prepared a sermon on "Saint Patrick Yesterday and His Lesson For Today". The 10:30 a.m. worship service will also include music attributed to the Irish and a celebration of the Holy Eucharist.

At 9:30 a.m., Father Miller will teach a class which will be "a sketch" of the history of Christianity in Ireland from its pagan roots into the development of the Reformation. There is a unique nature to Celtic Christianity and its possible implications for the Church of today, said Father Miller.

All Saints' welcomes all the St. Patrick's celebration visitors to town and assures people they are welcome for church on any Sunday morning, said Father Miller.

Coffee Hour to feature lots of Irish Music

If you're looking for some Irish music, don't miss the annual KUMA coffee hour this Saturday during St. Patrick's Day in Heppner.

The local favorite group Sager and Doherty will once again entertain the crowd with its brand of energetic Irish music.

Also on the show this year will be a barbershop quartet singing several songs.

There will be Irish poems, jokes and stories, and as usual the show will be hosted by Heppner's honorary Irishman Ted Smith.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Hughes, Chamber Manager

Welcome, visitors, one and all. 'Tis sure a wee bit of a rainbow 'twill break through on Friday with a pot o' 68 degree weather for Heppner's annual celebration. A schedule of events and tickets will be available to you at the information booth beside the Post Office.

Friday at 3 p.m., the park playground equipment will be dedicated. Donations were given by many entities, including the St. Patrick's Committee in memory of Josey Sue Taylor. Join us as the equipment is dedicated for children to enjoy for many years to come.

Reminisce during Mrs. O'Leary's stew feed Friday evening. Then, ready or not, visitors and volunteers start the day early with breakfast, followed by music from both Weston-McEwen and the Barbershoppers on Main Street.

The KUMA Coffee Hour will feature the O'Sager-Doherty-Duffy group, as well as some of Heppner's own, singing and playing those old Irish favorites as the Irish family is honored.

After the parade, take a load off at the Senior Center for refreshments and Irish videos; visit the museum to research family history; or take a tour of the courthouse. For those looking for a wee bit o' chance, there's o'ducky adoption, collector buttons and a Ewe Doo Bingo. Sheepdog trials, shopping and motorcross races add to the fun.

For the wee ones, there's a carnival or babysitting by a 4-H group at the Methodist Church while everyone enjoys "The Irish Cowboy" or singing, dancing and sharing blarney around town.

The Chamber of Commerce will be challenging one and all during the O'Shanty Race, organizing the parade and running the St. Patrick's auction on Sunday. Breakfast in the wee hours, or otherwise, followed by church of your choice, then roping, a great lamb barbecue and the annual St. Patrick's Day auction will bring the 14th annual celebration to a close. The barbecue and auction fund the South Morrow youth scholarships and the ongoing celebrations.

Enjoy and "may the luck o' the Irish be with one and all."

Men's breakfast planned March 17
