Lundell family meets for reunion

Over 60 descendants of the Frank and Emma Lundell family met at the lone Legion Hall on Aug. 24 for a reunion. The Lundells were early-day settlers in the Gooseberry area.

Corliss Lundell-Smith arranged the meeting and the luncheon was served by the Legion Auxillary.

Relatives were present from all over Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and California.

Following the doxology, which was sung by all, older members were introduced and pictures were taken of each branch of the Lundell family. Guests were invited to look at old photographs and scrapbooks. They also were asked to look at the Lundell history book, which began with the departure from Sweden to the United States by boat, and continues on to its present generations.

Family members decided to have its next reunion in five years, said a family spokesperson.

Academic skills workshop slated

Barb Orwick, Title I instructor at Heppner Elementary School and Academic Skills Workshop leader, will hold a refresher course for those students who have taken the Academic Skills Workshop earlier.

The three-week refresher course will begin September 17.

Orwick has also planned a five-week Academic Skills Workshop (ASW) to begin around the first of October for students in grades five-12. ASW was developed in Salem by Dr. Ross Quackenbush and Jerry Gastineau, M.S. education, to provide "effective home methods to improve school performance". Orwick has taken the training from Dr. Quackenbush and is a certified ASW leader.

The workshop is designed to help students achieve at their full potential. Parents attend the workshop with their child and learn how they can set up a successful program at home.

For more information or to enroll in either class, call Orwick, 989-8459. The location of the class will be announced at a later date.
