Artist-in-education teaches music at lone Elementary

Lisa Robertson, Artist in Education, recently completed a two week residency at lone Elementary School where she instructed students in kindergarten through sixth grade in music.

Robertson is a professional violinist and an instructor in violin and viola at Eastern Oregon State College at LaGrande. She has taught students in the U. S., Europe, and Korea since 1972.

The culmination of her teaching at lone was a student assembly for the public. Students sang and played instruments they had constructed with material from home. The fifth and sixth grade band also performed under the direction of music instructor, Ron Neighorn, and Robertson.

Students and teachers agreed that Robertson's instruction had enriched their understanding of music.

Robertson held a well attended public concert on her last evening in lone. She was accompanied by Karla Powell, Condon School's music specialist.

The Artist in Residency Program has been a long standing program at lone Elementary School. It is sponsored by the Eastern Oregon Regional Arts Council, Oregon Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts. Experts in dance, drama, pantomime, sculpture, story telling, painting, instrumental and vocal music, weaving and silk screening have all shared their knowledge with students of the school.

Grange holds leadership meetings

Ed Luttrell, Oregon State Grange Master, Jack Fullbright, Eastern Oregon State deputy, and Susan Noah, state Grange lecturer, are visiting throughout the state holding leadership conferences to assist both the state grange and the subordinate and Pomona Granges.

The theme for the 1997 leadership conference is "View from the Past with a Vision to the Future".

On Saturday evening a conference was held at the Willows Grange in lone. Grange can be described as a family fraternal community service organization with its roots in agriculture.

They promote a rural quality of life, and encourage community activities through involvement. They are the voice of the community and county regarding agriculture and education. They support the right to farm, legislation, education, environment, insurance, finances, health, public safety, transportation, utilities and many other things. The GWA, the women's group of the grange, have many projects to help the community, such as a deaf awareness program, junior Granges, legislation and membership. The Grange is a family organization and children are welcome to attend and lecturers are urged to encourage the youth by having them in their programs.

In many localities the Grange is instrumental in the work of the 4-H groups. A lobbyist in the legislature works for the Grange. In the past there have been many important issues that the Grange has taken a stand in and pushed forward, such as rural mail delivery, road construction, utilities, scholarships, many community needs and also on measures presented in the legislature. Resolutions and letters to the state officials are urged.

Some of the issues discussed at present are driver's education in the schools, grandparents rights to secure custody of grandchildren, hearing tests for newborns, prohibiting payments for circulation of petitions, and requiring by two thirds of the counties for an initiative to pass. They favor FFA and oppose a cut in monies for county fairs and many other issues. There are programs at each Grange meeting, some fun and some on the serious issues, which are many times handled through resolutions. The Granges work for the benefit of the communities and invite new members to join them.
