Heppner splits with TigerScots in double

By Lonnie Hill

Heppner split games with Weston McEwen in their final double header Saturday, May 10, in Heppner. Weston had to win at least one game to make it to the district playoffs. Heppner had beaten and lost to every team they had played against this year. To finish off with a winning season, they had to beat Weston at least once and Stanfield the next Tuesday.

Heppner and Weston played good defense the first game and Heppner held Weston until late in the game when Lucas Pupo hit a double to put the go-ahead run on the board. A controversial call by the officials on the last out of the game clinched it for Weston, and the TigerScots won the first game, 2-0.

Heppner played as if possessed in the second game, knowing that it meant winning or losing the season. Heppner hit the ball well in the second game, driving in 12 runs in a hurry. That would be all that they scored—all off of Weston pitcher, Heath Gieger. Heppner's defense held the TigerScots to two runs in the game, which was called in the fifth inning.

Heppner played at Stanfield Tuesday, May 13.

Local kids perform old-time string music

A group of 11 children and teens who play old-time string music presented a short program for those who attended the meeting of the Arts Council on April 17 at Yaw's Restaurant in Heppner. The kids performed classical violin and old-time fiddle music, playing on guitar, mandolin and string bass, as well as fiddles.

Children playing were Alex Carlson, Colin Lewis, Amy Dole, Alexis Harris, Stephanie Nelson, Elizabeth Wehland, and The Pick 'n' Bow Company, a teen group composed of Joe and Sam McCullough, Jacie Penner, Karie Smith and Joseph Wehland. The Pick 'n' Bow Company performs extensively around northeast Oregon, including a weekly performance for the Queen of the West tourists.

Alex Carlson, son of Clint and Sarah Carlson has been taking lessons from Peg Willis in Pendleton. His mother, Sarah Carlson, said she felt that there was enough interest in Morrow County to warrant Willis' coming to Heppner one day a week to teach. The Arts Council was interested in promoting the venture, said Carlson, and invited Willis to bring a group of students to show the type of music they play.

"The kids from Pendleton and all their instruments (including the stand-up bass) stormed the town of Heppner in four cars driven by their teacher and an assortment of long-suffering parents," said Carlson. Before the show, they took their potluck supper to the home of Louie and Betty Carlson and had a picnic on the deck overlooking the "beautiful valley and town". After enjoying some great flute music and a ladies' singing group, the kids presented their program, which was impromptu in its delivery. In a style typical of old-time music jams, the kids sometimes decided one moment which tune to play, and the next moment, played it. They also made spur-of-the-moment decisions about which musical part or which instrument they would play, adding to the "down home" feeling and the impression that they really enjoy their music and are very relaxed with it, said Carlson.

Old-time string music lessons are now available in Heppner on Fridays. The Carlson home on Chase Street is serving as a temporary music studio until the Arts Council is able to provide a place in the fall. On the first day of lessons, May 2, 17 students ranging in age from five to 70 years old attended either a class or a private lesson. Classes will continue year-round.
