

New employees join BEO staff Shannon Applegate to speak at library

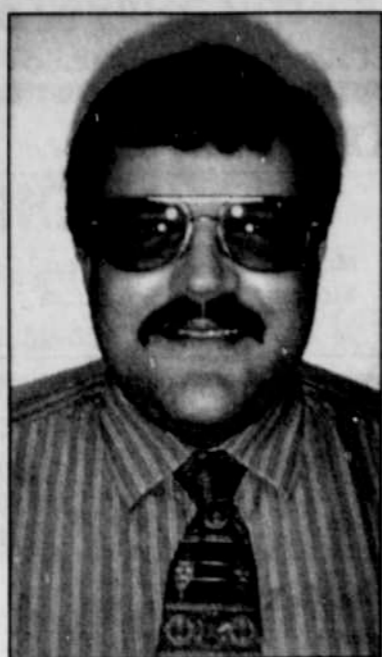

Kevin McCabe

Two new employees have been hired at the Bank of Eastern Oregon, Heppner Branch, effective May 15, bank president George Koffler has announced.

Ione native Kevin McCabe, 36, begins his career at BEO as executive operations assistant, working under Linda LaRue, chief finance officer. He will be responsible for the VISA Merchant Program and a variety of other operational duties.

McCabe, who attended Ione High School and Eastern Oregon State University, started his banking career at First American Banking Company at Pendleton in 1983. He then became a deputy for the Umatilla County Sheriff's Department in Pendleton before resuming his banking career at Inland Empire Bank.

McCabe, his wife, Lori, and their daughter, Megan, hope to relocate to Morrow County as soon as possible.

In his off time, McCabe referees at basketball games and enjoys hunting and fishing.

Darrell Raver, 32, brings an additional facet to the banking business. Although he has had five years experience in banking, he graduated from Montana State with a degree in animal science with an emphasis on farm and ranch management. He also has experience managing a large cow-calf operation.

He was employed by Northwest Bank, an ag and commercial lender at Glasgow, Montana, and Rocky Mountain Bank Corp., Harlem, Montana, where he was a loan officer.

Raver grew up in Madras and also attended Blue Mountain Community College at Pendleton.

Raver and his wife, Dee, have three children, Colter, five, Chance, three, and Justin, six months. They also raise paints and quarterhorses. He says that the kids are looking forward to mutton bustin' at the Morrow County Fair and Oregon Trail Pro Rodeo.

Church to host missionaries

The Rev. G. Randy Robertson and his wife Lynette, missionaries to the Slovak Republic, will pay a visit to the Christian Life Center in Heppner Sunday, June 1.

The Robertsons will share "their burden for the people of central Europe, and specifically, those in the Slovak Republic," said a news release. "It is there the Robertsons will help train pastors, serving as instructors in the theological seminary in Banská Bystrica and also traveling throughout the country encouraging and assisting pastors unable to attend Bible college."

For over 40 years, communism ruled that section of the world and no Bible colleges or seminaries were permitted to exist, said the Robertsons, creating a void of trained pastors. Since the Iron Curtain fell in 1989, however, the doors have been open to spread the gospel freely.

"This is an exciting time in the Slovak Republic," Rev. Robertson said. "There is a great need to train pastors for the many new churches that are being started. God has called us to be part of this training process."

Rev. Robertson pastored in the Oregon District of the Assemblies of God from 1976 to 1994, most recently pastoring in Canby, from 1983-94. Earlier this year, he received his master of divinity degree from Multnomah Biblical Seminary in Portland.

Christian Life Center is located at 535 W. Morgan Street. For more information, contact Pastor Tim Van Cleave at 676-5448.

Shannon Applegate

"Rx for Controversy," a talk by Shannon Applegate exploring the lives and work of Marie Equi and Mary Sawtelle, two early day Oregon physicians, will be presented on Saturday, June 7, at 7 p.m. at the Heppner Library. The public is invited to attend and admission is free.

The program is sponsored by Friends of the Library and is made possible by the Oregon Council for the Humanities, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Dr. Marie Equi (1873 - 1952) and Dr. Mary Sawtelle (1834 - 1893) devoted themselves to such causes as the prevention of child abuse, access to birth control, urban sanitation codes and the right of single women to own land. Ms. Applegate will discuss the lifelong determination of these two women to gain professional and political equity on the western frontier.

Shannon Applegate is the author of "Skookum: An Oregon Pioneer Family's History and Lore" and is co-editor of "Oregon Diaries and Letters".

For more information about the program, contact the Heppner Library, 541-676-9964.

Shannon Applegate has been a writer and historical researcher for more than 20 years and has an intimate knowledge of Oregon's past, its historical collections and archives. Several thousand letters and many diaries formed the basis for the narratives comprising her book.

Applegate is also co-editor of an anthology of Oregon letters and diaries, "Talking on Paper", the final volume in the award winning Oregon Literature series (Oregon State University Press, 1994). She traveled 10,000 miles with a copying machine and miniature office in her van locating many of Oregon's previously unknown and far flung diaries and letters, said a news release.

Applegate has received various literary honors. "Skookum" was an Oregon Book Award finalist in 1989. Earlier recognition came in the form of a national award from the Coordinated Council of Literary Magazines as well as an Individual Artist's Fellowship from the Oregon Arts Commission. Her articles and essays are published in various journals and her work appears in several recent anthologies featuring well known western American authors.

Applegate has been the director of a historical museum, editor of a historical society press and has served on the Oregon Council for the Humanities' publications and editorial advisory boards. She has taught courses in regional history and writing, lectured and conducted workshops in many geographic areas of the United States.

A mother of six children, and direct descendant of the pioneering Applegate family, she lives on the original Donation Land Claim near Yoncalla where she is presently working on her first novel.
