Gardening week planned June 11-13

Heppner Garden Club plans to observe National Gardening Week this year by restoring planters of flowers to the Main Street "mini-park" between the Post Office and the Shoe Box, using a new landscaping pattern.

Club members will also place both fresh and dried floral arrangements in the post office, library and other public spots.

A new feature will be the showing of garden videos and/or live demonstrations at a "gardening" tea at the St. Patrick Senior Center Thursday, June 11, from 1 to 5 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Preschool registration due

Heppner summer preschool registration is due beginning Tuesday, June 9.

Summer preschool will be held three days per week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

It is recommended that three year olds attend on Wednesday, but they may also attend the other days. Four and five year olds may attend all three days if they wish.

The cost is: three days - $60 per month; two days - $40 per month and one day - $20 per month.

The day care will also be available on an hourly basis for $2 per hour.

Heppner Daycare will have a yard sale in June and the day care asks for any donated items to be brought to the daycare.

The day care will also be working the gate for fair and preschool parents are needed to volunteer. Call Merry Brannon at 676-5429 to volunteer or for more information.

Church members set up country store

Saturday, May 31, went without a hitch. About 40 church members and members of the community helped out.

Trucks hauled boxes of auction merchandise from the auction warehouse to the Ione Grange Hall, where people sorted through the boxes and started setting things up.

"I can't believe all the stuff. It seems like there's more every year. I can't believe people have so many treasures," commented Cathy Halvorsen.

Everyone took a break for a barbecue lunch cooked by Chuck Nelson. Afterwards, it was back to work.

"Today was very successful. We had a good work crew and the rain stopped for us," said Debbie Morgan.

The auction has become tradition for most people.

"It's been something our families have been enjoying for years. I remember when my kids were little, they would come and spend all their money at the country store. Now my grandkids are doing the same thing," said Betty Rietmann.

"Every year I clean out my junk so I can buy more. It's great," commented Lea Mathieu.

A lot of hard work is also put into the auction every year. "It's one of those things that builds its own momentum, and it's really fun to be involved in," said Alice Harper.

"It's a great cooperative effort by the church members that begins the Saturday before, and ends with the auction. It's really a great event," added Rich Harper.

The church is hopeful that this year's auction will be successful and that plans for repairing or replacing the church can be made.
