You know who you are

To the Editor: I am writing to the person who ran into my car on Main Street in lone at the Fourth of July celebration Sunday night. I believe you know who you are since my front bumper and front quarter panel were torn off.
I would like you to know that your recklessness and obvious disregard for other's property is going to cost me $500 to pay the insurance deductible to get my car fixed. I also want you to know how unfair it is for me to have to pay for your carelessness.

I hope you feel ashamed.

Shocked and saddened by HES windows

To the Editor:
I heard about the boarding up of the windows at Heppner Elementary so as an "alumni," I decided to drive by and see this for myself. I was shocked, saddened and sick. I am completely amazed that anyone would be O.K. with this.
I find it hard to believe that in this day and age that almost everyone would not be aware of all the studies showing the direct link of sunlight to serotonin and its effect on people mentally and physically. Even if you were unaware of the medical and physiological research showing overwhelmingly the effects of "natural light" on human beings, I would think common sense would kick in. Besides the fact that it looks just plain ugly and why would we want our children to have to look at that every day is the fact that it's been shown over and over that people of all ages are affected by "daylight" in areas such as depression, productivity, sickness and healing. Hospitals, schools and businesses have put these studies into effect all over the world.

I urge everyone, especially parents, to give this a lot of thought and do your own research. Demand the school board and the administrator to make our schools more energy efficient without affecting our children's learning environment in such a negative way. I question why no one on the school board knew about such a drastic measure. Why weren't energy efficient windows with appropriate blinds discussed?
I hope everyone who shares these concerns will contact school board members or attend the advisory board meeting scheduled July 8 at 7 p.m. at the Heppner High School library.

Volunteer assist in trail project

To the Editor:
Recently several community volunteers completed the preparation and painting of the Switchback (Zig-Zag) Trail observation deck and rest bench next to the Willow Creek Dam.
The people who helped with the project included Elliott Strouse, George Jefferies, Jim and Cam Wishart, Earl and Peggy Fishburn and Jerry Breazeale. The city of Heppner provided the paint for the project.

The next trail improvement project will involve upgrading the trail tread. Anyone interested in helping with this project should contact City Hall to indicate their interest.

Casey Ingraham receives award

To the Editor: I am enclosing a copy of an article from the June 24 edition of the Cheney (WA.) Free Press relating to the Don Lott Memorial Golf Tournament. You may wish to publish it.
Donnie was a good friend.
I coached Little League several years in Davenport, WA., and Heppner. Don was such a good pull hitter that we used the Don Lott shift. I had never used it on any other hitter against my team.

It has since become known as the Ken Griffey shift.
He was an avid golfer and one of the fun things he and I used to do before golfing matches was to put around the holes on the practice green for 5¢ a hole.
When I moved to Cheney and he attended Eastern Washington University, our friendship continued.
He is missed, but not forgotten.

Casey Ingraham, who will be a senior at Heppner High School this fall, has been selected as one of the top 20 academic female athletes in Oregon.
Dale Conklin, HHS athletic director, said that the award has been presented for several years, but this is the first time an athlete from HHS has been selected.

Conklin, who nominated Casey, said the selection criteria is based on academics, leadership and athletic ability.
The award is sponsored by Willie Davenport, "a great Olympic athlete," says Conklin.
The award is unique in that it's restricted to females and award winners are named at the end of their junior rather than senior year so that they have time to plan for college, says Conklin.
Casey will receive a $1,000 scholarship and will be presented her award at a banquet at the Nike Complex in Beaverton with many notable Olympic athletes in attendance.

I would like to thank everyone who gave me the support I needed during this difficult time. Thank you, Brian Burnside, Ryan Pettyjohn, Elliott Strouse, Scott Strouse, Andy Sykes and Kenny Turner for being honorary pallbearers. Thank you to the Strouse family for all your support. Thank you, Alea, for being with me everyday. You are a great friend.
Thank you, Celita and Scott, for being great listeners. You know how I babble. Thank you, Heather Davis, for being there; I love you!
Liz and Tori, I feel for you so much. You are truly great friends.
Thank you, Rosie, for being with me; watch out for that bird! Thank you, Robin Baker, for writing that letter to the editor; you spoke the truth. Lastly, I would like to say something to Caleb.

Caleb, I want you to know that I do not hate you. I do forgive you and I know that if you could take it back, you would. We have talked so many times before; our friendship has grown so close and it is sad that we became so close this way. But we are close; please remember that and write me.
Love you.
If I forgot anyone, I am sorry and I thank you.
Thank you everyone for your support.
I love you all.
