

Theresa Hams wins weight lifting world title

The citizens of the city of Lone can puff out their chests a little bit more now. The town is now the home of an Oregon State, national and world champion weight lifter.

In only her second competition, Theresa Hams beat out the competition at the Weight Association Bench Dead Lift Twinlabs World Championship in Portland Nov. 5-6-7th, lifting 275 pounds in her last of four lifts. Her closest competitor lifted 264 pounds, but failed at 281.

Hams, 39, captured the sub-master division of the 34-39 age group in the under 123 pounds class.

"It was cool to have competition," says Hams. "I have a really good coach (Ross Phillips, Hermiston). He kept me calm and I didn't shake on any of my lifts. I could have pulled 292. None of my lifts were tough."

Over 500 people turned out for the event, including those from numerous states, Canada, New Zealand, Brazil, Guatemala, Finland, India and Brazil.

Hams, who lives in Lone with her husband and two children, qualified for the world championship meet in May in the Tri-Cities. She has only been lifting for 11 months.

Hams plans to compete again in Tri-Cities again this spring. By then she hopes to be lifting 303. By the next world championship in Brazil next year she hopes to be up to 386 pounds.

Pins 'n Pots 4-H holds meeting

By Emily Bergstrom

At the meeting of Pins and Pots and Patterns and Pans Friday, Nov. 4, members tie-dyed white T-shirts. They had all different colors.

They also made veggie soup, dill biscuits and drop cookies, and learned to slice, dice, chop, and julienne. Club members are drawing names out of a hat and are going to make one meal for one family that is in the group each month. Brienne Jones got picked for December. The group is going to decorate for the 4-H awards night on Thursday Nov. 11. They learned to read the back of a pattern. They talked about simple projects for sewing.

"Halloween Horror Queen" strikes again! Wow! What a lot of work and dedication that personal time can get involved with the Haunted House and Carnival. Though I only am responsible for the Haunted House, I know the excitement and tears that get pushed aside whenever the Carnival rolls around in October.

This is a special event for our children in our community and surrounding communities. If you've worked on this event, you will understand the meaning of accomplishment when you see the children's faces light up. Whether they have won or lost at a carnival game, they always are a winner and if they enter the Haunted House and are excited, we know we've done our job. If they enter and are scared, we try to see they understand it is only pretend.

People need to come and join in on the fun. Try and see next year if you can put in an hour or two and help out. It really pays off in the end.

Putting together the Haunted House is very time-consuming and I love spending every minute organizing and preparing for this event. This year I thought I was unable to spend much of my time on it, but something altered my state of mind and told me to come up with a ding-dang-doozie. I hope to everyone's satisfaction I either scared the poop out of you or filled your body with total adrenaline.

For decorating and planning, I'd like to give a special thanks to Leah Brosnan, Kaedene Bailey, Darcy Coil, and Russ and Drew Brannon. If it wasn't for you guys, it wouldn't have all come together as fast and as good as it did. Thanks for your devotion to the Haunted House and me.

I had extra people who made a difference in seeing I got home a little earlier. Your help was greatly appreciated. Thanks to Mary and Tony Haguewood, fifth and sixth grade football team, Donna Roy, Janet Wilson, Debbie and Matt Young, Stacey and Jessica Wainwright, Jode and Wacy Coil, Lizzy Rill and the custodians, Kelly Fox, Kathy Cutsforth and Dan Van Liew, who were at our beck and call.

Donations are a big help. I don't like to spend much money on this project because things get destroyed and that's the way it's supposed to look anyway for the Haunted House. If Dick Paris hadn't called me to let me use his werewolf costume, then Ken Bailey would have actually scared you to death by his looks alone. Thanks, Dick, for the costume and all the masks you gave us to use. We really got a kick out of them. Thanks to the following people for their donations that added to our haunting fest: Leah Brosnan, Kaedene Bailey, Lott's Electric, Lee McCarl, Darcy Coil, Kathy Cutsforth, Debbie and Matt Young, Tom and Jane Rawlins, Jerry Hollomon, Joe Kenny, Jean Strange, Rod and Janet Wilson and Mary Haguewood.

Lots of people mentioned the Haunted House was great, plus more. The scene we used were outstanding this year, but they wouldn't have been without these horrific people: Leah Brosnan and Kellie taking tickets; they have much patience. Robin Skaggs and Katie for being our leaders. The entry contained creatures in jars; thanks to the science room. "Silence of the Lambs" with Jay Coil as Hannibal Lector, the flesh-eating human, and Whitney as his victim. Thanks, Jay, for watching the movie. The "Scream" movie was a hit with the guy running around day or night killing people. Thanks to Chip Piper, my heart stopped beating several times. "Nightmare on Elm Street" wouldn't be the same without Jeff Currin. Oh, I mean Freddie Krueger! His victim, was the beautiful Trisha Adams. On the shelf, put to rest was heckling Jessica Wainwright. The mad scientist Amanda Sneddon was busy putting her hands in her patient Tai Sweek and the poor man with his brains pouring out looked like Matt Young. Now, this creature with her head sitting on a shelf wasn't getting the attention she deserved, so the mad scientist called upon Sarah Eckman to help disassemble the patient.

Aliens are among us with Mike Doherty around. Who yet better plays the part in "Texas Chainsaw Massacre" but Tony Clement, and his two screaming victims, Kim Pointer and Allison Sykes? The mountain scenery gave quite a boost for our ferocious werewolf Ken Bailey and his two camping victims, Jode Coil and Kyler Lovgren. "Who wants a piece of candy?" What a horrid face Jake Roy gave at the end. I think he's practicing too much for football. As the ending came and you either fell to your knees or ran out in terror, you were being grabbed back in by "Hand" from Tyler Boyer.

The shakes, the quivers, and all the excitement to go with it will be back again next year. Ready...waiting...for you!

Thanks again,

Merry Brannon
