Orchestra and chorale to present Christmas concert

The Inland Northwest Orchestra and Chorale will present a concert of "Christmas Treasures" in four Eastern Oregon communities during the holiday season. This widely varied program will include selections ranging from baroque to jazz, and from carols to cantatas.

Featured musical offerings will include Leroy Anderson's "Suite of Carols" for string orchestra, a "wonderfully rich" setting of six traditional Christmas carols, and J.S. Bach's "Alleluia! Sing Praise", a sonorous chorale with an "exciting orchestral accompaniment" in the grand baroque style. The Harris Junior Academy Choir will join the Inland Northwest Musicians in the performance of this "Alleluia" for the concert in Pendleton.

The performances are scheduled for: Saturday, Dec. 9, Echo Community Center, Echo, 7 p.m.; Sunday, Dec. 10, Bisnett Building, Pendleton, 3:15 p.m.; Saturday, Dec. 16, Riverfront Center, Boardman, 7 p.m.; Sunday, Dec. 17, Elgin Opera House, Elgin, 3:15 p.m.

Inland Northwest Musicians is comprised of approximately 130 singers and instrumentalists from Eastern Oregon and Southeast Washington. Their 2000-2001 season offers over 20 concerts in 14 Eastern Oregon communities.

Admittance to all concerts is by membership, or tickets may be purchased at the door - adults are $10, and seniors, $5. Students are always admitted free to any concert. Memberships are still available. Call 938-0645 for more information.
