Questions to ask yourself and anyone in your party

Below is a list of questions to ask yourself before you enter the field. Some are good to ask yourself before you even leave the house. If you do not know the answers to these questions: Ask someone who does! Or contact the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife at 1-800-720-6339.

- Do you have your license and tag on your person?
- Do you have a full understanding of the species and bag limit of your hunt?
- Is your map current?
- Are the Hunting Regulations you have current?
- Does the terrain exceed your physical ability to travel safely?
- Are you hunting in the unit your tag is issued for, and during the correct season dates?
- Are you familiar with the unit you are hunting in and its boundaries?
- Is your weapon in good working order and are you confident in your marksmanship abilities to make a clean and humane kill?
- Will you know where others in your party are at all times when in the field?
- Do you have an effective means of communicating with others in your party in case of emergency?

- Do you feel confident enough in your survival abilities to stay overnight in the field in case it becomes necessary?
- Is it fire season in the unit you are hunting?
