Catholic youth return to Burnside to serve the poor

St. William's Catholic Church high school youth spent the Veteran's Day holiday serving the poor who live in the Burnside area of Portland. Seven youth and three adults made the trip, loaded down with clothing, coats and blankets to donate to area residents.

The day began with serving lunch at Blanchet House, where the youth were trained by staff members to fill trays in the kitchen, bus tables or serve food. The meal consisted of chicken with noodles or a bean and meat sauce with rice, fruit salad, green salad, steamed vegetables, a pastry and orange juice or coffee. Kip Krebs and Alan Rietmann, who helped serve the meal, were surprised to learn they had helped feed 205 people in an hour's time. They were impressed with how efficient the meal was managed and how nice everyone was.

The group spent the afternoon at Outreach of Burnside where Beth Morter made and served grilled cheese sandwiches to the Outreach members. Some of the group sorted donated clothing. Others helped move one of the Outreach members out of his single room occupancy hotel so it can be renovated. They packed laundry, food and garbage from the hotel to the Outreach office. Kris Moor, Outreach director, explained the lifestyle of the individual who was being helped. He has a monthly income of around $600. Over half of that pays the rent for his small room. Because he spends so much time in his small room, particularly during bad weather, he has cable, which costs $60 per month. All the major grocery stores have moved from the area so it is very difficult to buy groceries, especially at reasonable prices. He has major medical problems, which require constant trips to the doctor and medications. Fortunately, the Outreach of Burnside office helps him and others like him manage their money and makes sure their needs are met.

It was the second trip of the year for many of St. William's high school group. "They are definitely getting more comfortable with the people," noted trip organizer Jeri McElligott. "There are many veterans living on the streets in Portland and it was a good way for us to help honor them." Youth making the trip to Portland were Dalton Campbell, Kip Krebs, Alan Rietmann, Clay Morter, Tyree Svetich, Beth Morter and Alex Rietmann. Adult leaders were Anne Morter, Deb Campbell, and Jeri McElligott. As a follow-up to the trip, the lone youth chose to sponsor one of the Outreach members for Christmas. They will buy gifts from a wish list and deliver them in time for the annual Christmas party at the Outreach office.

Broderick to retire from OSU Extension office

Bill Broderick, long-time Oregon State University Extension 4-H and livestock agent is retiring on November 30. The Morrow County Livestock Growers and 4-H Leaders Council will host a "get together" in honor of Bill and his work within our community. Please join us for light appetizers, punch and coffee on November 30 from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the fairgrounds in the main pavilion. Anyone wishing to bring a finger food, is welcome to do so.

McElligott a member of The Laramie Project cast

Taylor K. McElligott of Ione was a member of the ensemble cast of St. Lawrence University's recent dramatic production of The Laramie Project. McElligott is a member of the Class of 2009 at St. Lawrence in Canton, NY and a graduate of Ione High School.

In October of 1998, a 21 year old student at the University of Wyoming was kidnapped, severely beaten, and left to die, tied to a fence on the outskirts of Laramie, WY. His name was Matthew Shepard, and he was the victim of this assault because he was gay.

Moises Kaufman and fellow members of the New York-based Tectonic Theater Project made six trips to Laramie over the course of a year and a half in the aftermath of the beating and during the trial of the two young men accused of killing Shepard. They conducted more than 200 interviews with the people of the town, some of whom were directly connected to the case and others who were citizens of Laramie.

The Laramie Project chronicles the life of the town of Laramie in the year after the murder and is one of the most performed plays in America today.

McElligott is a bio-chemistry major at St. Lawrence.

Christmas Art Show and Sale to be held

A Christmas Art Show and Sale will be held on Friday, December 7, from noon to 9 p.m., and Saturday, December 8, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. The show will be held in the Walley Room of the Oxford Suits, 1050 N 1st in Hermiston.

Eleven artists will be displaying their work. There will be paintings by Jan Beitel, Jim Simpson, Jerri Raven, and Paul Jones. Jewelry by Gayle Weatherston, Marian Perdas, and Karen Hutchinson Talaski will be displayed. There will be pottery art by Gwen Hegdal, glasswork by Marian Perdas, metal art by Ted Neth, carved wood art by Paul Jones, woodburned art by Diana Kivett, and carved stonework by Don Boddeker.

Admission for this even is free. Refreshments will be served on both days. A drawing will be held at 9 p.m. on Saturday night for free art piece. You do not have to be present to win.

Happy Thanksgiving from the Heppner G-T

Boardman continues search for new city manager

Boardman City Councilors, at their November 6 meeting, voted to defer consideration of hiring a new city manager for up to nine months. The City has been working with the League of Oregon Cities in the recruitment process which began when former City Manager Rex Mather retired in August. The league helped councilors establish criteria for the position, and after advertising, they were able to provide the council five screened applicants for possible interviews. Councilors voted not to interview at this time, and to consider applicants again in nine months.

In August the City hired local businesswoman Karen Pettigrew to fill in as City Manager Pro Tem for six months. Ms. Pettigrew has agreed to remain for an additional nine months.

In other City news, the Boardman Police Department will be taking applications for a certified police officer. The Interchange Area Management Plan Committee has had their first meeting, and reports they may have a draft plan to present to the council, as early as December.
