Trophy honors light parade stars

Community Bank was the first business to have its name engraved on the Parade of Lights "Shooting Star" trophy. The winning design was the work of Tate Gentry, who won the bank's "create our float" competition. -Photo by Andrea Di Salvo Heppner's Parade of Lights will kick off the local holiday celebration on December 15 at 5:30 p.m. Individuals, school classes and business owners are all invited to add to the glitter and glow that will light up Main Street and delight spectators.

Individuals and school classes can again win prizes for their floats. Last year, the Chamber of Commerce added a trophy to the reasons for business owners to enter parade floats. The "Shooting Star" traveling trophy will again be awarded to the business float voted the best.

Last year, Community Bank won the honor of having its name engraved on the first star added to the trophy; the bank has displayed the trophy in its lobby since last year's event.

The "Blue Mountain Christmas" theme and the detailed decorating plans for the bank's float were Tate Gentry's winning idea, literally. He responded when the bank staff invited entries in a "create our float" competition, and he won the $100 prize for his entry chosen by an independent judge.

A spokesperson for Community Bank reports that the business again plans to hold a "create our float" competition and use the winning design for their float. Also, the staff hopes to see "Community Bank" engraved on the second star to be added to the light parade trophy.

Heppner Chamber of Commerce urges all interested persons to participate in this year's light parade, and hopes that the business-entry "Shooting Star" trophy will be the perfect encouragement for businesses to help make Heppner shine.
