David Sykes of Heppner was honored last Saturday night at the Oregon State 3A basketball tournament in Coos Bay. He was part of the Reed-sport Braves team that won the state championship in 1967.

It was on this same floor at Marshfield High School gym that the Braves claimed the title 45 years ago by beating undefeated and top-ranked Stayton 67-59. The Braves lost only one game that year and were ranked number two in the state going in.

The team was introduced at halftime of the boy's championship game between Dayton and Horizon Christian.

"It was great seeing all the guys again," said Sykes, who was a 6'2", 190-pound junior center on the team.

The players and their wives gathered before and after the game to reminisce and catch up. There was also a special Reed-sport section in the stands, where people who came to the game could sit and visit together.

Irrigon student scholarship finalist

Adriana Sanchez from Irrigon Junior/Senior High School in Irrigon has been selected as a member of the 2012 Class of Coca-Cola Scholars.

As one of 252 high school seniors selected nationwide to receive a scholarship from the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation, Sanchez will begin college next fall at the school of her choice due to the support of Pendleton Bottling Company and The Coca-Cola Company.

On April 12, Sanchez will join other finalists as they travel to Atlanta, GA, the international headquarters of the Coca-Cola Company, to compete for 52 four-year college scholarships of $20,000 and 200 four-year scholarships of $10,000. Over the four-day weekend, the finalists will interview with a national selection committee, tour local landmarks, engage with former Coca-Cola Scholars and participate in a range of activities including a community service project.

The 2012 Class of Coca-Cola Scholars will also be the guests of honor at the annual Scholars Banquet, which will celebrate their great accomplishments. Joining in the celebration will be representatives from the Coca-Cola System, educators, local dignitaries and friends of the Scholars Foundation.

The Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation was created in 1986 to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Coca-Cola and to establish a legacy for the education of tomorrow's leaders through college scholarships. Including the 2012 Class of Scholars, the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation has provided more than 5,000 scholars nationwide with nearly $48 million since the Foundation's inception. The program is open to all high school seniors in the United States. Sanchez was selected as a finalist from more than 84,000 applicants and 2,200 semifinalists.

MARKETING WORKSHOP

The world of wheat production in Oregon includes research, testing, transportation, inspection and more. The workshop included a tour of the Port of Portland container terminal (Terminal 6) and Columbia Grain Terminal (Terminal 5), the largest grain elevator in the state. Panamax-size ships, river barges, rail cars and trucks are off-loaded daily at the terminal, and wheat is exported throughout the world. The Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS) at Terminal 5 was included on the tour, and FGIS employees demonstrated how wheat is inspected prior to export. Also on the tour was Pasco Bakery, a Japanese company where end-use of Oregon-grown SWW was highlighted in the production of frozen bakery, deli and food service products using Northwest ingredients.

A stop at Overseas Merchandise Inspection Co. Ltd. provided insight and information on the inspection and analytical testing of wheat, grains and other food items for major import/export shipments out of the Port of Portland.

Bob Zemetra and Mike Flowers of the OSU Extension Service provided information and education on wheat-variety research and development.

The highlight of the two-day workshop was a ride on one of Shaver Transportation's tugs on the Willamette River and water-level views of wheat being loaded onto a barge. Shaver barges are specially designed to transport grain and bulk commodities such as wheat, barley, soybeans, corn and more on the Columbia and Snake River systems.

Wheat farmers throughout Oregon are encouraged to contact the Wheat Marketing Center or the Oregon Wheat Commission and sign up for a future Grower's Marketing Workshop.
