Rocket club holds successful launch

The South Morrow Rocket Club (SMoRC) said goodbye to the Hardman launch site until fall when it held its last launch of the season there Saturday. SMoRC will be back at the Hardman launch site in October, thanks to the generosity of property owners Bob Stevens and Jerry Gentry.

Dave and Barbara Moser of Pasco, WA showed up at the Hardman site around 9:30 a.m. to help club leader Pat Struthers finish setting up. The Palmer family arrived shortly after, carting the club's brand-new launch pad and eight-foot rail. Jason Palmer, Dave Fowler and the Heppner High School technical department fabricated the new pad—and got it done just in time—while Darrell Smith purchased the rail. BMR also deserves credit for donating "used"

ARTIST IN RESIDENCE

-Continued from PAGE ONE cooking. No one was born knowing how to do it," she said. "You have to get familiar with the ingredients, learn the rules. You start with a recipe and then start making changes to personalize it. It's all very learnable; it's not something only a few can do."

Gage's art reflects her Eastern Oregon roots. She was born in Harney County, south of Burns, and attended Crane High School. The school didn't have an art program, but the football coach taught a half-year art class. Gage remembers when he showed the class a film made by the Hallmark card company. She already liked to draw, but said that was the first time she realized it could be a profession.

"I thought all the great artists were dead and that paintings sold for thousands of dollars," she said. "I had no clue people could draw or paint every day and be paid for it."

She went on to attend the Oregon College of Art, a now-nonexistent art school in Ashland, OR. It was a commercial art school, where Gage learned to create advertisements and other commercial art, and even to write ad copy. It was there that she also was exposed to watercolor painting for the first time. That discovery led her into the world of fine art.

She did student teaching with the college before going to work for an ad agency in Boise. She went from there to Bon Marche, where she was the fashion illustrator for the clothing chain's northwest stores. She quit that job when she married cowboy and buckaroo, Leon. The couple moved to a ranch outside Jordan Valley, where they ranched for 28 years and raised two children. Gage continued to work as an artist, taking freelance illustration jobs at home and continuing to develop a career in fine art.

Leon retired from ranching two years ago and the couple moved off the ranch and into Jordan Valley, where he continues to create his own art, silversmithing bits, spurs, jewelry and other buckaroo gear.

Gage took up teaching, partly because of the freedom retirement gave her but mostly through a natural desire to share what she knew about art.

"I've always taught in one way or another," she said with a chuckle. "That's what I do; gather information and force it on people."

Sewing group gets started for the year

The sewing segment of the Cooks & Notions 4-H club met Friday, April 6, at the Sandford home in lone for their first meeting.

The club consists of Lillian Sandford, president and junior leader; Ivy Sandford, vice president; Shayna Osmin, reporter; Bailee Heard, treasurer; Diana Healy, secretary; and Sylvia Sandford, leader. The members discussed their project selections, differences in materials, sewing notions, tools, machines, making a kit and ironing. Each member was presented with a sewing pincushion, various 4-H items and a cinch bag for their books and sewing items.

The club's next meeting will be May 6 at 1 p.m. at the Sandford home. Members will cut out their fair project and start sewing.

Ecumenical salad supper planned

A much-anticipated annual event, the ecumenical ladies salad supper, is back.

The dinner, hosted this year by the St. Patrick's Altar Society, will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, April 16, in the St. Patrick's Catholic Church parish hall.

This year, the inspirational speaker will talk about marriage; there will also be musical entertainment. The altar society will provide drinks and dessert. As always, everyone is asked to bring a small salad to share.

Everyone is welcome to come and bring a friend.

"It is always a blessing to see women of faith coming together to learn how to be pleasing to God," says one of the event's coordinators, Mary Ann Elguezabal.

DA's Report

-Robert Wade Eastep, 51, was found guilty of possession of methamphetamine, a Class C felony, and was sentenced to 18 months supervised probation, subject to 90 sanction units with 30 jail units. Conditions of probation include substance abuse evaluation and any directed treatment, mental health evaluation and any directed treatment, alcohol evaluation and any directed treatment, and attendance of a Victim's Impact Panel.

Defendant was also given 10 custody units to be used for 160 hours of community service. Total fines, fees and assessments were $2,758.

Let your voice support jobs and opportunity in Morrow County.

The Morrow Pacific project will ship Powder River Basin coal to the Port of Morrow by train. From there, barges will move the coal to the Port of St. Helens, where it will be transferred to oceangoing vessels bound for U.S. trade allies such as Japan, South Korea and Taiwan.

The Morrow Pacific project represents a capital investment of more than $150 million. It will pay about $750,000 annually in Morrow County property taxes, $850,000 annually in Port of Morrow fees and $350,000 annually in voluntary contributions to Morrow County public schools. Most importantly, the Morrow Pacific project will bring 25 family-wage jobs with benefits to Morrow County.

Support the Morrow Pacific project.

Currently, the project is in the "public comment" phase of the Army Corps of Engineers environmental assessment process: Put simply, the Corps wants to hear your opinion.

There are groups opposed to any and all projects involving coal. Their goal is to block the project, without regard for the jobs and economic benefits it will bring to Morrow County and its citizens.

Our goal is to move forward toward greater opportunity for Morrow County. If you share that goal, let your voice be heard. It will matter to the Corps.

Morrow Pacific Project Fact:

The U.S. has the largest coal reserves in the world, enough to last 249 years. Exports by the Morrow Pacific project will have no significant effect on the domestic supply of coal.

A pathway to jobs. An investment in rural counties.
