

Kindle graduates from banking school Fair wrap-up potluck planned

Becky Kindle, Senior Vice President, Operations, for Bank of Eastern Oregon, recently graduated from Pacific Coast Banking School.

PCBS is touted as the premier graduate-level banking school in the country. For the past three summers, Becky has attended the two-week program at the University of Washington in Seattle. The curriculum included courses in lending, law, accounting, leadership, and numerous inter-year problems, as well as a thesis.

Kindle joined the bank in 1998 and has served in virtually every operational job within the bank. Becky and her husband, Jim, have two children and live in Heppner.

"We are very proud of Becky's accomplishment. She continues to exhibit fabulous leadership qualities and a desire to master additional aspects of banking. PCBS has a very intense curriculum. The time commitment associated with the classes, as well as the interim work, make for a strenuous schedule, especially when added to the normal requirements associated with her job, community activities and family. Becky's dedication and commitment is another example of what sets us apart from our competition," said Jeff Bailey, President and CEO of the bank.

"I appreciate the opportunity to further my banking knowledge. The interaction with other bankers was a valuable experience," said Kindle.
