Teachers, students can earn credits at writing conference

EOU credits offered to Oregon teachers and to Eastern Oregon students who attend Word Round-Up Oct. 26-27

Eastern Oregon University is offering undergraduate and graduate credit, as well as teacher professional-development units, for participation in the Eastern Oregon Word Round-Up, set for Oct. 26-27 near Pendleton.

College, university and high school students can earn one or two college credits for $75 per credit for attending some of the programs or workshops offered at the event.

Teachers can earn PDUs by demonstrating event participation. For more information or to register, see <https://sites.google.com/a/eou.edu/eo-word-round-up-credit-options/or> contact Nancy Knowles, Oregon Writing Project Director, at 541-962-3795 or nknowles@eou.edu.

Admission and one-hour programs at the Word Round-Up are free. Two-hour workshops cost $25 to the general public, but teachers and students will not have to pay. Advance registration is not required. The Word Round-Up will be held at Wildhorse Resort and includes dozens of programs and workshops in publishing and writing, a trade show, used book sale, live concerts, and book art exhibits over both days.

Noted participants include Oregon's poet laureate Paulann Petersen, State Librarian MaryKay Dahlgreen, and Northwest writers David Axelrod, Shandel Beers, Molly Gloss, Bette Husted, Jack Lorts, David Memmott, Rick Steber, Pamela Steele, Jodi Varon, George Venn and many others.

For a complete schedule, see www.easternoregonwordroundup.org. The event is sponsored by Libraries of Eastern Oregon (LEO) with funding assistance from the Wildhorse Foundation, Collins Foundation, and Oregon Cultural Trust.

For further information, contact LEO exec. director Lyn Craig at ewordroundup@gmail.com.
