 gon high school. However, he said police training covers such events. "They train us on certain details on how to react and protocols and clearing the building, searching," said Wilson, who added that the event wasn't a shock, even in a small town like Heppner. "I don't believe it's a surprise; it can happen anywhere, and there's no reason we shouldn't all be prepared for something like this to happen. We don't treat them as routine; we treat them as serious every time."

Wilson said he was one of two police responders, the other being a Boardman officer who happened to be at Les Schwab getting his car worked on, heard what was happening and showed up to help. Other responders were Heppner volunteer fireman Ryan Jundt—also a MCSO deputy—and Assistant Fire Chief Steve Rhea. It was those four who went into the building to determine whether the promised bombs actually existed.

"The caller had stated a 25-minute time on detonation, so we waited until well after the time limit as a precaution before we went in and cleared," said Wilson.

The so-called "bomb promise" turned out to be a hoax after all, one of 18 across Oregon Monday afternoon. According to Oregon State Police, 28 county courthouses and the Oregon Public Service Building in Salem received phoned-in bomb threats Monday afternoon, Nov. 19.

"These threats appear to be similar to multiple reports received Nov. 15 in Washington State (approximately eight reports) and Nov. 2 (approximately nine reports) in Nebraska, which were all unfounded," said an OSP statement. The OSP reported that the statewide threats began around 2:30 p.m. and continued for about an hour.

Other locations with courthouse bomb threats included Baker, Benton, Clatsop, Crook, Curry, Deschutes, Gilliam, Grant, Jackson, Jefferson, Klamath, Lake, Lane, Lincoln, Malheur, Marion, Multnomah, Polk, Sherman, Tillamook, Umatilla, Union, Wallowa, Wasco, Washington, Wheeler and Yamhill counties.

Twenty-two of the locations evacuated personnel while responding law enforcement conducted area checks, while others chose not to evacuate but also conducted checks. None of the locations reported finding any suspicious objects.

Morrow County personnel were allowed back in their offices around 3:51, a little more than an hour after the initial scare. For them, life goes on, though with an unpleasant memory of a Monday in November.

"Now we're back here today, just doing our job," said Wolff.

Fab Four 4-H club talks...pie

On, November 7, the Fab Four Foods Group of Ione made pie crusts. They made three types of pie crust, including a butter crust, a cream cheese crust and a cream cheese crust. Strips were baked to taste-test; there was no clear winner. Members then made vanilla homemade whipped cream to go with a winter squash pie with whole-wheat Smart Balance crust that was made by Claudia Smythe.

The Fab Four Foods Group used to be the Ione Community 4-H Foods Group, but members Morgan Orem, Aaron Smythe, Syd Stefani and Renee Peterson decided they wanted a "fun" name this year.
