Abrams named director of Oregon Dept. of State Lands

Salem, OR—The State Land Board has selected former Heppner resident Mary M. Abrams as the next Director of the Oregon Department of State Lands.

Abrams is the daughter of Marion and the late Bob Abrams, also formerly of Heppner.

The department oversees management of Oregon's Common School Fund, along with Oregon's waterways, wetlands and state-owned range and forest lands.

"I am pleased that someone of Mary's caliber is taking the reins at the Department of State Lands," said Governor Kitzhaber. "Her management experience and her experience growing up and working in rural parts of the state are a great combination for an agency that is engaged across Oregon to support our public schools while preserving our natural resources."

"Mary brings with her a unique combination of local, state and global experience," said Secretary of State Kate Brown. "Her willingness to work with diverse partners and her strong background in both science and policy will serve the Department of State Lands well."

Treasurer Ted Wheeler said, "Oregonians today and tomorrow will benefit from the continued wise stewardship of our state lands and waterways. I am impressed with Mary Abrams' background, and I believe her expertise and collaborative style will help ensure these Oregon assets will provide dividends for generations."

Abrams has worked as a country director for the U.S. Peace Corps in Africa since 2006. Prior to that, she was a division administrator and water quality specialist at the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality. Abrams has also worked for the City of Portland and the Oregon Graduate Institute. She holds a Ph.D. and an M.S. in soil science from the University of California at Davis, and graduated from the University of Arizona with a B.S. in agronomy. She grew up in Morrow County and worked in La Grande for several years while with DEQ.

"As an Oregonian who grew up in Eastern Oregon farm country and attending public schools, I am honored to lead Oregon's Department of State Lands," said Abrams.

"I believe deeply in the mission of the agency to ensure a legacy for Oregonians and their public schools through sound stewardship of Oregon's lands, wetlands, unclaimed property, estates and the Common School Fund."

Abrams' appointment is effective Nov. 1. She replaces Louise Solliday, who is retiring after six years as director of the department.
