

Cardinal hopes continue to be dashed

The Cardinal football team continued what seems to be a jinxed season with two consecutive losses to Sherman and Dufur.

The first contest, against Sherman on Oct. 4, handed Ione a 68-46 loss.

"This week our offense played well but we were unable to contain the offense of Sherman," said Ione Coach Stan Weiper. "Dalton Hughes played well at quarterback, running the offense and completing some critical passes. Jailin Conboy and Gus Petersen ran effectively to the outside with the assistance of some solid blocking on the perimeter from Joel Stillman and Baily Haguewood. We will be working hard to improve for next week's game with Dufur. Unfortunately, those hopes weren't carried through during the Oct. 11 contest against Dufur; the Cardinal lost 64-20 to the Rangers.

"Dufur is one of the top teams in the state and we battled them pretty tough despite the final score. The score was tied 14 to 14 late in the first quarter and the team made improvements in a number of areas. Joel Stillman had a strong game on defense at safety and Baily Haguewood had another great game on offense with four catches for 160 yards and two TDs," Weiper said.

The losses make Ione's season record 0-6 overall and 0-3 league; the team is currently ranked #29 in 1A standings.

Students from the advanced Spanish and science classes at Ione High School began their bilingual journey on Saturday, Sept. 21.

The first stop was at Johnston Ridge Observatory, very close to Mount St. Helens. Students were guided by science teacher Dale Holland, who shared his own memory and thoughts on the 1980 eruption of St. Helens. Students hiked at the park and had a great view of the volcano. The students then traveled down the mountain to the Coldwater Creek Science and Education Center. There they learned about the changes to the environment that the eruption had caused to the areas surrounding Mount St. Helens.

The next day the students embarked on another journey up the mountain, but this time to Ape Cave. Students waited at the end of the cave while Mr. Holland told the students about how Ape Cave was formed by lava from another long-ago eruption of Mount St. Helens.

The students were reportedly "enraptured" by the tale of how scientists have discovered that multiple eruptions of the Cascade Mountains had formed so many aspects of the Columbia River Gorge. Later that afternoon the crew dressed for a trip to the Milagro Theatre in Portland for a bilingual play about the childhood of the famous Mexican artist Diego Rivera.

After the play students were treated to dinner and singing at La Bonita Restaurant in Portland. The Spanish students in Karen Holland's class had studied Diego Rivera's art beforehand.

On the way home the next day the students made several stops at trails and waterfalls in the Columbia River Gorge, and discussed and observed how lava flows had molded the area into the landscape that is today, along with the help of the Missoula Floods many thousands of years ago.

The students say they will never forget the fun they had and the adorable chipmunk Señora Holland made them leave behind, accurately named Gordito.

"It was a very good trip, ¡Fue un buen viaje!"
