

Cardinals take down Huskies

Ione added another notch in its belt when it defeated Elgin 38-14 on the Huskies' home turf last Friday.

"We played tough, aggressive defense at Elgin and opened the game by securing a safety after three consecutive plays with losses for Elgin. Jason Jaurez returned an interception 15 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter and Gus Petersen scored on a nicely-blocked counter play from 16 yards out to give us an 18-6 lead at halftime," said Cardinal Coach Stan Weiper. "Our offense was not sharp but the defense picked up the slack, consistently stopping the Elgin offense. Joel Stillman had a productive game with 104 yards rushing with a TD, and also caught a 51-yard pass from Bailey Haguewood for a touchdown."

"We will be working hard this week to prepare for our last game of the year," added Weiper. "The players are determined to finish the season up strong."

The Cardinals have their final home game this Friday at 7 p.m. versus the Echo Cougars.

Oct. 25 game stats are as follows:

Cardinal volleyball still going strong in playoffs

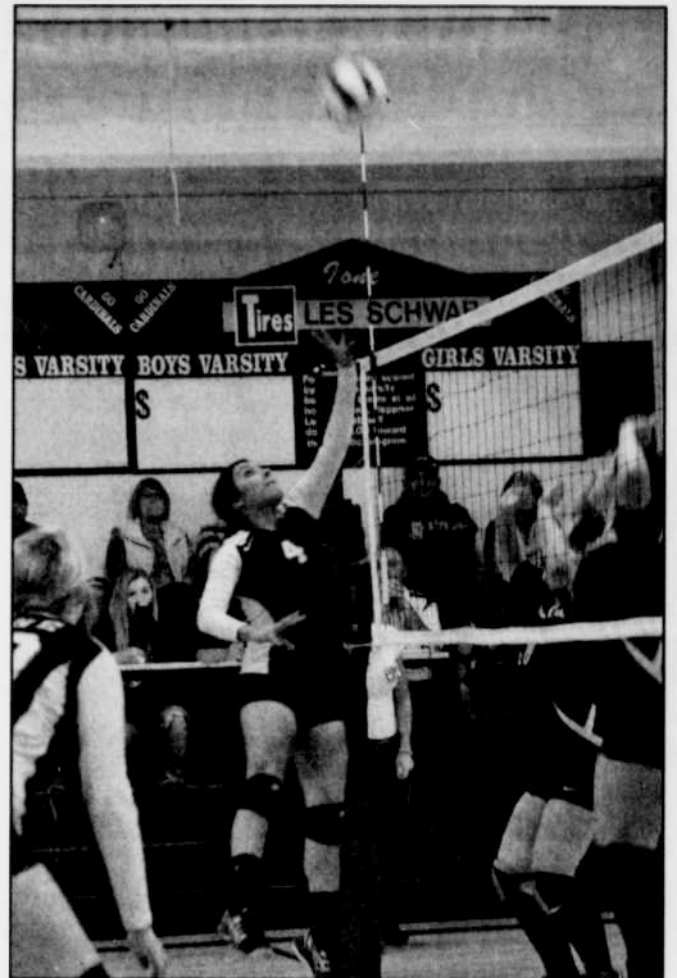

Ione Cardinal volleyball kept going with a strong season when they placed third in Big Sky District playoffs last Saturday, losing first to Dufur before turning their day around and defeating South Wasco County 3-2.

The team will have a final playoff game in Portland on Wednesday against City Christian; if they win, the girls will head to the state tournament.

Several team members were also honored with all-state titles at districts. Emily Holland was named on the first team all-state, while Rachel Holland and Jessie Flynn were given honorable mention.

Catechism class discovers a world of rosaries

The catechism students of St. William's Catholic Church of Ione spent their Sunday, Oct. 27, afternoon on a trip downriver to view the largest rosary collection in the world.

After a stop at Bonneville Dam, the group crossed the river and went to the Columbia Gorge Interpretive Center Museum at Stevenson, WA, where they were treated to some Native American legends on how the gorge was formed as well as a video of the factual story.

The group then went upstairs to see the nearly 4,000 rosaries that are displayed, along with other religious artifacts identified with Pacific Northwest history. The display represents the life work of the late Donald Brown of North Bonneville, WA, who had a lifelong devotion to the rosary.

Brown's devotion began in 1917 when he was confined in the Mercy Hospital in North Bend, OR with pneumonia. He saw rosaries being worn on the habits of the Sisters of Mercy and became fascinated. He embraced the Catholic faith and later became a Dominican Brother. As his collection became known throughout the Catholic world, many rare and beautiful rosaries arrived unsolicited at his modest home. He cataloged them all, noting the donor, place of origin, type of material used and the description of the church, shrine or historical incident with which it was identified.

The rosaries in the display come in six different sizes and are displayed according to size. The smallest rosaries are made from beads the size of a pin head. The largest one in the collection measures over sixteen feet long and was made by children in Malden, MA for a school play. Because children made it, Brown considered it one of his favorites.

Brown died in a traffic accident in Eugene on Dec. 14, 1975 at the age of 80.

Eighteen students made the trip along with adult chaperones Liz Peterson, Maureen McElligott, Lucy Twork, Jarrod and Alison Ogden, Josh and Melissa Coiner, Joe and Jeri McElligott, and Father Kumar.

Ione school to host Scholastic book fair Nov. 6, 7

Ione Community School will host a Scholastic book fair on Wednesday, Nov. 6, and Thursday, Nov. 7, from 1:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the Ione elementary gym, 445 Spring Street, Ione.

The book fair offers specially priced books and educational products, including popular series, award-winning titles, new releases, adult bestsellers, and other great reads from more than 100 publishers.

Funds raised will help purchase books for the Ione school library, classroom libraries and children. Families, faculty and the community are invited to attend this fun reading event that helps inspire children to become lifelong readers.

Book fair customers may help the school build classroom libraries by purchasing books through the Classroom Wish List program. In addition, the book fair will feature the

All for Books program, where kids can share the thrill of reading by donating loose change to purchase books from the book fair for kids who can't buy a book. Scholastic matches monetary donations with a donation of up to one million books, which go to national nonprofit organizations dedicated to helping families in need, such as the Kids in Distressed Situations and Kids In Need Foundation.

Free classes planned at Ione library

IONE, Ore.—The Ione Public Library has announced that it will be offering two free classes in November.

The first will be an iPad 101 class held Monday, Nov. 4, from 6-7:30 p.m. Participants can bring their iPads and learn tips and tricks; hand gestures; how to set up/use email, iCloud and FaceTime; and using standard apps and suggestions on other apps. Even those who have owned an iPad for a while may learn something new, say class organizers.

The second class will be on Pinterest and will be held Wednesday, Nov. 13, from 6-7:30 p.m. Participants can bring a laptop or mobile device and learn what Pinterest is and how they can use it to save ideas to their own pin boards. The class may also cover using Pinterest for business if attendees are interested.

Space for each class is limited; interested persons must call the library at 541-561-9828 to reserve a spot. The library is located at 385 W. Second St., Ione.

Classes are sponsored by the Ione Library District and will be led by Ione-native, Heidi Nelson who works as a digital media coordinator for Media Ventures, Inc.

4-H members learn horsemanship

Some members of the Ione Community 4-H Club enjoyed a horse showing clinic hosted by Linda Halvorsen this past Sunday. Members had the opportunity to work on their showmanship skills in preparation for the all-around contest at the Morrow County Fair. A spring clinic will also be planned. The first official club meeting will be in November. Anyone interested in becoming a member, call leader Erin Heideman at 561-0081 or email e2h2@hotmail.com. The club is an open enrollment club for any student fourth grade or older who has an interest in showing livestock; the club welcomes cattle, sheep, pigs and small animals.
