Fall prescribed burning set to take place across Umatilla National Forest

Pendleton, OR—Fire management staff on the Umatilla National Forest are preparing for the fall prescribed burning, which may impact access and camping opportunities in several fall hunting units. Area, road and trail closures will go into effect prior to and during burn operations, which typically take two to five days. Forest officials are advising hunters to plan ahead and avoid camping in the following designated prescribed burn areas during this 2014 hunting season:

-The Gulliford Burn (located in the Heppner Hunting Unit in Oregon) encompasses 4,000 acres on the North Fork John Day Ranger District west of State Highway 395 between forest road 5308 and forest road 5314.

-The Sunflower-Bacon Burn (located in the Heppner Hunting Unit in Oregon) encompasses two areas of operation on the Heppner Ranger District. The first area is east of forest road 22 in the Lovelett Creek drainage and will cover 3,200 acres. The second area is in the Morphine Ridge area near forest road 2202 and 2120 and will cover 3,900 acres.

Prescribed burning is highly dependent on precise weather and fuel conditions; fall weather provides optimal weather conditions and dry material. Burning could occur anytime from September through early November, which coincides with several big game hunting seasons.

Additional areas across the forest are also scheduled for fall prescribed burning, but will not involve large area closures.

"It's important to note that not all proposed burns planned for this fall may be completed since typical weather conditions provide limited burn windows," said Chris Johnson, Deputy Fire Staff Officer.

Firefighters will ignite the burn perimeter by hand using drip torches. The interior of the burns will be aerial ignited, via helicopter, using a plastic sphere dispenser that drops ping-pong-like balls that catch fire as they reach the ground. For this reason, it is important that hunters avoid setting up camp within the designated burn perimeter.

"The safety of our firefighters and the public are top priority," said Johnson.

While closures may inconvenience hunters, forest officials say the long-term reward is worth the short-term restrictions on forest use.

"Unfortunately, hunting season coincides with prescribed burning season. We understand this will impact hunters, but controlled burns are necessary to reintroduce fire to the landscape and encourage healthy vegetation that will ultimately improve landscapes and forage for big game," said Lizzy Berkeley, Forest Wildlife Biologist.

Partnerships with the Blue Mountain Elk Initiative, Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation and Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife provide funding and in-kind support for these prescribed burning projects. Additional information and maps of the proposed prescribed burns will be available on the Umatilla National Forest website www.fs.usda.gov/umatilla/ or at any forest office.

For more information concerning the Umatilla National Forest Prescribed Burning program, contact Chris Johnson at 541-278-3704 or Dale Boyd, Heppner Ranger District, 541-676-9187.
