Ione FFA supports Heppner colleagues

Ione FFA Chapter members attended the ninth annual Heppner FFA banquet in support of their neighbors. The Heppner Ag Program recently developed a pheasant barn project with the intent to raise and release baby pheasants. This project came with a lot of support from local man Sam Hornbeck. Hornbeck recently passed and, as a tribute to him, the FFA chapter voted to name the barn in his honor. At the banquet, FFA members from Ione presented a memorial sign to Heppner members for just that purpose. The sign was designed and created by Tyson Epperson and David Smidmajer during their time in shop class in Ione. Local girl vies for state rodeo title

Ione—Ivy Sandford,

a freshman at Ione Community High School, is competing for the state title of Miss Oregon High School Rodeo Queen June 12 at the state finals held in Prineville, OR.

Sandford, daughter of Rick and Sylvia Sandford and younger sister of Lillian Sandford, all of Ione, is no stranger to this event or what it means to hold this coveted title. Her sister Lillian held the title for two years during 2012-2014.

Ivy is a member of the Intermountain High School Rodeo Club and competes in barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying and break-away roping. If she wins the crown she will travel to Rock Springs, WY in July to compete for the National High School Rodeo Queen title with 40 other young ladies.

For the state title, Ivy will compete with two other young ladies in horsemanship, rodeo knowledge test, personal interview, speech, modeling and impromptu questions. This will be her first official pageant and she says she is excited for the event.

Sandford is active in Ione's FFA chapter, 4-H horse, sewing, cooking and public speaking. She has won several awards in both for her horsemanship and speaking.
