

Heppner TSA attends national conference

The Heppner Chapter of the Technology Student Association (TSA) attended the National TSA Conference, “Designing Your Dreams,” in Dallas, TX recently. Local attendees Cade Arbogast, Bryan Fowler, Kai Arbogast, Jesse Boyd, William Lutchter and Ross Cutsforth joined the rest of the 6,400 in attendance from all over the country.

The team of Fowler and Kai Arbogast placed sixth in Technology Problem Solving.

Heppner TSA members also competed in Structural Design and Engineering (bridge building), Children’s Stories (writing and illustrating a story), Technology Bowl, On Demand Video and Video Game Design.

Along with the competitions, students attended daily general sessions and a heated National TSA Business meeting. Students also visited local area attractions.

Heppner TSA members were involved with many fundraising activities throughout the year to make this trip possible, and say they appreciate everyone who donated. Oregon TSA State Advisor and Heppner teacher Dave Fowler said it was a learning experience for all the students, and plans are already underway for the 2016 National TSA Conference, “Building a Legacy, in Nashville, TN next June. Oregon TSA holds three state competitions during the school year at BMCC. There are currently six high school TSA chapters in our region, with plans for new chapters next year.

“We will be adding middle school TSA chapters for 2015-16,” added Fowler.

CITY COUNCIL

council passed a letter of support for ODOT’s (Oregon Department of Transportation) plan to chip seal Heppner’s Main Street next summer. The street is a state highway and therefore ODOT’s responsibility for upkeep. New striping will also be done at that time and Cutsforth said the angle of parking lines on the street will be changed at that time to make for easier parking. “There was a recommendation to change the parking spaces on Main Street from an 80 degree angle to 60 degrees,” according to minutes of the June utility commission meeting. “This would improve visibility, also this would help with the J-turn (U-turn) problem, as the new angle would make J-turn parking less accessible.”

In other business the council:
-Allowed WC construction to start work at 6 a.m. on the new courthouse building site instead of 7 a.m. The heat and a desire for construction workers to work four 10-hour days prompted the change.
-Decided not to charge businesses the $17.50 per month fire flow charge if their water has been shut off. Business, and not residential, are charged the extra water fee, and the city had been making that charge even if a business was shut down and the water turned off. Cutsforth said people were not only angry about the charge, but were refusing to pay since they were not receiving water service. She said there were, “four to five empty buildings and it’s not a big part of our budget” she told the council.

-Heard a report from police officer John Bowles, who is also a councilperson, that there has been a drop in crime in Heppner, a lot of which is due to citizens calling in suspicious activity.

-Heard a report from Fire Chief Rusty Estes, who reported the following activity for June: three rural wild land fires, five secure landing zones, one motor vehicle accident, two structure fires, two rekindle fires, one lift assist, two mutual aids to Boardman, two mutual aids to Ione, and 22 chief calls.

A delegation of Morrow County 4-H members attended the 2015 Oregon State University Summer Conference June 24-27 on the OSU campus in Corvallis. A record number of 18 youth from Morrow County attended the event this year. Attending the camp were Casey Fletcher, Austin Carter, Tyler Carter, Gibson McCurry, Tresslyn McCurry, Matt Orem, Joshua Gray, Ian Meakins, Emily Taylor, Miranda Taylor, Isabella Ganvoa, Kylee McClure, Raleigh McClure, Renee Peterson, Cami VanArsdale, Josey Evans, Caitlyn Scrivner and Vizta Sifford.

The event hosts 400 teens from across the state of Oregon and offers various classes, tours, community service projects, game nights and more. Scholarships for local attendees were provided by the Morrow County 4-H Leaders Association and funds from the America’s Farmers Grow Communities prize money that Double T Farms selected Morrow County 4-H to receive.

Summer Conference is an opportunity for youth grades seven to 12 to travel to Corvallis, explore campus life, make new friends, learn and have fun. While there, participants attended workshops on a wide variety of subjects. More than 80 classes are offered, including cheese making, tours of the athletic complexes on campus, animal anatomy and vet school tours, fly fishing, fun with food, leadership, and public speaking.

In addition to attending workshops, participants heard from a motivational speaker, participated in multiple community service projects, and enjoyed many fun activities such as a pool party and dance.
