Educational mini workshops will be offered throughout the show. Featured quilter Marge Shankle will be sharing tips for producing her prize-winning quilts. Shankle, a long-time Boardman quilter, has a history of assisting beginning quilters.

A special treat this year is an exhibit of Pyrotechnic design quilts/wall hangings.

A pyrotechnic quilt is an original quilt designed to feature fireworks displays. Quilters who are members of the Pyrotechnics Guild International (PGI) create an item for an art exhibit at the annual PGI meeting. The art exhibit is a side activity to nightly fireworks displays. It is fun to see the way quilters use fabric to capture their impressions of "bombs bursting in air."

Boardman Quilt Show welcomes all entries. Exhibitors are welcome to enter keepsake heirloom quilts, as well as newly created quilts. Registration forms for quilts are available at Aunty Ida's Quilt Shop in Hermiston. For information about displaying a quilt, to request a registration form, or for more information about attending the show, contact midnite\_kat@hotmail.com or call 541-314-2150.

All quilts that are pre-registered before Oct. 2 will be hung. Quilts will be accepted at Boardman Senior Center Oct. 8 from 3-5 p.m., or they may be dropped off at Aunty Ida's Quilt Shop, 435 W. Hermiston Ave., Hermiston on Oct. 7 until 4:30 p.m. Because of space limitations, show organizers say they are unable to promise quilts registered after Oct. 2 will be hung.
