HEPPNER 50¢ azette mes NO. 5 8 Pages Morrow County, Heppner, Oregon VOL. 135 Wednesday, February 3, 2016

WCVEDG holds annual meeting

Economic group hears ideas on business recruitment, retention

By David Sykes The Willow Creek Valley Economic Development Group (WCVEDG) held its annual meeting last Wednesday and heard a report from Oregon State University Economist Bruce Sorte on the health of businesses and the economy of South Morrow County. Sorte had some good news, and some not so good news, about what he discovered about the economy and future of Heppner, Lexington and Ione.

Featured WCVEDG speaker, OSU economist Bruce Sorte.

high-speed chase, arrest

False alarm leads to

-See ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT/PAGE FIVE

Last Wednesday around 8:18

a.m., the Morrow

County Sheriff's Office responded to a bank alarm call at the Bank of Eastern

Oregon in Irrigon,

according to a state-

Groundbreaking marks beginning of a building, completion of a dream

By Andrea Di Salvo Shovels sliced into the topsoil along Riverside Ave. in Heppner Monday during the groundbreaking ceremony for a new fire hall. However, according to those who know, the few moments of ceremony and celebration gave no clue as to the long, difficult road that led to the groundbreaking

"It took a lot of things all happening together to make it happen," said Heppner City Manager Kim Cutsforth. "We've been working on this shovel day since September of 2014."

And it all started with a woman named Ida Farra.

Farra, a long-time supporter of the Heppner Fire Department, started the ball rolling in July of 2014 with what Cutsforth and ous. Extremely generous," Heppner Fire Chief Rusty Estes referred to as a "substantial" donation. While would still be just a dream," Cutsforth and Estes weren't he added. "She made it at liberty to name amounts, happen."

A large group gathered to celebrate the groundbreaking of the new fire hall in Heppner Monday. Back L-R: Salvador Cortes, Tony Weich and Mark Patton of Port of Morrow, Jim Kindle, Don Bennett, Ryan Jundt, Dan Sharp, Jay Keithley, Skip Matthews, and Jim McElligott. Front L-R: Stacey Lauritsen, John Ripple, Dean Robinson, Ida Farra, Steve Rhea, Rusty Estes, Kim Cutsforth, Janet Greenup and Chad Doherty. -Photo by David Sykes

"It was extremely gener-Estes said.

To put it in perspective, building. Cutsforth explained that, to date, $76,000 has been city had $76,000 in the "(Without her) this spent on the project-mi- bank," said Cutsforth. "And nus any cost for the land I don't know how many and without so much as a nail having gone into the

See GROUNDBREAKING/

"There's no way the

MCGG employee hangs up keys after ment released by As deputies arrived, Deputy Colleen Neubert noticed a black four-door arrest.

Nissan pickup speeding away from the area. While Deputy Todd Siex spoke with bank employees and determined the bank call to be a false alarm, Neubert followed the speeding pickup south on S. First St.

The Nissan pickup failed to stop at the intersection of S First St. and er, around 8:30 a.m., the SE Wyoming Ave., and PAGE SIX | Neubert attempted a traffic

A false alarm at a bank stop on the vehicle. The in Irrigon last week led to driver of the pickup, later a high-speed chase across identified as Lawrence Al-North Morrow County, len Perrin, 39, of Irrigon, eventually resulting in an failed to acknowledge the police emergency lights and refused to stop. The high-speed chase continued eastbound on SE Wyoming, where Perrin again failed to stop at the inter-Lawrence section of SE Wyo-Allen Perrin ming and Division. Neubert followed Senior Deputy Ryan Jundt. the pickup south on Division and called dispatch to advise she was in a pursuit.

MCSO deputies were able to maintain a visual on the vehicle throughout a pursuit that covered several county roads south of Irrigon and at times reached speeds of 95 mph. The pickup at times left public roads and cut across farm roads and farm fields.

Nearly 15 minutes lat-See HIGH SPEED CHASE/ PAGE FIVE

Remembrance walk/run to benefit local EMS

Coordinators of the the video input that will annual Friends Helping guide emergency medical Friends Remembrance responders as they insert Walk/5K Run have an- the breathing tube, allowing nounced that this year's proceeds will go to Morrow County Health District for use in Pioneer Memorial Hospital and emergency services. "Friends Helping Friends has helped us for several years," said Molly Rhea, Director of Nursing at PMH. "Doing so, they've emphasized home health and emergency services." With that in mind, planned purchases by the district include a glidescope for the ambulance and a blood warmer for use in the emergency room and for easily secure an airway in elective procedures. Rhea said the glidescope is a portable device definitely have the ability used for intubation, or to save lives," said Rhea, opening an airway for a noting that many of the dispatient who has difficulty breathing. The special feature on this glidescope is more than 30 years on the road

By Andrea Di Salvo After nearly four de- a few things.

repossess machinery for the with chains to hook up the Grain Growers.

of miles of roads, he's seen man," often having to go partner waded into the pond

Pioneer Memorial Hospital would like to purchase a glidescope similar to this one with funds donated by Friends Helping Friends. -Contributed photo them to more quickly and an emergency situation.

"The intubation will trict's ambulance transports See FRIENDS HELPING FRIENDS/PAGE EIGHT

G-T Trophy Corner

Sage Ferguson, daughter of Charlie and Jodi Ferguson of Lexington, harvested her first elk last Sunday from about 400 yards (about the distance to the vehicle in the background) with one shot. She took the elk around the Gurdane area. Sage was a recipient of an elk damage program tag through Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife. -Contributed photo

cades with Morrow County

strom hung up his hat—or shield," he recalls. "If they his keys-this week. And, had a video camera up he says, retirement has been there, some of the close a long time coming.

"We could start working at seven or eight years of age, pulling rye or picking rocks, so it's been a long road Hal here," he says. "I Bergstrom figure, 38 years, I've put my time in. It's time to let someone wondering if it was safe younger take over, someone who needs a job."

Bergstrom, 65, was born in Pendleton but raised in the Eightmile area; his Frank Anderson ranch at Ruggs. During his teenage years, he says he spent some time working for Eric Anderson and Shirley Rugg before graduating from Heppner High School in 1970.

After high school, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy for four years, stationed in San Diego on the U.S.S. Kitty Hawk. After the Navy, he returned to the Heppner area, working again for a few years for locals like Anderson and Rugg, as well as Art Warren. Then, in the late '70s, he took a job with MCGG in Lexington.

Bergstrom says he spent his first three years in the shop working as a mechanic. He started driving truck for MCGG 35 years ago, and that's when things got interesting. He says he's driven everything from lowboys hauling machinery to trucks hauling grain, fertilizer or fuel. And, over those thousands

"Some of the things Grain Growers, Hal Berg- I've seen behind the windcalls you have when you're packing 65,000 pounds of dead weight."

He remembers, for instance, driving through cities like Seattle and Spokane when the teamsters were on strike, and to stop for gas because they might think he was "scabbing," or breaking the strike. "It got pretty interestunderstatement.

Hal Bergstrom in days past.

dad and mom lived on the ing," he adds with a bit of Burns to repo a set of drills. the pond with their equip-When we found them, they ment. "I had to actually Bergstrom says he was were sitting in the middle See BERGSTROM RETIRES/ also known as "the repo of a pond," he says. His

"One time I went to couldn't pull them out of PAGE EIGHT

Local artist to hold exhibit

Sykes will have an open- also employed as a graphic ing exhibit of his works at designer and digital printer the Pendleton Center of the at Sykes Brothers Printing, Arts, 214 N. Main St., Pend-LLC, Pendleton, which he leton, beginning this Thursday, Feb. 4, from 5:30-7 p.m. Hors d'oeuvres and beverages will be served.

High School alumnus, has from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from Cornish College Local artist Andrew of the Arts, Seattle. He is operates with his brother, Chris Sykes.

The show will run Feb. 4-29 and is open to the pub-Sykes, a Heppner lic Tuesday through Friday Saturday from noon to 4 p.m.

Andrew Sykes

drills, he recalls, but they