Ione students join national cause by planting 'Pinwheels for Prevention'

Ione sixth-grade students showed their support for child abuse prevention by planting a pinwheel garden last Thursday near the school reader board in Ione. The 150 pinwheels are meant to represent a happy, safe, and carefree childhood. The pinwheels will be up throughout the month of April. Ione sixth-grade students are, in alphabetical order: Morgan Alldritt, Parker Angell, Joshua Bleth, Blake Carter, Cedrick Dayandante, Emily Ehrmantraut, Hailey Heideman, Faviola Jaurez Alvarez, Chance McCormack, Cecilia McElligott, Grace Ogden, Lucus Parker, Haylie Peterson, Kayla Rodriguez, Taylor Rollins, Onice Sanchez, Julianna Teeman, Katelyn Thompson, Anthony Villegas and Gary Walls. -Contributed photo mark," said Pamela Heisler, Director of Programs and Partnerships at the Children's Trust Fund. "The pinwheel is a sign of hope, and each pinwheel garden represents what we want for every child—a happy, safe and carefree childhood."

This year, Pinwheels for Prevention is on track to distribute more than 15,000 pinwheels and see a Pinwheel Garden hosted in every county.

In Oregon alone, 10,010 children were victims of child abuse and neglect in 2014; 46 percent of which were children younger than six years old.

"At Prevent Child Abuse Oregon and the Children's Trust Fund, we know that we can make a positive impact on the future by preventing child abuse and neglect today," said Heisler "The best way to increase that impact is by involving citizens and communities in our work. Pinwheels have come to serve the physical embodiment, or reminder, of the great childhoods we want for all children."
