progress for façade work

Center reports that approval for a Diamonds in the Rough grant for façade work looks promising but still needs HCC Board approval.

HCC secretary Claudia Smythe reports that the grant organization requires the facade to be designed with the original tall doors and double-decker windows. The current plans for door designs have been approved by the state, which prefers that the Hardman center strengthen the existing window frames with metal rather than going to larger wood frames.

be able to build the doors he would do a prototype budget for store-bought and Phil Carlson will also just in case. HCC members found two commercial sources for custom nine-foot doors, and the windows will be 1/8-inch thick for additional strength to complement the metal reinforcing.

The grant requires 50 percent matching in funds or in-kind donations, and after running some numbers, the center reports that they are "a little more than good" due to donated contractor and volunteer labor and the financial commitment of members.

Don Ward says he may as Contractor of Record and donate up to 40 hours of his time; other contractors donating time are Dave Piper and Jerry Gentry, while HCC's main volunteers will be Jim Kirkpatrick and fully funded.

Hardman Community first-but suggested HCC Don Ward. Mark Rietmann donate time if their spring 2018 schedules allow it. HCC reports the need for a couple of backup volunteers in case one of the others can't fulfill their commitment. Weather permitting, work is planned for the first week of April 2018.

However, these plans still need HCC Board approval, so members can contact the board to voice their opinions. Board members include Sam Martin Sr., Dick Paris, Bob Stevens and Dan VanSchoiack, or contact Smythe at hcc@ Scott Smythe will act hughes.net or 541-676-9718.

Finally, Smythe says this project will only use funds that have been specified as matching for 2018 and that 2017 projects are
