

Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2021 offers more economic relief

By Daniel Van Schoiack, CPA member of OSCPA and AICPA

The recently passed Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2021, (also referred to as CAA 21) is a $2.3 trillion spending bill, the largest spending bill ever enacted. The actual bill is said to be over 5,000 pages long, while the text posted on the congressional website is 2,124 pages. Deep within the bowels of this massive piece of legislation are provisions offering $900 billion in stimulus relief for the COVID-19 pandemic.

The CAA 21 offers economic relief to farmers, ranchers, businesses, nonprofit organizations and churches through an extension and expansion of the Paycheck Protection Plan (PPP). Banks are now taking applications for those who have not previously applied for the program. Also, some who have previously received a PPP payment might qualify for a second draw from the program, if they can show a 20 percent decrease in revenue in any quarter in 2020 in comparison to the same quarter in 2019.

The CAA 21 has made several modifications to the plan that will make it more appealing for many applicants. For example, farmers and ranchers can now apply using a formula based on their gross income reported on Schedule F, where previously the net income on the form was a determining factor. As a result, farmers and ranchers who were previously ineligible for the program because of negative income can now apply. Also, some farmers and ranchers who previously received a payment based on their net income can now reapply for a larger amount based on their gross income. Although the title of the program is the "Paycheck" Protection Plan, allowable expenses are not limited to payroll cost and include owner draws, rent, mortgage interest and utilities. Recent revisions of the PPP provide more flexibility in the use of the funds in some cases. For example, the proceeds can now be used to purchase supplies that were under contract prior to receiving the funds. Also, the proceeds can now be used to purchase perishable goods; that is a good change for the food service industry.

In a major change to the PPP by the CAA 21, the expenses paid with the funds are now tax deductible, even if the fund proceeds are not subject to repayment. However, recipients must tread carefully to avoid falling into a repayment trap. Repayment can be avoided by closely monitoring the use of PPP funds. The Small Business Administration has recently released a simplified forgiveness form 3508-S.

Another change made by the CAA 21 allows some employers to now utilize both the PPP and ERC (Employee Retention Credit). Previously both of these programs could not be used in the same year, now both are allowed if not applied to the same cost in order to prevent double dipping. The ERC has been revised to allow a maximum credit of $14,000 per employee total for the first two quarters of 2021 combined. The credit is based on 70 percent of qualified wages. Employers can also amend previously filed federal 2019 payroll reports to claim the credit that was not allowed at that time. For 2020 there was an annual cap of $5,000 per employee based on 50 percent of qualified wages. Besides the favorable changes to the PPP and ERT, the CAA 21 contains an abundance of tax law provisions that will benefit a broad range of taxpayers. The list of changes includes 100 percent allowance of business meals provided by a restaurant, a one year look back for earned income, and charitable donation deduction for taxpayers who do not itemize. Also, as with all tax legislation, there are provisions that benefit specific business segments, including favorable depreciation for motorsport facilities. The results of special interest lobby efforts are available.

Oregon Trail Library District to hold board meeting

The Oregon Trail Library District will hold a virtual board meeting Wednesday January 20 at 6:30 p.m. The agenda will include approval of December 2020 minutes and financial, district election May 18, 2021, policy schedule and director report. Those who wish to attend should contact OTLD at 541-481-3365 for Zoom meeting information.
