improve her time in the four competitive events and has placed higher each time she has participated. Certainly, seems fitting that Kate works for the US Forest Service. Kudos, Kate. Hey, Hunter Nichols. One of eleven EOU track and field athletes to earn all-academic honors from the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, Hunter was also on the EOU Dean's List by maintaining a 3.5 GPA or better. He helped his team win the Cascade Collegiate Conference Championships, and he qualified for the NAIA Outdoor Track and Field Championships and placed 11th in the 1500. Kudos, Wyatt Steagall, US

Army Specialist, Cavalry Scout, in the National Guard, earned his "silver spurs" during his two-week The gross champion for annual training at Fort Rilea in Warrenton. During the cavalrymen spur ride, Wyatt had to show mastery in all types of weaponry, land navigation and excellent marksmanship with an M17 pistol and an M4 carbine, and finish with a twelve-mile "ruck march." Wyatt was chosen for the Snipers Division, so he will be transferring as an Army Sniper. Yes, parents John and Jennifer are very proud of Wyatt. Kudos, Wyatt.

Finally, after about a month of no phone access. grandson Carson and fellow ROTC officer candidates at a six-week training in Quantico did get cell phones back last Sunday, and he included his MeMa as one of several people to call. Still enthusiastic, though exhausted, he noted a few experiences that didn't surprise this grandmother but alerted her to the possibility of having to go there and straighten some people out about how to treat her grandson..

The repair of the murals on the Ag Museum have made such a great difference. Thanks go to WCVEDG and the county for funding. Surely, our visitors will be awed by the Sidewalk chalk art seems to dominate sections of Main Street and seems to be the product of young and older. Always interesting, some pictures and messages are obvious ("We our community") and some with more complicated symbols might require an interpreter. Fun to walk and gawk. (Note that some artists do not want footprints on their masterpieces.)

If your lawn has sneaked up to a fire-hazard height, peace of mind might justify the cost of help to bring it down to safer, manageable height. Ask around or look for Facebook listings (?) and for advertisements on the board by the supermarket entry. Young people, especially, might be looking for summertime yard work.

The goat head burrs are back, too. Ouch. Broadleaf weed killer or digging, and careful disposal works toward eradication.

If you want a "privacy fence" provided by Mother Nature, just let that Virginia Creeper that has started taking over your fence continue to spread. In short order, it will be an almost solid wall. Of course, it will compete with and probably choke out any other plant in the nearby space.

Yes, you probably have smiled over something recently, something that would also bring smiles to reader's faces, so how about jotting that down and sending it to dbrosnan123@ gmail.com or calling 541-223-1490. Please, share.

Here's hoping that some good news comes to everyone reading this.

BEO Bancorp reports second quarter earnings

Oregon, announced second quarter 2022 consolidated net income of $2,121,000 or $1.76 per share. Total assets were $836.0 million; net loans of $493.1 million; deposits were at $770.76 million. Shareholders' equity was at $45.2 million. "Second quarter earnings are up 12.4 percent compared to the same period in 2021; earnings per share increased 12.1 percent. Total assets have increased 15.7 percent, with deposits up 16.7 percent. Net loans are down 1.2 percent, but this is attributable to payoffs of PPP loans. Organic growth without PPP loans is 9.0 percent year over year. With our balance sheet being asset sensitive, earnings have benefitted from the increased interest rates," said President and CEO Jeff Bailey.

EVP and Chief Financial Officer Mark Lemmon reported, "The solid earnings for 2Q 2022 have contributed to an increase in shareholder equity of 4.0 percent year over year. We, as well as most banks, continue to experience excess liquidity. Supply chain issues, inflationary concerns and overall economic to volatility in the markets. We expect the Federal Re- inflationary pressures."

Chief Operations Officer and EVP Becky Kindle added, "Deposit growth is occurring across our branch network. In certain markets we are welcoming new customers as consolidation amongst larger institutions, along with their closing of branches, has encouraged people to shop for their banking needs.'

"The Oregon Drought Assistance Program rolled out by the state earlier this year has been helpful to select producers in our Oregon markets. Over $3MM was distributed by the bank to ag producers in June. Wheat harvest is beginning in our earlier areas, with reports of good yields. Prices continue to fluctuate across all commodities, but remain fairly strong," said John Qualls, EVP and Chief Lending Officer.

EVP and Chief Credit Officer Ed Rollins noted, "The bank's loan portfolio is in relatively good condition. Our classified assets continue to improve, and being an agriculturally based bank, good yields and decent commodity prices bode well for credit quality. uncertainty all contribute Higher input costs are concerning, along with ongoing versity's board of trustees from President Tom Insko will hold their 2022 annual retreat in Boardman, OR. The meetings planned for August 8-9 will include engagement with area and regional business leaders, discuss EOU's role in business, industry and education in the area.

On Monday, August 8, trustees will host a public reception from 5-6:30 p.m. in the SAGE Center Gallery. The public is encouraged to attend the reception and share their EOU
