City of Boardman adopts urban renewal plan

The Boardman City Council, at their Sept. 5 meeting, approved the ordinance to form the North Urban Renewal District on the north side of Boardman which will go into effect in 30 days on October 5.

The North Urban Renewal District consists of approximately 181 total acres, 145.55 acres of land in tax lots and 35.55 acres of public rights-of-way. The primary purpose of the North Urban Renewal Plan is to address infrastructure deficiencies and provide economic development tools to promote future development, said the Boardman City news release.

The funding mechanism for Urban Renewal does not increase taxes to property owners, instead receives its revenue by how taxes are disbursed to other taxing districts, according to the release. With the tax revenue the district would create, much of the funds would be spent on transportation needs such as improvements on NE Front Street, and an extension on NE Boardman Avenue to Olson Road, according to the city. The plan also included new roadways connecting NE Columbia Avenue to NE Boardman Avenue and connecting NE 2nd Street to NE Columbia Avenue.
