supporting safe drinking water efforts, while the remaining $481,030 will go into the state's general fund.

The Port of Morrow collects wastewater from various sources within its industrial park and has a DEQ water quality permit that allows for the reuse of nitrogen-rich wastewater for irrigation on nearby farms. However, the permit includes limits on nitrogen application and the presence of nitrate and moisture in soil prior to winter applications.

DEQ issued a permit modification in November 2022 that imposes significant changes to prevent adverse effects on groundwater. These changes include nitrogen application reductions, additional wastewater treatment and storage construction, enhanced monitoring and reporting, and the assessment and cleanup of groundwater contamination resulting from current operations.

Well users within the LUBGWMA can schedule a free well water test appointment by calling 211 or applying online, via email, or by phone to receive a voucher for free nitrate testing. OHA will also cover the cost of testing for other recommended contaminants (arsenic, bacteria, lead) on a one-time basis, as well as hardness, iron, and manganese to inform treatment system decisions.
