"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the post office at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Development League and Good Roads.

Good roads throughout Oregon is a subject that will in future receive a great deal of attention from the Oregon Development League. Besides having a good roads day at the Astoria convention, August 14, 15 and 16, the League will take up highway betterment actively and the offices of Secretary Chapman of the League will be headquarters for the good roads movement.

Through its ramifications through out the state, the League will learn public sentiment on the subject of good roads and strive to aid the various sections. Secretary Chapman of the League believes the subject touches very closely the welfare of the farmer. He hopes to bring together the various interests so they willworkinharmony. First, he will learn the wishes of the people in the matter and do nothing not thoroughly representative of public opinion throughout the state.

The railroads, state agricultural college and the business interests of Portland are united on a plan to aid Morrow, Sherman and Gilliam counties in agricultural advancement. A demonstration train will be operated next fall through that section and experts from the state college will explain the possibilities of diversified farming and stockraising in order to build up the soil, although there is no intention to do away with wheat as the principal crop. It is believed, however, that improved methods will conserve moisture in the soil and by growing other things than the single grain, as at present, twocrops can behad in three years instead of two in four years as at present. Seed will be distributed from the train and prizes offered for the best results obtained by farmers.

Portland was visited by an Eastern flax expert the past week, who expressed surprise that more attention is not paid to this crop in Oregon. He praised the quality of the flax he found here as being superior to that found elsewhere, either in this country or abroad and hopes to see the day when a great linen industry will be built up and farmers generally throughout Western Oregon will grow flax with profit.

---

It is claimed there is no dead capital in the poultry business. This is true provided the poultryman keeps everything up to a high state of efficiency. As in any other business there should be nothing that is not paying a profit, however small.

Country School Important.

"Concolidated village and rural schools, bearing three-fourths of the burden of formulating country life education, are the greatest factors in the establichment of virile morality and high ideals of every day life in this country.

"Practical training in the vocations the pupils expect to enter is coming to be recognized as far more profitable than general cultur ture instruction. Concolidation of rural schools permits broader scope of work and co-operative associations, arising from this idea, awaken men to the need of their fellowmen."—Wm. Hayes, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

Believing that mischief cannot thrive in the mind of a child who is actively engaged in hard work and hard play, the trustees of the Boys' and Girls' Aid society of Portland, have put into practice a new method of controlling the young inmates at the Frazer Detention home. At the monthly meeting of the trustees recently, Superintendent Gardner said the manual training quarters had been completed and the boys would be at work at the benches soon. Also the ground is being leveled off for a baseball park, tennis court and croquet ground. The boys and girls will soon be hard at work or hard at play. In the past, idleness has been one of the factors that made discipline difficult.

---

There will be a large representation from the various Central Oregon Commercial clubs at the convention in Prineville, June 30-July 1, when the Central Oregon Development League will be formed. There is keen interest throughout that section. Central Oregon is a new country, yet in the making. It is considerdimporetant that right steps be taken and the new league will be of great benefit along these lines.

---

Salem's annual cherry fair has been set on July 6, 7 and 8, and promises to be bigger and better than ever. Portland people are taking much interest in the event and a special excursion will be run from this city, taking prominent business men to the fair. Big parades will be features of the event.

The Value of a Cow.

The true value of a good cow is hard to estimate. If one has patience to wait for results and could start the foundation dairy herd with one cow it would not be many years until a choice herd could be developed. The following taken from the West Coast illustrates this:

It is a rare cow that will earn $315 per year, but George Winsak, of Rainsford, Mont., has a cow that has had 23 calves. The cow is a good milker and makes lots of butter, and the calves have been profitable ones. The cow is agrade Shorthorn and is a good feeder as might be expected from such a record. The cow has in 19 years earned her owner over $6000 gross. He has 40 head of cattle descended from this cow. It would be pretty hard to say how much such a cow is worth, but these facts indicate the real value of a good healthy, vigorous cow.—G. J. Taylor in Chehalis Co. Vidette.

They Were Very Grateful.

Wilson Barrett once had a lot of workmen redecorating his private residence, and, thinking to give them a treat, he asked them if after work one evening they would all like to have seats to come and see him play in "The Lights o' London" at the Princess'. They said they didn't mind if they did, and, being given complimentary tickets, all went to witness on a Saturday night their employer's production. At the end of the week Barrett's eye caught sight on the pay sheet of an item against each workman's name, which read: "Saturday night. Four hours' overtime at Princess' theater, 8 shillings."

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

Edited by Rev. F. M. Burtch.

"Who's Who, and Why," isthe heading of a department in one of our great periodicals. It suggests a question which every man ought at times to ask himself, and every woman to ask herself, viz: When it comes to doing things that ought to be done, who's who? Who ought to do them?

Wrongs arise from our system of government and the air is nearly blue with cries of 'Frauds!' 'Graft-and improvements are needed in towns and menput their heads together and get excited as they tell each other what ought to be done. Something is the matter with the church, so half the members cease attending its services and the other half hold 'gossiping bees' to rehearse the wrongs and console each other with the thought that things will never improve because 'they' do this, and that.

Who is to blame for all of it, and why is going to mend matters who is going to mend matters? The 'frauds, "grafters' and 'robbers' where did they come from? Who put them in power and who will put them out? How soon will the town get its needed reforming and improving if men—just talk? When will the church fulfill its mission so long as all the work and burden bearing is left to the other fellow? We are ever learning, but it seems to take us a long time to grasp the fact that a government is made up of individuals. So is the town. Likewise the church or any other organization. The work, the reforming, the accomplishing will have to be met by the individual, or be forever undone. The efficiency and character of church, school district, town, state or national government will be no greater than the efficiency and character of the individuals who compose it.

We don't like the liquorbusiness, don't believe in it, don't want it. We are at least two, to everyone, who does want it, but it still exists. Why? Just because too many are leaving the agitating and fighting and voting to the other fellow. It is easier to crawl from under our responsibility, than it is to bear it, but we shall not be true to our traditions if we shirk our task for the American manhood of the past has had a way of facing the hard thing, when he believed in it, and of hewing his way through.

"They talk of the man behind the gun,
And the deadly work that he has done;
But much more deadly work, by far,
Is done by the fellow behind the bar.
They talk of the man behind the gun—
Yet only in battle his work is done;
But never ceases, in peace or war,
The work of the man behind the bar."
