"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the post office at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Those Oregon communities that had no delegates in attendance at the recent session of the Oregon Development League at Astoria suffered a distinct loss, for the valuable addresses and discussions would have well repaid anyone for the time spent in attending. The leaguers got down to serious business; there was no froth nor wasted energy.

From the very first day the convention was notable for the valuable addresses presented. Every one was full of suggestions that will play an important part in the future policy of the League. Men of the greatest eminence in their various lines of activity were on the program. James J. Hill, Theodore B. Wilcox, Judge Robert S. Lovett, and others of like large caliber were heard from, while the community boosters of the various sections came prepared to get the most out of the meeting by being on hand with good suggestions and new ideas.

The slogan of the convention was "Get Together," along all the lines of co-operative effort that promise to accomplish so much for the Northwest. The placing of new arrivals on the soil, preparation for reaping the benefits to follow the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915, and Good Roads were some of the vital topics thoroughly discussed. La Grande will get the next convention and every live commercial organization in the state should look forward to it and have a bigger attendance next time.

The value of experimental farms to this state is shown in a striking way by the results attained by the station in Morrow county, maintained by the Oregon Agricultural college. Wheat grown on this farm by scientific dry farming methods went 22.6 bushels per acre, while grain on adjoining land, farmed under the old way, was either too poor to cut or yielded only ten or twelve bushels an acre. Other crops grown show a corresponding gain when treated scientifically.

The Shaniko-Antelope district will make a good exhibit of its agricultural products at The Dalles, where it will be maintained permanently, so that newcomers will see what opportunities there are for farmers and fruitgrowers. Excellent specimens for the exhibit are now being gathered.

Improved fast freight service has been provided by the railroads from Oregon orchards to the East that will, no doubt, facilitate the marketing of the year's crop. The schedule provides for an eight and nine-day service from the leading districts to Chicago and the special fruit cars will leave Portland daily, making efforts to have President

The Portland Commercial club is making efforts to have President Taft include Oregon in his western trip this year when he comes to the coast to break ground for the Panama-Pacific exposition. An invitation was sent to him by wire to this effect and he replied he would give the matter consideration when his literary is made up.

Medford will give the use of 360 acres of land to a capable stockman who will raise goats. The Southern Oregon city wants to build up that district as a goat center, for it is well adapted to these sturdy animals that are so valuable in clearing brush land and making it ready for orchards.

The August number of Better Fruit contains a splendid article by the editor, E. H. Shepard, of Hood River on "Associations and how to Organize Them," as well as a comprehensive plan by Larned B. Meachem of Walla Walla on the co-operative central marketing agency.

"So, e times," said Plodding Pete, "I'm tempted to map out a route that'll take me to them there Arctic regions."

"The climate's no good," ventured Meandering Mike.

"No, but your legs git a rest. None o' them Eskimos's lookin' far farm hand."—Washington Star.

"Some philosopher says there's always a right way and a wrong way of doing a thing."

"I wonder if he ever tried to fall down stairs the right way."—Judge

An incident occurred in my Sunda school class today which is worthy of being. We came to the passage, "Be ware of false prophets," and I asked my boys if they could tell me what a false prophet was. One boy, fourteen years old, said, "Yes—the west er man."

CLACKAMAS COUNTY NEWS.

A contest is being planned by County Superintendent Gary and will be pulled off next March, between the schools of Clackamas county. The contest will be along the lines of arithmetic and spelling and will be on a percentage basis. Real estate to the value of $300 has been offered by one firm to the winning school.

Theodore F. Stenberg, who has been instructor in Hill Military Academy at Portland for the last year, has been elected principal of the Oregon City high schools.

The Mt. Hood depot which has been under process of construction for several weeks is nearing completion and it is rumored that there will be some special doings. Announcement of which will probably be made later.

Pretty Wedding at Sandy

A very pretty wedding took place Monday, Aug. 21 at 3:30 at St. Michel's church of Sandy, Oregon, when Miss Alice E. Haley became the bride of William Serein of Portland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. Thomas Meyer of Portland. The bride was beautifully attired in white, carrying white carnations.

Miss Bertha Albel acted as maid of honor and wore a white gown, also carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The groom was attended by Wm. Haley, brother of the bride. The wedding march and the choir was led by Miss Mahoney. The church was tastefully decorated with maidenhair ferns. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple and guests went to the home of the bride, where an elaborate dinner was served. The young couple left that evening for a short honeymoon at the beach. They will make their home in Portland after Sept. 1st. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life.

Farmers Organize at Gresham

The meeting of the Gresham local of the Farmers' Society of Equity was held in Metzger's hall last Saturday afternoon according to announcement. Quite a large number of farmers were present and the organization was perfected with the following officers who will hold office until the first of January: M. O. Nelson, president; H. L. Ball, vice president, and A. R. Lyman, secretary and treasurer. Meetings will be held the first Saturday in each month.

About 35 men signed the constitution but many others have signified their intention of joining soon. Mrs. Carley, Northwestern organizer, was present and gave a splendid talk on the work and its aims.

The Modern Blacksmith.

Under a costly canopy
The village blacksmith sits;
Before him is a touring car
Broken to little bits,
And the owner, and the chauffeur, too
Have almost lost their wits.

The village blacksmith smiles with glee
As he lights his fat cigar,
He tells his helpers what to do
To straighten up the car,
And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Stand humbly where they are.

The village blacksmith puffs his pipe
And smiles a smile of cheer
He while his helpers pump the tire
And monkey with the gear—
And the owner, and the chauffeur, too,
Stand reverently near.

Behind the village blacksmith is
The portal of his shop;
Tall and episveerylarge in size,
With a tiled roof on top—
And the owner and the chauffeur,
As it were glad to stop.

The children going home from school
Look in at the open door;
They like to see him make his bills
And hear the owners roar.
And the chauffeurs weep as they declare
They ne'er paid that before.

He goes each morning to the bank
And salts away his cash;
A high silk hat and long frock coat
Help him to cut adash—
But the owner, and the chauffeur,
Their teeth all vainly gnash.

The chestnut tree long since has died,
The smith does not repine;
His humble shop has grown into
A building big and fine,
And it bears "Garage" above the door
On a huge electric sign.

THINGS NEW AND OLD.

"C. H. Spurgeon once said that a youth was leaving his aunt's house after a visit, when, finding it beginning to rain, he caught up an umbrella that was snugly placed in a corner, and was proceeding to open it, when the old lady, who for the first time observed his movement, sprang towards him, exclaiming:

"No, no; that you never shall! I have had that umbrella twenty-three years, and it has never been wet yet; and I'm sure it shan't be wetted now."

Painting the story with a moral, Mr. Spurgeon said that he feared some folk's religion is of the same quality, none the worse for wear. It is a respectable article, to be looked at, but it must not be dampened in the showers of daily life. It stands in a corner, to be used in case of serious illness or death, but it is not meant for common occasions. We are suspicious that the twenty-three year old gingham was gone at the seams, and if it had been unfurled it would have looked like a sieve. At any rate, we are sure that this is the case with the hoarded-up religion which has answered no useful turn in a man's life."

Knew It Was Heaven.

The druggist approached the celestial gate. St. Peter opened the portal for him and bade him enter and join the heavenly choir.

"Not so fast," the compounder of pills admonished. "Before I go in there I want to ask a few questions. Have you any city directories in Paradise?"

"No," replied St. Peter.

"Any remedies for growing hair on bald heads and door knobs?"

"None."

"Any soda fountains?"

"We don't know what they are."

"Do you sell stamps?"

"We don't use them here."

"And last, but not least, have you any telephones?"

"We have not."

"Then I'll go in, for I guess this is heaven, all right, all right."

Sheep Notes

Sheep are the greatest fertilizers of all the stock.

The old saying that the hoof of the sheep is golden is true enough. Sheep return to the soil 80 per cent of fertility from the food eaten.

The sheep bites close, and will eat weeds down to the roots.

The flock should have salt constantly before it in the pasture, so the sheep can help themselves to it when they crave it.

Hurdle the lambs on the rape patch to push their growth.

Every farmer, whether he has a dozen sheep or 100, should have a good root patch. It pays.

White turnips can be raised at a cost of about $1 a ton.

The flock should be cared for in a systematic way to make it pay well. A feast and a famine will spoil the fiber of the wool.

A flock that is poorly cared for shows wool of weak, uneven fibre, while the wool of a healthy, well-fed flock is clean, strong and even.

Turn off the old ewes before the cold weather.

Now is a good time to fatten them up quickly.—Farm Journal.

The Outlook has made special arrangements so it can offer the best inducements possible to persons who wish to take both city daily and the paper.

Profits in Poultry Raising

The profits are there, and the profits are big, but to get them you need expert advice. You cannot learn from a book. You must have a teacher. The right way is to be guided by a teacher who has already "made good." The International Correspondence Schools offer in their course of instruction the International Correspondence School of Poultry Raising. The course covers everything on poultry raising, from eggs to the market. It doesn't matter how few or how many you start with, (ONE is the only way) you can keep those profits coming your way. Try raising right this way, then there's no failure—no halfway success—no loss of success. For free descriptive circular, write to:
