"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the post office at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

THE TRAVEL HABIT.

The development of the present extensive facilities for travel has taken place within the memory of many now living. The opening of the great transcontinental lines is of comparatively recent date. Now there are five great lines carrying their thousands of passengers day after day between the great East and the growing West.

The Americans are getting the travel habit. For business or pleasure, for work or recreation, for study or sightseeing, they are always on the move, and the perfecting and cheapening of other means of travel, as the automobile, has not lessened but rather increased the travel by street car and railroad. In this case it is a matter of supply and demand and these have kept even pace. It is probable the amount of railroad travel in this country during the past ten years has increased at the rate of ten per cent a year.

In 1915, possibly in 1914, the Panama canal will be open for ocean travel.

It is a safe prediction that this great event, toward which all the world is now looking, will tend greatly to increase travel both by rail and boat. It will not only increase transcontinental traffic by rail but will develop a river and ocean travel which has hitherto not been dreamed of.

Already capitalists of the Mississippi Valley have subscribed $3,000,000 to build a fleet of the highest type of ships for a new and modern merchant marine. The state of Louisiana will exempt them from taxation for fifteen years. To visit South American points, or take an ocean trip from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific coast will become popular.

We predict that hundreds of journeys, long or short, by rail and boat, will become possible and popular, by the opening of the Panama canal and a new era of travel will begin.

For water systems, implements, hay presses, vehicles of all description, see E. E. Marshall, Congdon Hotel, Gresham, phone 571.

Send Us Your Name

We are anxious at this season of the year to increase our subscription list. We already have a good sized list and have sent many sample copies into various sections of the county.

Most of the people living east of Portland in Multnomah and northern Clackamas counties we feel quite certain have become more or less familiar with the Outlook. To our readers we would say, if you will furnish us the names and correct address of any who have not seen it we will gladly send them a sample copy. We want to familiarize every home in this locality with the Outlook and make it a name known in every household.

We also want subscribers and we believe that as people know us and our paper better we shall receive many new additions to our list. It is our aim to make this paper better all the time and to make it the people's paper. Our list is gradual, nearing the 1000 mark and we want to see it go away beyond that mark in the next thirty days. So we ask our readers and friends to help us what they can, most of our correspondents are authorized to take subscriptions.

Hand in your $1.50 to any of them and rest assured that it will reach this office. If you don't get the paper let us know. We respectfully solicit the patronage of every household.

Urging the governors of all the states to help along the "See America First" movement, Governor West has addressed a letter to them, calling their attention to the beauties of the Pacific Northwest and making an urgent appeal to do everything possible to stay the tide of foreign travel and turn it to the Pacific coast. Governor West calls attention to the fact that this tendency on the part of Americans is a great economic loss to the country and should be combatted on every possible occasion. He estimates that $3,000,000 is spent abroad every season by Americans that should be used in seeing their own country instead. The governor calls attention to the big convention called for Baltimore January 22-27, 1912, when the "See-America-First" movement will be discussed and asks that each state send a big delegation.

Crook county will have a big fair and livestock show lasting from October 11 to 14. Preparations to gather a comprehensive exhibit of the products of central Oregon for the show have already started and each of the four largest cities of the county, Prineville, Bend, Redmond and Madras, will have one day at the fair. The exhibits to be shown will be sent to Chicago and New York after the fair closes for exhibition at the big land shows next winter.

Thanksgiving day will this year come on the 30th day of November, which is the fifth Thursday. It was thought by some it ought to be on the 23rd, or fourth Thursday in the month, but President Taft has settled the doubt. Religious organizations, newspapers and college football teams can now make their plans.

Poultry Notes.

The moulting season is nearly, if not quite with us again, which suggests many important duties in connection with the poultry yards. The yards should be spaded or plowed and seeded with rye and wheat. This will not only provide green feed for the fowls, but becomes necessary for sanitary reasons as well.

Now is the time to condition and dispense of such laying stock as is not desirable to carry over another year. Cull out the poorest and keep only the best layers to be used in the breeding pens. The same is regarding the males, which should be kept separate from the hens until the breeding season approaches.

It is very important that the fowls while in their meals should not be neglected, as they too often are. At this time the birds require a liberal supply of such feeds as are rich in feather making material with their regular ration, such as sunflower seeds, proteina or linseed meal, or milk.

How to best dispose of the young cockerels is quite a problem with birds of good quality, the choicest many in case they are pure bred ones can often be sold for a good price for breeding purposes. The others should be fattened by a few days special feeding and sold on the market or to the family trade, at the earliest moment. This can be done by confining the birds in a small run, with only a few birds together and feeding a mash composed of about equal parts wheat middlings, corn or barley meal, and ground oats—adding about ten per cent of linseed meal or proteina. It is very desirable that the mash be wet with sour milk to a consistency that it will bearly pour. What is left after a few minutes feeding, must be removed and no food left within their reach for another three hours. Then feed again in the same way. Plan for early morning and very late evening feeding. In ten days the birds should be conditioned and ready for market, when they should be disposed of without delay.—H. L. Blanchard, ass't Supt. N. W. Experiment Station.

Don't forget Sunday, the Congdon Hotel Cafe, Gresham, Oregon.

Poultry Pointers.

If you love poultry, possess a good stock of perseverance and common sense, don't hesitate to undertake the work—either for pleasure or for profit.

Strong and vigorous stock always lay at the foundation of every success with poultry—the absence of which, from whatsoever cause, will prove disastrous.

See that the parent stock are all that can be desired in this respect.

Do not permit vermin to infest the coops and especially the nests of the setting hen.

Thoroughly disinfect the incubator and brooder before using.

Install the incubator in a well ventilated room of even temperature. Each machine has the rules for operating same. Follow them.

Remember that temperature is of greater importance than feed for the first few days of the chick's life.

Do not feed the chicks anything until the beginning of the third day. Then give them a little sand to pick in, with a little hard boiled egg and dry bread crumbs. Commercial chick feed will be good after a day or two, and after a week or so, cracked wheat, steel cut oats and cracked corn, in about equal parts make a good combination, and should be scattered in chaff or litter, that the chicks may scratch for it. Be sure and not omit the green feed, and pure water.

It is very desirable that the weaklings die early.

Chickens do not like the darkness, but always enjoy the sunlight.

All coops must be sanitary, and therefore must be constantly supplied with good pure air—both day and night—without draughts. Pure oxygen is equal in importance to the grain feed.

The open front laying house brings the most satisfactory results, because of the oxygen thus supplied. Don't forget that the sun is the great sanitary agent.

Use judgment in feeding, and supply a variety.

Wet mashes are becoming less and less used.

Dry feeds are safer and better for the developing pullet, as well as for the laying hen.

The pullets should be kept growing and developing.

The hens must be well fed, upon sound and wholesome feeds.

The light breeds will require from 6 1/2 to 7 1/2 pounds of feed, exclusive of the green stuff—per month, while the heavy breeds each need from one to two pounds additional.

See to it without fail, that a good bath is provided, especially for the summer months, for the vermin must be kept in check.

Carefully study the markets, that the products from the pens may be disposed of to the best advantage.

Develop a system in your work and regularly adhere to same—the and religiously adhere to same.

Fifty thousand bad eggs have been condemned in Kansas City. Many of these eggs are being shipped to Chicago where an attempt will be made to sell them as storage stock during the period of high prices in the winter months.

The Outlook has made special arrangements so it can offer the best inducements possible to persons who wish to take both city daily and the paper.

Profits in Poultry Raising

The profits are there, and the profits are great; but to get them you must apply right methods. You cannot learn from a book. Rule-of-thumb methods take time and often end disastrously. The right way is to be guided by poultry experts who have already "made good." That is the kind of instruction the International Correspondence Schools offer in their course of 21 home lessons in poultry raising. The course covers everything on poultry raising, from eggs to profits. It doesn't matter how few or how many birds you start with, this is the only true way to do it and make it pay from the word "go."

The value of this course to you is beyond estimation. You soon get the price back, and more, in increased profits, and the knowledge that will keep those profits coming your way. Start poultry raising right this way, then there'll be no failure—no halfway success—but the greatest success. For free descriptive circular, write the
