GOVERNMENT CAMP

On account of the Portland and Oregon City schools beginning the 11th of September many families are returning to their homes this week. Among them the Kelleys and Canfields.

From thirty to forty campers can be seen at the Summit house now. Each day from two to three go out while that many or more come in. The campers here are all from Eastern Oregon, coming in for huckleberries. In spite of the fact that berries are scarce, from fifty to one hundred gallons are being taken out each day and it is estimated that over a thousand gallons will be picked this year. The blackberry patches, which would have provided many hundred gallons of berries were nearly all dried up before the people found them, they being earlier than usual this season.
