GOOD ROADS

Lents Grange at a recent meeting declared itself in favor of road and market centers in all parts of the state. The grange is taking a strong stand against the building of state highways or boulevards for tourists and interstate travel. The good roads agitation is on and will not down. The next legislature will probably know what the people want.

Good roads are needed in all parts of the state. One faction, presumably the moneyed men and automobilists, want great trunk roads built, in part by state aid, through the length and breadth of the state. Another faction, in the main led by the grange, oppose the building of trunk lines of road and want good roads radiating from the market centers to the producers.

Each is working to secure the development which will aid him most at the present time. Each plan has much to commend it and some grounds for opposition. The grange plan has perhaps most to commend it at present. It is a workable plan and means an enlarged effort, with state or county aid, to construct good roads in each locality, especially roads leading to market places.

But why not combine both plans? Why not work to both ends? It seems to us this is what is being done at present in Multnomah and Hood River counties. While each has excellent roads radiating from its principal market centers, each is building its part of a trunk road between centers.

The men who own the automobiles are usually the men of means and property. It may be city property but it pays its share of the taxes.

The automobiles are helping the farmers get better roads. While their immediate interests are slightly different, the tourist, the business man, the city dweller, cannot afford to ignore the needs of the producer in the out of the way country places, neither can the granger, the farmer, the backwoodsman afford to ignore the demand of his more prosperous fellow who has more to spend and seeks a wider enjoyment.

It has been decided to hold the annual Apple show which opens in Portland, November 15, in the Yeon building. The entire basement will be used besides several rooms on the first and second floors.

The cross-continent flight of Aviator C. P. Fowler, who has now reached points in Texas, is being watched with much interest. He has covered about 2000 miles and it is hoped he will reach his destination, the Pacific coast. He started about a month ago from New Jersey.

The Outlook will visit a relative or friend for you 104 times during the year, brim full of news. Isn't that worth something to you?

Everything Right.

Implements, Wagons and Buggies Hessel sell are manufactured of picked material, wood and steel parts, and have acknowledged supremacy of others. Superior Drills, Clipper Steel Plows, spike tooth and disc harrows. Old Hickory wagons, Michigan buggies and everything in the implement line to be sold at right prices. SUGGESTIONS FOR BETTERING FAIR

Many suggestions have been coming in to this paper and have been made to others in response to the Outlook's request for suggestions on features that would improve the fair.

A lady in Gresham thinks there should be seats scattered through the grove and on the grounds so that those who desired could rest themselves and not have to be on their feet all the time or sit on the ground.

A lady wants a ladies' rest room in a convenient place in the pavilion where mothers can go with their babies or where a lady can retire for seclusion or rest.

A man who is close to the conduct of affairs thinks it would be better to have all the exhibits on the ground floor.

It is thought by some that the Art department has little place in an agricultural fair, that it is not a drawing feature in itself, but an expense and could be dispensed with and the space used in some other way to better advantage.

All are agreed that a revision of the premium list and its early publication would be a great aid to the exhibitors.

It was shown that larger and better quarters must be provided for the livestock.

There is an almost unanimous opinion that the giving of only 50 per cent of the prize in case there is no competition is unjust and a hindrance to the fair. Some fine exhibits were withdrawn after being on the grounds on this account. It is not the exhibitors fault if there is no competition, and as the prizes are small anyway it is felt to be unjust and a discouragement to exhibitors.

Library Notes

The Library Association of Portland has been seeking a new site for many months. Those who visit the central building now on the corner of Seventh and Stark streets appreciate the crowded conditions and the necessity of immediate relief. Arrangements have now been made to dispose of the present property to Mr. John W. Blodgett of Grand Rapids, Mich., for the sum of $400,000 and to purchase from the Ladd estate the property known as the old Multnomah club block by Tenth and Eleventh, Yamhill and Taylor streets. The price of this block was $342,000 and the difference between this and the selling price will pay the rent required for a two years' occupancy of the present building. At the end of that period we are confident that Portland and Multnomah county will have a central building both commodious and beautiful, fitted for all the needs of this large and growing community and so well designed and carefully built that it will be satisfying to every artistic feeling.

The East Portland Branch library will be ready for occupancy about November 15th. This building, the first of the branches built with the money given by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, was designed by Doyle, Patterson & Beach, architects, and promises to have as delightful an exterior as it has a well planned interior.

The plans for the Albina Branch library, to be built on Knott street, between Union and Rodney avenues, are in the hands of Mr. Ellis F. Lawrence and will soon be finished. The Troutdale reading room is anticipating new quarters. The library committee has rented the store Blaser Herman on the main street. This will be remodeled and redecorated and will be a most attractive library and reading room when finished.

Hear Sobieski

Sobieski will lecture at Gresham, Oct. 23, in the Commercial hall.

No words could express the admiration won by Col. Sobieski, one of the grandest men ever created and a lecturer far superior to many on the road. In his lecture on the "Rise and Fall of the Polish Republic," he carried the audience back into the glories of the past. Indeed, his lecture was well worth the price of the admission to the whole Chautauqua.—Cairo Bulletin and Mound City News.
