"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."
Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the post office at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

QUALITIES THAT WIN

Carlyle says: "The race of life has become intense. The runners are treading on each others heels; woe be to him who stops to tie his shoe-strings." The greater the difficulties in the way of successful achievements, the more do men require this element of conquest.

Pity the young man whose foot-falls do not chime with the battle cry "Excelsior!" Earnestness will compensate the absence of many of other elements of success, it has saved many a humble life from hopeless despondency and made it brilliant with success.

One of the greatest achievements of Michael Angelo was wrought when he was old and under the pressure of a cruel necessity. The Pope decreed that he should paint the vast and vaulted ceiling of the Sistine Chapel, at Rome, in fresco—the art of which he knew nothing. The Pope refused to release him. His reputation was at stake. From the best Florentine fresco painters he learned the difficult art.

He then shut himself up in the chapel until the vastness of it was impressed upon his soul. For months the old man continued with his work, digging the colors from the ground and mixing them with his own hand and made the immensity of the chapel teem with his life. Artists have stood in mute contemplation before these frescoes, let fall their arms in astonishment, and shaking their heads in desperation, said: "Never can we copy this." There was the force of mighty genius in that effort, but more than all, it was the triumph of an earnest soul.

Be sure you are right, then throw all the energy of your soul into every thing that is worthy.

Arouse yourself. Get a consciousness of your forces. Begin to drive yourself until you will arouse all your sources of ability. Without earnestness in your work you have lost before you start. Of course, there are limits which no amount of earnestness can overcome, no amount of sun-staring can ever make an eagle out of a crow.

Don't flinch, flounder or fall. Don't say you can't—can't has never done anything; man's "I will" has wrought miracles.

Don't Micaewber-like, wait for something to turn up—turn up something yourself. The lazy man says, "all things come to him who waits"; the man in earnest has all things come his way who hustles while he waits.

You have the power to succeed within yourself. The earnest spirit may be defeated, but it is up and at it again. Whipping only made Ole Bull's childhood devotion to his violin more absorbing.

Fulton would never have pushed the Clermont up the Hudson if he had not been in earnest. It was Edison in earnest that charmed electricity to the use of man. It was Bell's earnestness which made the world a whispering gallery. Earnestness will never take the place of genius, but it may arouse it into action and reveal your masterful power.

Don't stand about with arms akimbo, set until occasion tells you what to do. Hold your ground and push hard. If you want to have your task marked out you will die and leave your errand unfulfilled.—Selected.

EGG PRODUCTION TESTS

Interesting tests for egg laying have been conducted at the Oregon Agricultural college by John H. Mack, a special poultry student from Portland.

In these tests single-comb white Leghorns were used, five pullets and a cockerel being given a run of but 10x10 feet, in which space was the house, so that they were in close confinement. The house was a 3x3 1/2 foot brooder coop rearranged for their use. Half was used for roosting quarters and half for a scratching shed.

This scratching shed was kept well bedded with straw about eight inches deep, and a large part of the whole grain given the fowls was fed here, though some was fed in the yard to induce the fowls to scratch outside when the weather permitted. The front of the house consisted of two doors which were either wide open or partly so even in the coldest winter weather. No ill effects were noticed, and the egg record and general vitality of the flock showed that they were benefitted by more nearly natural conditions, although the cold sometimes seemed extreme for them.

As the soil was rather heavy, several inches of sawdust were spread on the ground, so that the chickens did not track in cold, wet mud, and had a good scratching place which dried rapidly after a rain.

A dry mash was fed them in hoppers, and whole grain, oats in the morning and wheat in the afternoon, strewn in the litter. The fowls ate only about one-third as much oats as wheat, but as there were oats and barley in the mash, they probably made up deficiencies there. The mash, which was fed dry and kept constantly before them, consisted of two parts of bran to one of ground corn and one of ground oats and beef scray of wyardhm faypduodarth barley. Other hoppers to which they had access all the time held beef scrap, charcoal, grit and ground shell. A good supply of kale was kept before them to pick at, and good, fresh water was always within easy reach.

They were all apparently in good health throughout the experiment, but on the last day the pullet numbered twowas found dead in the pen without apparent cause, though she had been laying up of that day.

The following record of the amount and cost of the feed from November to May is interesting in the light of the production records: 158 pounds of wheat, $2.22; 66 1/2 pounds, of oats, 88 cents; 13 pounds of bran 15 cents; 7 1/2 pounds of ground oats and barley, 10 1/2 cents; nine pounds of beef scrap, 32 1/2 cts; 8 pounds of charcoal, 4 1/2 cents; 5 1/2 pounds of grit, 5 1/2 cents; 5 1/2 pounds of shell, 5 1/2 cents; 5 1/2 pounds of ground corn, 8 1/2 cents; total cost, $3.92 1/4.

Thus it is seen that the total expenditure for the 5 pullets and the cockerel was but $3.92 1/4, while the income from the eggs was $12.66, leaving a profit, if the work in caring for the chickens is not counted, of $8.74.

The student self-government council at the Oregon Agricultural college has suspended for the rest of the year Fred F. Glen, Portland, and Mont Oliver, Seattle, Washington, for participation in the hazing of freshman. Three others, implicated to a less degree, were John F. Forbes, Portland, Freeman Mason, Pasadena, Calif., and Lester T. Hutt, Yamhill, who were reinstated upon their making a manly public apology and a promise to support the rules which the students have to make for their own guidance. Chester Dickey of Molalla, president of the sophomore class, read before the student convocation resolutions drawn up by the class deploring the hazing incident, disclaiming class support of the participants, and offering allegiance to the council and to the student laws.

Good Results from Postal Savings Banks.

Even the Postal Savings Bank has its influence for the upbuilding of the moral life in a community. According to the Postmasters' Advocate the only unfavorable criticism thus far against the system has come from certain mining town saloon keepers whose business seems to be unfavorably affected by the practice the miners are adopting of putting their surplus earnings in the Postal Savings Banks. Formerly such savings, if deposited at all, were put in the local commercial banks, but this did not greatly deter their being expended, for the miners, after having paid out the ready cash in their pockets, could make further payments to the saloon keepers by check. Postal Savings accounts can not be drawn against by check and, furthermore, no money can be withdrawn from such accounts except in the usual day time postoffice hours. It thus happens that the evening business of the saloon has been considerably diminished by this new branch of the Postal Service, which, according to Postmaster General Hitchcock, is proving to be an important influence on the morals of the communities in which established.

It is estimated by Prof. E. F. Ayers, highway construction expert at the Oregon Agricultural college, that an expenditure of $80,000 is necessary for the "good roads" work proposed between Salem and Portland. He has recently returned from an inspection of the road to be improved, on which he accompanied the Hon. G. A. Rogers, chairman of the State Highway Commission, of which Judge Dimmick and C. T. Prall of Multnomah are the other members. The trip had as its main purpose a study of the necessary drainage work. The distribution of crushed rock along the road will begin at once, but the regular construction work will not commence until spring. The road parallels the Southern Pacific railroad all the way on the west side of the river. Drainage work and surfacing, Prof. Ayers says, is to be begun in the near future.

When Taft was in San Francisco two weeks ago he broke the ground for the Panama exposition which is to be held in 1915. It is planned to make this the greatest exposition ever held. The opening of the Panama canal will open a new era in world commerce on the greatest of oceans. All Pacific coast cities will be benefitted by the canal and incidentally by the exposition.

If any little word of mine
May make a life the brighter;
If any little song of mine,
May make a heart the lighter,
God help me speak the little word,
And take my bit of singing,
And drop it in a lonely vale,
To set the echoes ringing.

If any little love of mine,
May make a life the sweeter;
If any little care of mine,
May make a friend's the fleetier,
If any lift of mine may ease,
The burden of another
God give me love, and care, and strength,
To help my toiling brother."

Profits in Poultry Raising

The profits are there, and the profits are great; but to get them you must apply right methods. You cannot learn from a book. Rules-of-thumb methods take time and often do disastrously. The right way is to be guided by poultry experts who have already "made good." That is the kind of instruction the International Correspondence Schools offer in their course of 11 hours lessons in poultry raising. The course covers everything on poultry raising, from eggs to profits. It doesn't matter how few or how many birds you start with, this is the only true way to do it and make it pay from the word "on." The value of this course to you is beyond estimation. You soon get the price back, and more, by increased profits, and the knowledge that will keep those profits coming. Four way, start poultry raising right, this way, then there'll be no failure—no halfway success—but the greatest success. For free descriptive circulars, write the
