Gypsy Smith Meetings Will Attract

A fence on the edge of a precipice is better than a hospital at the bottom of it.—Gypsy Smith.

"Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden"

The Gypsy Smith meetings will begin in Portland next Friday and continue till the 27th. Preparation for the meetings has been in progress for a long time. A great tabernacle has been built at Eighteenth and East Taylor which will seat 5,000. A choir of 1,000 can be accommodated, and such a choir has been practicing for the event.

As the cost has been great, the effort is to be intense. The time is short. The one great business of reformation of character and life is to be made as urgent as prayers and earnest appeals can make it.

The influence of the meetings should be far-reaching and prominent in results. A community such as Gresham should go in for its full share. The electric cars run conveniently. It is hoped that many will take advantage of this opportunity to hear one of the world's greatest evangelists and come into closer touch with the world's greatest teacher.

Interurban Development.

Winter cannot stop the onward march of the interurban trolleys. The Oregon Electric is pushing its line up the Willamette Valley from Salem to Eugene and construction work will proceed steadily until next summer, when it is expected to complete the road. This road will open up various sections of the valley now at a distance from railways and will help in increasing population on farms by bringing about more intensive cultivation and the cutting up of large holdings.

Horticultural Program.

An interesting program has been arranged for the annual exhibit of the Oregon Horticultural society, November 15-17, which will be held in the Yeon building, Portland. Discussion of the many phases of fruit growing by experts in their various lines will be big features of the coming meeting, each day having strong attractions. Not only will theory be developed in these talks but the result of scientific practice will be shown in the fine exhibits of apples to be on display.

Rural mail delivery is here to stay and the government should in all fairness make the pay high enough to provide first class horse feed. The suggestion applies as well to the city carrier who uses an animal and finds he needs two horses for a change. The man who works for Uncle Sam should be the best-paid man on earth.—Oregonian.

Maine is constitutionally "dry" again today as the result of a decision by Governor Plaisted and his council to accept corrections in the official returns from four towns in last September's election, which change the majority from wet to dry.

Pleasant Home

The drama, entitled "A Cheerful Liar," will be given Saturday evening, Nov. 11, in the Grange hall. As this is for the benefit of the sidewalk that is being built from the town to the depot, it is hoped that there will be a large attendance. S. J. Newsome, who is directing the play, and the others taking part, have put forth every effort to make the drama a success.

Friends of F. Haraguchi are rejoicing with him over the birth of a baby boy last Friday. This is the first boy in the family, the other two being girls. The older girl was not brought to America with her parents, having stayed with her grandma, Mrs. Haraguchi and the baby are doing nicely.

Mrs. P. H. Rook spent Friday and Saturday of last week in Portland with relatives.

Arriana Hillyard went to Hood River Sunday where she visited Miss Wilma Shriner and reports that Miss Shriner's health is much better after going to Hood River.

Mrs. Lola Lee, a trained nurse is now caring for the Trimble triplets. At last reports all of them were very weak, but the mother is doing nicely. It is sincerely hoped that all of the babies can be saved. Edith Helm of Sandy is also at the Trimble home.

Mr. Woodberry, private secretary for E. R. Ernsberger, of the Mt. Hood railway, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Newsome.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Kellogg have returned from Portland where they attended the funeral of Mr. Kellogg's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Breeden went to Montavilla Thursday morning to spend a few days with Mr. Breeden's sister.

Mrs. Alfred Bell has returned from Gresham where she spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. May. After visiting a week in Portland with relatives and friends, Miss Irene Douglass is again at home.

Friends here are sorrowful over the death of C. E. Fritz of Melrose. Mr. Fritz was a member of the Orient Grange here and was well known, having lived near here for many years.

Burt Cline went to Portland on business Tuesday.

It was a great surprise to have a snowfall Thursday morning, but the small boys were disappointed because it melted so quickly. However, it is so cold that there will probably be a heavy snowfall soon which will last.

Queer Weather Conditions

The weather calendar was reversed this fall, when our usual October weather conditions were experienced during the month following August, said W. L. Powers, the weather man at Oregon Agricultural college, in speaking of his October report just out. This delayed the September weather which we have been enjoying during the month just passed. Rains which occurred during September replenished the supply of soil moisture rendered the ground more easily tillable, while the extended spell of good weather following has made possible a large amount of fall plowing and seeding.

The rainfall during October was 1.33 inches, which is 1.61 inches below normal, as light as it has been in any corresponding month in the past 22 years. The total rainfall to date, however, is 1.38 inches in excess of the normal for the rainfall for the year. The highest temperature was 75, and the lowest 27, while the monthly mean was 51.2 degrees, or 1.4 degrees below normal. There were 15 clear days, 8 partly cloudy, and 8 cloudy days. Rain fell on 10 different days.

The captains of finance, who visited the Rose City during the Lewis & Clark fair in 1905, saw that rail, water, sea and land met at Portland. Portland has the best railroad facilities of any city in the United States today, and her harbor—unaffected by tides—is the best fresh water harbor in the world. Nature had much to do in shaping Portland's destinies. As the waters of the Willamette and Columbia rivers find their level in the Portland harbor, so do the great streams of international commerce seek the same level at Portland's door.

How to Take Up Stray Stock

At next to the last session of the legislature a new law was passed regarding the taking up of stock and the running at large of stock in the portion of Multnomah county west of the Sandy river. Although the law has been published in this locality there is still much uncertainty as to its provisions.

In answer to an enquirer from Gresham the Oregonian recently gave the following summary of the provisions of the law:

In Oregon the state law compels land owners to keep all fields and enclosures enclosed "with a fence sufficiently close, composed of posts and rails, posts and palings, posts and poles, posts and planks, palisades or rails loose, laid up in the manner commonly called a woven fence; or turf with a ditch on either side, or wall of rock or stone 4 1/2 feet high."

Several sections cover the question of estrays. It is unlawful for cattle, horses, mules, sheep, goats or hogs to run at large in Multnomah county west of the Sandy river. Any person finding them running at large may take them up, and must immediately notify the owner. If he is not known, and cannot be found, notices must be posted in three conspicuous places near where the animal was found, and a notice inserted in the first issue of the weekly paper published nearest the place of finding the animals. The owner may recover the animals by paying 50 cents a day per head for cattle, horses and mules from the time the animal was found, 25 cents a day per head for sheep, hogs or goats, in addition to the cost of the advertisement. If the owner does not appear in five days after the newspaper publication, the finder may publish in the same paper a notice of sale, which must be between 5 and 10 days after the last notice. The animals found must then be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in hand, the proceeds applied to payment of the charges, and the balance given to the county clerk for payment to the owner. The finder of the animal may be a bidder at the sale.

Rams may not run at large anywhere in Oregon from July 1 to November 1. Bulls over six months and boars over three months may not run at large in Multnomah or Washington counties. Swine may not run at large in Polk, Lake, Multnomah, Washington, Yamhill and Marion counties, and that part of Linn county south of the South Santiam river, and in Oregon City, Oswego, Canemah and Milwaukie precincts of Clackamas county. The penalty is a fine of $10 to $25. Household owners may take up any of these animals, must notify the owners, or if owners cannot be found, post notices in three public places within the precinct where animals are found. Except in the case of rams, after 10 days, if the owner does not appear, the animals may be advertised for sale, and sold by the sheriff or constable. The proceeds are applied as in the case of animals in the western part of Multnomah county.

In the case of rams if the owner appears within 10 days he must pay the finder $6. If the owner appears before November 1, he must pay $6, and 25 cents a week for the care of the ram. If he does not appear before November 1 the ram is forfeited to the finder. This applies only to rams that have strayed and are lost, whose whereabouts are not known by the owner.

In the case of bulls and boars the owner must pay the finder $3. If the owner refuses to take it, the animal is forfeited to the finder. After the posting of notices, if the owner appears, he must pay $5 to the finder, and $1 a week for the animal's keep.

O. A. C. Given $2,000 of Machines.

Gifts of the latest spraying apparatus amounting to some $2,000 in value have been made to the division of horticulture at the Oregon Agricultural College, for the equipment of the new spraying laboratory in the building which is to be completed in time for the short course this winter. This generosity on the part of the manufacturers, together with the completeness and convenience of the arrangements planned by the architect and the horticulture professors will make the laboratory second to none in the country. A half dozen different power spraying pumps are now on the way, and hand pumps and other apparatus will be sent as soon as the laboratory is ready to receive them about January 1st.

Profits in Poultry Raising

The profits are there, and the profits are great; but to get them you must apply right methods. You cannot learn from a book. Rule-of-thumb methods take time and often end disastrously. The right way is to be guided by poultry experts who have already "made good." That is the kind of instruction the International Correspondence Schools offer in their course of 21 lessons in poultry raising. The course covers everything on poultry raising, from eggs to profits. It doesn't matter how few or how many birds you start with, this is the only true way to do it and make it pay from the word "Go."

The value of this course to you is beyond estimation. You soon get the price back, and more, in increased profits, and the knowledge that will keep those profits coming your way. Start poultry raising right this way, then there'll be no failure—no halfway success—but the greatest success. For free descriptive circular, write the
