

COMPLICATED LOCAL CASE

In the case tried last Saturday in Justice Rollin's court, entitled Wostell & Company vs. Foster & Hewitt, judgment was asked for $80 for supplies furnished the Imperial Restaurant after Mrs. Hewitt went in with Mr. H. L. Foster. The principal point of contention was whether Foster & Hewitt had formed a co-partnership as claimed and shown by accounts of the plaintiff. The jury decided for the plaintiff for $80.00 and costs.

This case is somewhat complicated as a judgment for $199.00 plaintiff has already gone by default and a chattel mortgage given by H. L. Foster to Mrs. Hewitt as security for money invested is also in existence and will have to be disposed of. The case may be appealed to the higher court.

Make Farmers of Children.

The new division of extension just organized by the regents of the Oregon Agricultural College will not confine its efforts entirely to the rural districts. In the larger cities of the state a campaign will be started to interest the school children in growing vegetables and flowers, raising fruit and keeping chickens. It is planned to convert many vacant lots into gardens under the care of the children, who will have the advice of the college experts in their work.

A step of state-wide value has just been taken at the Oregon Agricultural College, where a division of extension has been added to the organization, the object being to extend the work of the institution into every section of Oregon. Instruction in farming will be carried into the homes so that people on the farms may carry on such studies as they wish. Farmers' Institutes will be extended and the scope of the work of the college will be much enlarged. One of the most important things contemplated by the new work will be a campaign to have agricultural instruction carried on in the rural and city schools of the state.

The best goat show ever held in this state is promised for January 3, 4 and 5 at Dallas, when the Northwest Angora Goat association will hold its annual meet. Breeders from all over the west expect to have prize animals on display. A feature of the convention will be an Angora venison banquet, when roasted kids will be served. It is thought this will be the first feast of this kind ever held in the Northwest.

DEVELOPMENT FAIRVIEW-WARD

The Portland butchering company's place on the Sandy road which has been one of the largest dairies in the county for years and which is now Rose Park, is causing a large tract of land which was grazing land, to be plowed up and prepared for crops. This land has been pastured by hundreds of head of milk cows for years, hence will be exceedingly productive. John Gantibline is still running a large dairy on a portion of this place along the banks of the Columbia and ere many months will be able to ship his milk to market over the car line along the Sandy road which will run to the center of Rose Park tract. A very pretty and commodious depot is now being built and work on the extension of the Rose City Park car line is in progress which is causing property in that locality to advance in value. Some three or four years ago H. E. Ledbury bought 40 acres at $7,000 and was considered a good price. Last week he was offered $40,000 cash.

Ex-District Attorney John Manning, who has been living the past summer on his place on the Base Line, has tired of country life, sold his stock and farm machinery, rented his place and moved back to Portland. It is said a political bee in his hat was the cause.

A. L. Turner, who spent the past year with his family at Corvallis where the children have been attending school, has moved back to the farm to live. His family will remain at Corvallis during the school year, but will spend the holiday vacation at Fairview. D. T. Turner, who has had charge of his brother's place the past year is now seeking a new location.

Miss Winnie Bennett of Bairdsdale, who has been spending the last two or three months with relatives near Camby, spent the fore part of the week at home. She will remain at Camby until her father moves to Mist, Oregon, where he has bought 20 acres of land. They will move the last of this month.

The anxiety and fear of M. Mult-hauf and family of Columbia View over their son, Tony, have been relieved. They heard of him at San Francisco a few days ago on the return of the ship, that he was assistant engineer on. Arriving in China he was stricken with fever and was in the hospital and on the departure of his ship he was carried aboard and sent to San Francisco where he is slowly recovering. He will spend a month or two in Arizona, recovering his health will return to his father's home here in January or February on a visit.

At the nail driving contest in Davis' hall Thursday evening, Mrs. G. H. Shaw won the prize of six sauce dishes against Mrs. Ira Brooks, Mrs. Hans. Holte and Mrs. Clara Dunbar. The feat was driving 10 8 penny nails to the head without bending, in shortest time.

The Bijou show closed here Saturday evening to a good audience. The evening's entertainment centered on the lady and baby contest which was won by Nielle Huntre as the most popular lady and Lillian Heslin as the handsomest baby. Prizes being a sofa pillow and a baby's gold ring. The contest was a hot one from beginning to finish and several dollars' worth of peanuts were sold in order to vote fast and often.

The Rev. Mr. Province is becoming a favorite as a minister as well as a citizen. In spite of the very stormy night Sunday a large audience was present. Mr. Province is of Adventist faith.

The Albrecht bungalow is nearing completion and will be occupied soon when the family will enjoy one of the nicest homes in Fairview.

A special car will leave Fairview at 5 o'clock next Friday evening for the Gipsy Smith meeting in Portland.

Our government officials, realizing the wonderful future of the Pacific Northwest, have made it possible to shorten the distance from the Atlantic sea-board and the old world, and lower the transportation charges two-thirds, in giving us the Panama canal. This directly affects Portland, for her harbor already accommodates the largest sea-faring craft.

This is a busy world and the busiest people are usually the happiest.

STORM FOLLOWS UP COLD SNAP

A genuine Oregon winter storm set in Sunday, following the cold snap of last Friday and Saturday, and bids fair to continue another day or two.

Showers of rain driven by strong gusts of wind from the southwest have been the prevailing characteristics all along the coast.

As a result of the fierce wind at the mouth of the Columbia, the steam schooner Washington, which left Portland Sunday, was yesterday driven upon the rocks and passengers and crew for a while seemed doomed.

While portions of the East have been shaken by cyclones or caught in the grasp of cold waves, Oregon is having her share of stormy weather which only means that an inch of snow fell out of season, the mercury dropped to seven below freezing, and strong gusts of wind have accompanied the warm rains for a few days.

The Mt. Hood Railway & Power Company has about 400 cords of wood for sale on its right-of-way between Cottrell and Mabery. The company will sell the wood to the highest bidder. For information apply to W. Blonder, Room 712, Lewis Building, Portland, Oregon.

Completing Prune Survey.

The prune survey which is being made by the horticulture experts at the Oregon Agricultural college is now practically completed. Eleven counties are included in the survey, and some 700 growers have been interviewed as to methods and as to the causes of success or failure. The material thus gained will be of inestimable value in the courses of instruction given by the college, both in the regular work and in the winter short course for farmers, which will this year include special instruction for those interested in prune growing.

"The sole intention of this course and of the survey is to find and solve the problems in prune growing as they are presented in this state", said Prof. C. I. Lewis of the horticulture division today in discussing the plans for the winter course. "We wanted to find out just what is the true status of the prune industry, and what problems are of greatest importance and demand immediate investigation. We wanted to know in what lines of work there seems to be a lack of common knowledge. The survey and short course seem to open the best opportunity to ascertain these facts. We hope thereby to unite the prune growers, that they may give each other the benefit of their experience in solving some of their problems. To this end we are asking some of the growers in different parts of the state who have had particular success in one or another phase of the business to give short addresses during this winter course, in addition to our own speakers from the college faculty."

The survey, though covering the orchards of but 700 of the growers of the state out of a thousand or more, gives sufficient background for comparison of methods and results. The college experts have had opportunity to study prune growing as regards the different soils, elevations, and exposures. The adaptability of certain varieties to different exposures and locations has been made a special study, as well as the methods of orchard tillage, pruning, spraying, and handling the crop in different orchards.

The handling of the green prune, as well as the methods employed in handling the dried article will be taken up in detail in the short course, with the various systems used such as steam dryers and funnel dryers. The processing and marketing of the product will also be made a part of the course.

Besides visiting the orchards, the inspectors have been studying the evaporating plants and the principal processing concerns of the Northwest, and thus will be in a position to give definite information in the short course on the different methods used and the construction most favored. The special effort has been to determine the successes and failures in prune growing, and the reasons. Factors found to be of importance were not only the methods of managing the prune orchards, but the relation of the acreage to the building and management of the evaporators, and the other lines of agriculture used in combination with the prune growing

Next Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Oregon City high school football team will play the Gresham high school eleven on the Gresham Fair grounds. An admission fee of 15 cents will be charged the pupils of the public school. Others will be charged 25 cents. Come and help the boys out financially as well as cheer them with your presence. Russell Pugh is manager and Harold Kern, captain. The line-up is practically as follows:
