SHATTUCK & LINDSEY

Gresham's Big Department Store on Main Street.

A Good Proposition but Poor Argument

Let us take the most charitable view of Mr. Darnall's comparison of Lent's prices and Gresham prices. He finds a great difference, of course, in favor of Lent's. Either he didn't know any better or he was just trying to emphasize his point by an illustration considerably overdrawn, so overdrawn, in fact, that it appeared ridiculous and really detracted from his argument.

We are inclined to think Mr. Darnall didn't know much about the prices in Gresham not having traded much here.

His proposition was a good and legitimate one, namely, that Lent's was a good place to trade. That may be true. But why was it necessary to belittle and malign another place, that has very little in common with Lent's, in order to support his proposition? Honest comparison in this case wasn't much to the point. It's not likely Lent's people bother much about prices in Gresham or Gresham people about prices in Lent's. Why didn't he show how much lower prices are in Lent's than in Portland?

A few might chuckle over it, but we venture that even Lent's people themselves condemn such unfair and invidious comparisons—because it doesn't really help them.

Gresham has an identity of her own. She can stand on her own footing. She is a stronger community today than localities nearer the great growing city that may eventually absorb us all. Gresham has a large patronizing territory. Every one has much to gain from trying to build up his own community. He doesn't need to tear down any other to do it. It isn't true that Gresham is a less favorable place to trade in either prices or selection, than Lent's. But if it were true, it would pay, every way to be loyal to one's own town and community.

Competition is the life of trade. This old saying is being proven in Gresham right now. When Shattuck & Lindsey put on their big stock and price reducing sale other merchants frowned. We think they are unanimous now in saying that it has enlivened trade in all lines. It is worth something to be a pioneer but it is worth more to not be a back number. People in these days are attracted by the new and novel. Shattuck & Lindsey are to be commended for their forward step. Modern methods, modern goods, modern prices will win and are winning at this store.

City and Country.

There is a prevalent belief that people who live in the country are more healthy than those in the city. This belief is not very well founded, as the report of the Country Life Commission shows. Some diseases are a little more fatal in the city than in the country, but not to the extent that is usually believed. For instance, there is only two-tenths of one per cent, more of typhoid fever in the city than in the country, but there is six-tenths of one per cent. more malaria in the country than in the city. There is a fraction more deaths in the city, but there are five and three-tenths more deaths from measles in the city than in the country. Scarlet fever is considerably worse in the city than in the country, but whooping cough is a little worse in the country. Diphtheria and croup are much more fatal in the city, but influenza is decidedly worse in the country. Epidemic diseases generally are worse in the country, but tuberculosis is far more prevalent and fatal in the city. Cancer is more prevalent in the city, as are also diabetes and meningitis; but general nervous diseases are worse in the country. Diseases of the circulatory system are worse in the city, and so is pneumonia and other respiratory diseases, as well as diarrhoea and enteritis. More infants die in the city, and there are more suicides, but there are more fatal accidents in the country.

Trout for Oregon Streams.

Six hundred and twenty-five thousand black spotted trout are being held at the Bonneville hatchery, all of which will be released in the various waters of the state as soon as the special tanks that are being constructed are completed and the little fish are old enough to take care of themselves. These trout eggs were secured from the Yellowstone country, where they were taken by the government.

This release of trout is especially designated to assist in the re-stocking of several of the streams of the state. Under authority of the State Fish and Game Commission, Warden Finley has been instructed to designate the waters into which the trout will be liberated. Under the state law, any stream may be closed by the commission for a period, for the purpose of re-stocking or protecting fish.

To entail as little hardship as possible upon the anglers of the state, the State Game Warden believes that some of the upper small tributaries of the rivers of the state would be the best grounds for trout. These tributaries will then be closed for two or three years, and at the expiration of that time opened again, when the fishing in the main streams will be unexcelled. It is believed that in that time, the trout will be able to propagate and mature sufficiently to amply re-stock trout will be able to propagate and mature sufficiently to amply restock the main river.

It will be the policy of the warden to make the distribution as wide as possible, closing small tributaries in all parts of the state. A year hence, the same plan will be followed, so that after three years, many new streams will be opened for fishermen every year.

About 75,000 steelhead trout are now being released in the upper tributaries of the Clackamas river. These have been fed by the state for some time, but have been held at the government station at Cazadero. The commission is now getting ready to gather a large number of trout eggs at the coast stations, and up the Mackenzie. This work will be done in the spring.

The first cargo of lumber to be used in the construction of the Panama-Pacific exposition buildings went from an Astoria mill. The Pacific Northwest will probably supply many cargoes for this purpose during the pre-exposition period.

Profits in Poultry Raising

The profits are there, and the profits are great; but to get them you must apply right methods. You cannot learn from a book. Rule-of-thumb methods take time and often end disastrously. The right way is to be guided by poultry experts who have already "made good." That is the kind of instruction the International Correspondence Schools offer in their course of 21 Home Lessons in poultry raising. The course covers everything in poultry raising, from eggs to profits. It doesn't matter how few or how many birds you start with, this is the only true way to do it and make it pay from the word "Go."
 The value of this course to you is beyond estimation. You soon get the price back, and more, in increased profits, and the knowledge that will keep those profits coming your way. Start poultry raising right, this way, then there'll be no failure—no halfway success—but the greatest success. For free descriptive circular, write the
