"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the post office at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

OREGON WANTS PRODUCERS.

February 22 has been set aside as Colonist day for 1912 by Gov. West in his proclamation, he calls special attention to the sort of colonists Oregon needs. He urges people of the state to write back East to their friends and invite those who will help clean up the thousands of acres of timber and sage brush land and assist in making of it the agricultural state it should be.

The governor says the state does not need the city man, subsisting on a daily wage, except as he may follow the institution of the factory, the workshop or the business house. The need of the state is active men with active money and efficient effort.

The colonist period this year is from March 1 to April 15. The success of the colonist day last year was most unexpected. Nearly every commercial organization in the state participated in this most unique advertising campaign and set aside its own special day for observing it. The total number of pieces of mail that went East because of the special efforts made ran up into the millions. The school children and many social organizations volunteered their services in writing letters and mailing literature. The result was probably the biggest short time advertising campaign that any state has known.

The United States department of agriculture offered to detail a thoroughly competent man, to devote all his time to expert assistance in agricultural matters in the various Oregon communities if they would stand one-half the necessary expense. Because of the necessity of taking immediate action, R. B. Miller, traffic manager of the O. W. R. & N. Co., offered to assume the expense and Secretary Wilson has stated that the man detailed to Oregon would begin his work about July 1. This will give Oregon the services of two men doing this kind of work. The O. W. R. & N. Ry. has already had its own expert in the field for several weeks instructing farmers, fruit growers and gardeners in the subjects of crop rotation, stock raising and diversified farming. The work of two such experts, supplemented by the operation of demonstration trains and the efforts of the Oregon Agricultural college, it is asserted will result in great and permanent development of the agricultural interests of the state.

Great events are following one another rapidly in new China. President Yuan cuts off his cue and borrows over three million dollars to start the propaganda of the republican form of government. The most startling announcement of all is that the new premier, Yuan Shi Kai, urges the election of Dr. Sun Yat Sen to the presidency. Steps are being taken to quell the disturbances in Manchuria. The christian calendar has been adopted by the supporters of the new China. After celebrating the Chinese New Years on the day corresponding to our February 17 for 4610 years, they will hereafter observe the occasion with us on January 1.

The mayors of two Clackamas county cities are finding that the course of city government, like the course of true love, does not run smooth. In each of them the trouble is over the marshal.

C. C. Thompson, traveling extension organizer for the Oregon Agricultural College, is now at work in Jackson, Josephine and Douglas school districts in Tillamook, Washington, Marion, Benton and Lincoln counties.

At the Northwestern Mining congress at Spokane Prof. H. M. Parks, head of the school of mines at the Oregon Agricultural College was an Oregon representative appointed by Governor West.

Alfalfa on Coast Soils.

"Alfalfa will grow well on most of the well-drained soils along the coast, particularly the sandy-loam soils," says Dr. James Withycombe, director of the experiment station of the Oregon Agricultural College in replying to a recent inquiry from Eugene asking whether alfalfa will grow on the bottom ground along streams of the coast range mountains where soil conditions are the same as on Lower Sluaw river, Lake Creek, Dead Wood, Ten Mile, and Yaquina.

"The great trouble is that it comes at a time when it is ready for hay before the season is favorable for cutting," Dr. Withycombe continues. "Again, in the coast region it is somewhat dangerous to feed alfalfa green on account of so much moisture. I think clover would be the better forage crop, for pasture and hay, in this section. Alfalfa would be excellent in this section for a soiling crop, cutting it and, after it has slightly wilted, feeding it to the cows. It will furnish green succulent feed from May until November."

In response to further query as to the advisability of keeping the cows in a lot and feeding them kale and mangles when there is plenty of good pasture, Mr. Withycombe says "where one has plenty of available pasture, soiling would not pay; but where pasture is limited and land values high, soiling certainly pays. Even where the pasture is fairly good it will pay to establish a partial soiling system, feeding some green cut clover or alfalfa night and morning as a supplement to the pasture."

Being asked if it would pay to put a shovelful of manure in each hill in the cornfield at seeding time when the land is run down, he replies, "The better plan in growing corn is to put on ten or twenty loads of barnyard manure to the acre and plow it under. It is not a good plan to apply the fertilizer directly to the hill, as the roots of the plant occupy the whole surface of the ground."

The state-wide movement to interest pupils of the public schools in gardening and poultry raising is to receive the support and encouragement of the leading officials of the Portland school system and of thirty-five principals of city schools. In addition, President Kerr, of the Oregon Agricultural College, has pledged the support of that institution. It will have bulletins distributed to the principals, teachers and pupils of the schools. Officials of the local Y. M. C. A. reported that last season more than 300 gardens were planted by the school children of Portland, most of them in the back yards of the thickly settled sections of the city. The interest in the movement this year will result in a great increase over the number of gardens planted in 1911.

MEMORIES.

Oh! just to be a child again,
 As once I used to be,
 Just to hear a mother's voice,
 Just to play around her knee.

Just to lay my head once more,
 Upon her loving breast,
 Oh! for those days to come again
 Where all was peace and rest.

I think of all the years that's passed
 When a child I used to play.
 Happy then from morn to night
 In an innocent careless way.

I see a dear old homestead yet,
 As I think of days gone by,
 I see the cattle coming home,
 The fields and waving rye.

How blue the distant hills appear
 As in memory I see them still,
 I gaze on in a fancy way
 Let my thoughts go where they will.

A dear old fire place I can see,
 And a figure bent and old,
 How my childish heart would thrill
 At some story my mother told.

But alas! those days have vanished
 The old home far away,
 Is but a memory to me now,
 But with me it will stay.

But oh! to be a child again
 Just for a little while,
 To see again that dear old home
 And my mother's face and smile.
 DESA HOWARD.

"You know Jones, who was reputed so rich? Well, he died the other day, and the only thing he left was an old Dutch clock."
 "Well, there's one good thing about it; it won't take long to wind up his estate."

A large appropriation by the United States government for the construction and maintenance of roads in Crater Lake National Park has been recommended by Major M. Row, of the corps of Army Engineers who has recently made an extended survey of that region. He states that the park contains a large amount of ripe timber, the sale of which would go far toward supplying the funds necessary for the improvements recommended, but he also insists that it will be necessary to do much of the road work before this timber can be made accessible.

LET US RAISE YOUR SALARY

Every man takes two steps that have, perhaps, greater bearing on his life than any others he may take from childhood to old age. The first is when he decides on what vocation he is going to follow. That is a very important step, but, it is not even half so important as the step he takes when he decides HOW he is going to prepare himself to follow that vocation.

If you want to be SUCCESSFUL in any line, THOROUGH PREPARATION is ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY. There is no better way to prepare for success than by taking a course in the INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS. The history of our students is a history of success. We can furnish you with recommendations from thousands of students and from numerous of the leading educators of this country that prove conclusively that we can do all we claim, and more. If you have ambition and desire to better your condition, write for information and literature on any course you may be interested in.
