FLOOD OF COLONISTS

Two thousand three hundred and forty cars of immigrant goods, representing the personal effects of 11,720 colonists, were handled through the Twin City transfer between St. Paul and Minneapolis during March by the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Soo Line.

These people were ticketed for western Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, and western Canada. The first four days of April showed a greater average per day in the people still moving than any day during March. The reduced passenger and freight rates under which the colonists are moving continue until April 15 and officials of the railroads expect almost as many people to pass through St. Paul and Minneapolis during the next two weeks as during the month of March.

The moveables are coming from all sections of the United States. It is a significant thing that the trains of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads which start from St. Paul show the greatest increase in the number of colonists carried. The trains from Chicago do not show such an increase. This indicates that people from the middle west are the ones who are moving and not the "down easters."

The movement of colonists is said by railroad officials to be greater than ever this year due to the northwestern states obtaining publicity throughout the country and particularly to the efforts being made by these states to show the farmers of the middlewest just exactly what the American northwest can produce.

At the offices of the Northwest Development League it is said that there are more Commercial clubs and business organizations doing active and intelligent work to secure settlers than ever before. It is said that more than 6000 cars of immigrant goods will go into the American Northwest during 1912. "If any state is not securing its share it is the fault of the Commercial organizations of that state. We can increase the aggregate number of people going into the Northwest and the states must work to increase the percentage of the immigrants which they are receiving," was the comment of an officer of the Development League.

Jas. C. Hayes for Coroner

Demands a Public Morgue

The strongest antagonism that has been brought to bear against Dr. James C. Hayes, Republican candidate for coroner, originated among the undertakers. The reason is apparent. Dr. Hayes believes in the establishment of a public morgue, while they believe in allowing the undertakers to dictate, how dead bodies shall be taken care of.

Ben Selling

Republican Candidate for U. S. Senate

1. Always a firm believer in Statement No. 1, and not in conventions, assemblies or boss rule. Gave his time and money to elect Statement No. 1 men at the last two state elections.
2. He will live in Oregon and the working man can call a see him at any time. Does not believe in a Senator living in Washington so that only the rich can see him by paying the expenses of going there.
3. Is a business man, a large tax payer of Oregon and has the Oregon peoples' interests at heart.

CONDEMNS ORCHARDS

[Special Correspondence.]
TROUTDALE, April 6.—S. J. Stansberry, county fruit inspector, has been looking over some of the orchards in this locality lately. He went over the orchard on the Douglass farm carefully and found it in a bad condition, once the pride of the neighborhood. This orchard has been neglected so much in the last few years since it has been rented that the trees are badly diseased. The late James H. Douglass was developing this orchard into one of the best, and, a few years ago the fruit was the very best. The cherries, especially were known at the canneries to be the largest, sweetest and best flavored of any brought in.

Mr. Stansberry pronounced the varieties of apples, pears and cherries very good, and says that by careful attention the former quality can be restored. This location is very favorable for fruit raising and one of the advantages is that the heavy sleet storms do not injure the trees here as much as other places.

When asked about irrigating the orchards, Mr. Stansberry said that for soil as moist as this, it was of no value and made the fruit spoil more rapidly, there being more water in the fruit than necessary. He also stated that this beaver dam soil was so rich that it need no mulching.

Anthracnose, or commonly known as dead spots,—San Jose scale, and bark lice are the most common diseases in Eastern Multnomah county and should be vigorously fought. For early spring spraying for fungus scale and scab, a solution of one gallon of sulphur and lime to eight gallons of water should be used. The lime is needed in this preparation only to dissolve the sulphur properly. When the blossoms are falling, arsenate of lead should be used; three pounds to fifty gallons of water, for codling moth. This solution need not be as strong for young trees.

Mr. Stansberry ordered several of the trees to be cut down and careful spraying and pruning for the remaining trees, and hopes this orchard will be an example for other fruit growers as he intends to make another trip soon to see the trees in other orchards. This is the first time he has called on this part of the county.

A Woman's Education.

A woman may have a beautiful diploma hanging on the wall and still not have a good education unless: She knows how to—
Cook and bake.
Sew and mend neatly.
Care for the sick.
Be pleasant in the home.
Keep from gossiping.
Keep a secret.
Keep the home neat.
Take good care of her health.
Respect the aged.
Be neat in dress.
Be economical.

A National Duty.

The federal government has a duty and a solemn duty to perform, and that is, to strengthen and support the laws of the various states as they may have enacted them. If we regard it as a crime to sell liquor in territory which has been made dry by any enactment, either state or municipal, then, in my opinion, the United States government is an accessory to that crime when it permits the shipment of liquor into that territory. We must not be stopped by any technicality, and the United States government must put its power and force and the vitality of its government into the laws of the several states that have made their territory dry.—Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee.

A Great Temperance Victory.

To prohibit the manufacture of liquor is constitutional in Tennessee. This is the decision that was handed down by the supreme court of that state a few days ago—a decision that will take its place as among the most important affecting temperance legislation. The ease itself that brought about the decision is one that has attracted considerable attention, as it is the outcome of the fight between Prohibitionists and those opposed to Prohibition in which Senator E. W. Carmack was slain. Under the affirmation of the verdict of the lower court, Motlow, a man of great wealth, is sentenced to pay a fine and serve six months in the Moore county workhouse. Motlow averred that he had the right to make whisky in Tennessee to be shipped into other states. The case will now go to the United States Supreme court.

Hon. Champ Clark's Testimony.

When the speaker of the national House of Representatives was asked if he regarded the saloon a fit place for a young man to frequent, he replied:

"Not if he is ambitious to lead a clean, successful life. If he wishes to excel in crime, rob his mental and physical powers, consort with thugs, blacklegs, prostitutes, and thieves; be a disgrace to his family and a stench to his own nostrils, why, I'd advise him to frequent the saloon. He can learn to be all that in any liquor saloon. In fact, he can take a postgraduate course without leaving the premises. The saloon is bad mainly because of what it sells. But it is also bad because the selling of liquor always somehow creates in the premises where it is sold a most unhealthy atmosphere. One of the worst phases of the saloon life is the treating system. I have seen a half-dozen choice American citizens, leaders in their line of work line up in front of a bar, and in less than thirty minutes come out incoherent, jabbering idiots."
