"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.
Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 2, 1911, at the post office at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Good for Cherryville!

A Commercial organization is a good thermometer registering the enterprise of a community. Cherryville is not to be behind the times and the following comment on the new organization is taken from a Portland daily. Cherryville, Clackamas county, is the latest addition to the organization of commercial clubs of Oregon, known as the Oregon Development League. A. B. Brooke, secretary of the Cherryville Commercial club, sent to this office of the league in Portland, dues for the first year and an application for a membership certificate and a supply of Development League stationery, into which he desires to have inserted as quickly as possible some of the facts and figures about the prosperity of Clackamas county in general and Cherryville in particular. The first announcement of the intention to organize such a club was received in July. The short time that intervened between this announcement and the news of the organization for membership in the Oregon Development League, led by C. C. Chapman, secretary of the league, to feel that, though young, the new club was not in any wise lacking in enthusiasm.

Thinks Law Has Spasm.

M. O. Nelson comes right out in a letter in the Oregonian and tells what he thinks of the Portland city government and especially of the police and judicial department. He says some very pertinent things. The Oregonian evidently doesn't sympathize with him much but intimates that he and others had fair warning.

Mr. Nelson counts, himself fortunate he did not get a double dose of fine—for inadvertently he put on his hat before leaving the court room and was reprimanded by an officer. He was in contempt of court but escaped a fine that time.

The Outlook sympathizes with Mr. Nelson. Everybody knows he is the last man to want to overstep the requirements of the law. His "little farm wagon" probably is not very speedy, anyway, but while he pays the fine doubtless all others, some may be not so able to pay as he, will profit by his experience.

An ordinary case of diarrhoea can, as a rule, be cured by a single dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This remedy has no superior for bowel complaints. For sale by Gresham Drug Co., and all Druggists.

O. A. C. Known Far and Wide.

In the new alumni directory for which material is now being gathered at the Oregon Agricultural college there will be recorded an impressive array of appointments to positions of trust and importance not only in Oregon and the great Northwest, but throughout the United States and in a number of far distant lands. From Schenectady, N. Y., to Zambonga, P. I., and from Boise, Idaho, to Korea and to Lucknow, India, young men and women from the college are spreading the gospel of the new citizenship which looks not alone to the advancement of the individual, but to the welfare of the community and the health and prosperity of future generations.

The Soils of Oregon.

"The Soils of Oregon" is the title of a new bulletin No. 112, by Prof. C. E. Bradley of the department of chemistry of the Oregon Agricultural College, which has just appeared from the college press, for free distribution throughout the state. It contains the results of some years of work by the college chemists on Oregon soils, including analysis of representative soils in different parts of the state.

Owing to the fact that our agricultural lands are settling up rapidly with people from other parts of the country who are naturally unfamiliar with conditions and desire assistance in the selection of farms, says Prof. Bradley, a great demand is coming to the experiment station for information as to the adaptability and comparative value of our soils. It is hoped that the present bulletin will serve, in a measure, to give information meeting these demands.

It is planned to present the chemical work of this bulletin under two heads, Part 1 dealing with the more practical side of the question and containing the results of analysis of various types, arranged according to counties, and Part 2, embodying the results of the more technical investigations on this subject.

Successful Publicity.

The failure to give such publicity to the meetings held under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union as will insure representative audiences says Ada Wallace Unruh, in the White Ribbon Review, neither adds dignity to our work nor brings results to the cause for which we stand. The number of fine addresses made by our speakers to well high empty benches, the wasted effort of the hard-worked and consecrated women in fruitless endeavor solely because those who should have planned carefully for the speaker's coming have failed to do so, should bid us pause and study carefully the methods by which audiences can be secured. That they can be secured in any community if business methods are used, even for a temperance address, the writer is fully persuaded. The best speaker will fail to accomplish results for us if the preliminary work has not been carefully done in advance of her coming.

The Trials of a Traveler.

"I am a traveling salesman," writes E. E. Youngs, E. Berkshire, Vt., "and was often troubled with constipation and indigestion till I began to use Dr. King's New Life Pills, which I have found an excellent remedy." For all stomach, liver or kidney troubles there is nothing better. Only 25c at all Druggists.

"GRADUATED HUMBUG," REMARKS MR. BOND

GRESHAM, Aug. 5.—Editor Outlook:—Will you kindly allow me space in the Outlook to make a few observations on a letter written by Alfred D. Cridge, appearing in your paper of a recent date, on the subject of Taxation.

I will open by emphasizing a basic fact that when either improvements or personal property are exempted in part or in whole from taxation, the burden of raising revenue by tax will inevitably rest upon real estate. No amount of sophistry or "bugger mugger" can possibly evade this fact.

Mr. Cridge attempts to soothe the small home owner and farmer when his holdings do not exceed $10,000, with the idea that by the single taxer's graduated scheme they would only have to pay the "regular levy" resulting in a reduction from one-third to three-fourths. He has not got it figured out exactly yet, nor ever will. For it would require a computation that no man can accomplish with the data at hand or if at hand at all, is assumed data which is about as reliable as the man who sought to find the weight of his hog by placing it on one end of a teeter board and stones on the other until they balanced, then guess the weight of the stones. But should the data ever be obtainable, the result would doubtless show an excess far greater than the one-third or three-fourths reduction promised. Then the "regular levy" would look very irregular in the eyes of the small home owner who fancies himself safe on the sunny side of the $10,000 immunity line.

Single tax either graduated or ungraduated is a graduated humbug, for when you exclude taxation from all other sources of revenue but land there will surely be a deficit which can only be recouped by an increased levy all along the line.

It is held by some, that large land holders—holding land for speculation—under single tax would be compelled to either sell or improve their holdings. The present tax laws require the assessors to give the proper valuation on all property.

Is there any assurance that assessors under single tax would be more efficient? Delinquency or fealty in office is no more an attribute of officialdom under one system than another.

We may well look askance at this misleading propaganda when we consider the subtle methods employed, by which its promoters secured the constitutional amendment two years ago, by which the single tax proposition is now enabled to be brought to an issue.

The words, Single Tax, were studiously avoided, so also other words implying the same. I seriously doubt if half the voters voting affirmatively on that amendment remotely thought of the issue its promoters intended to bring out of it. But now, that we are up against it, it behooves us to meet it with our votes next November. Also any and all other measures emanating from the eminent solon at Oregon City.

But if we can frustrate the future we may extenuate the past. For the ox knoweth his owner and the ass his master's crib at Philadelphia.

W. H. BOND.

Green Tomato Mince Meat.
The following recipe was furnished by a reader of the Outlook, and is warranted to make the best winter pies ever.

Two gallons green tomatoes, sliced and chopped fine, pour water over them and let drain. Add two quarts of chopped apples, 2 pounds of raisins, 1 tablespoon each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice, and salt, and 3 pounds of sugar. Cook half an hour and seal tight.

Opinions of Prominent People.
I am in favor of woman suffrage.—Phillips Brooks.
In the progress of civilization, woman suffrage must come.—Charles Sumner.
With all my head and all my heart, I believe in woman suffrage.—Elizabeth Stewart Phelps.
Woman suffrage is undoubtedly coming, and I, for one, expect a great deal of good to result from it.—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.
I am for unqualified woman suffrage as a matter of human justice.—Samuel Gompers.

A few days ago there was a frightful wreck upon the Lackawanna railroad, near the city of Corning in southern New York, resulting in the death of more than forty people and the wounding of a large number of others. According to testimony given in the investigation, the engineer who made the fatal mistake had been seen in a state of intoxication, but a little time before he mounted his locomotive. If the dispatches be correct, he admits that he has been in the habit of indulging in intoxicating liquors.

The Farm Builders.

The colt, the calf, the pig and the lamb are essentially the farm builders, just as the chicken is the supporter of the home. Growing stock constantly and rapidly increases in value, and this increase can be greatly added to by extra feed and care. The progressive farmer takes delight in using fertilizers to increase the yield of his crop. Extra feed for the young stock sustains the same relation to the farmer's profits and it is much more pronounced and certain, is more easily seen and may be more definitely measured. Therefore, keep these young animals doing their best, always ready for market, so that the most profitable prices may be availed of at any time, but so long as they are growing and their value is increasing they are better than money at interest, and should be held for their growth.—Up-to-Date Farming.
