CROP SURVEY OF COUNTIES

tivity to be noted in the hay-baling industry than has ever been noticed before.

Now that green feed is almost gone and the pastures are drying up the necessity for feeding hay and mill feed is once more beginning to be felt. With the dairymen it means greater cost to produce milk, but the prices of milk and butter fat have begun to advance a little with a prospect of a further increase as the season advances.

The milk trains over the O.W. P. and two routes, delivered by auto truck and wagon, are beginning to show a decrease in the quantity of milk handled; and as the milk decreases the prices must advance.

A very large acreage of kale is noted wherever cows are kept. This plant is one easily grown and it is a milk producer. Fields of 4 or 5 acres are not uncommon and smaller fields are numerous. Since the advent of kale for dairy cows it is noticeable that a former favorite is being neglected. Carrots make a good cow ration but require a great deal more work than kale to produce like results. Hence it is kale now instead of carrots.

Potatoes, however, is the great standard crop of Eastern Multnomah. Their fame has gone all over the country. This year's production promises to exceed all other years in quantity and the quality was never better. High prices last spring, running up to more than two dollars a sack, induced a larger acreage than ever before and next winter even poor people will be able to eat potatoes. Prices have tumbled until now a good sack of Burbanks can be bought for 40 cents. And the price this year is not going to such a high figure as it did last. Potato crops are good elsewhere and there will not be the demand for the heaviest crop grown, and shrewd calculators say they will not reach the dollar mark. If they are too cheap to ship away they can be fed out and more of the hay can be saved and shipped away. In that way the law of compensations will even up things somewhat and next year maybe conditions will be different.

Probably the increased acreage of potatoes is represented in the new land cleared last winter and put in cultivation this spring for the first time. Conservative estimates fix the amount of reclaimed land at near 1000 acres. Such land is nearly always put into potatoes for a first crop as a means of subduing the soil and that thousand acres just about means the surplus crop of tubers for this year.

Fruit prospects last spring started out very promising, and the prospects remained good as far as small fruits were concerned, but larger fruits suffered somewhat from cold rains in April and all yields will be short west of the Sandy river. East of the Sandy and in Eastern Clackamas the prospects are better and there will be good crops of all kinds.

About 200 acres of new trees were set out in the Sandy district last winter and a good yield there this year will mean an increased acreage in staple fruits, as it has already been demonstrated that Eastern Clackamas can raise just as good apples as any other section of the state.

LARGE PLANS-- FARMERS' SOCIETY

farmers' and producer's organization in the country, to meet and devise ways and means for federating all such associations under one system whereby the marketing and distributing of farm products may be conducted without the employment of so many middlemen and the wasteful practice of shipping goods to markets already glutted and leaving unsupplied so many people who would gladly pay a reasonable price for these products. The purpose is, to furnish food stuffs to the consumer at reasonable prices and also to give to the producer a reasonable price for his products.

A national organization of this character is the only organization that can successfully cope with present conditions and solve the problems which confront both producer and consumer. Whether it shall be the Farmers' Society of Equity or some other name matters not so very much, but come it must, and come it will. Some say "it can't be done." Others say, "There's nothing impossible under the sun."
