"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.
Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the post office at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Estacada Goes "Dry"

The case of the Estacada saloon men, which has been before the Oregon City court for some months, has been decided against the saloons. It is held by Judge Campbell that the local option law supercedes any provision in the previously enacted city charter of Estacada, and that the city council cannot grant a license in a precinct that has voted dry. This decision is said to be a surprise to the city council and to the saloonmen and puts the city in financial straits on account of having to refund the license money.

"Done Freed de Mules!"

The story is told of a ducky who about 25 years ago came up to Boston, where the first electric car line had recently been put in operation and exclaimed, on seeing a horseless car: "Lawdy massa!! What folks dese yanks be! They freed de darkeys and now dey done freed de mules!"

In Washington, D. C., was held last week the first annual Motor Truck parade. More than 300 motor vehicles were in line and many were elaborately decorated. Two of the most novel entries in the long line of machines were those of the Rosslyn Supply company and the army aviation school. The former consisted of a large motor car drawing in its wake a heavy tractor loaded with a pair of sleepy looking mules, and behind the tractor the wagon to which the animals are attached when not so fortunate as to be participants in an automobile parade. Placarded on the tractor was a sign which caught the eye of practically every spectator and brought smiles to faces. The mules' soliloquy was, "We have lost our job." The aviation exhibit was composed of a large truck from the quartermaster's department, in which rode a number of khaki-clad soldiers, while to the rear of the machine was attached one of the broad-planned airships in which Uncle Sam's fliers make daily flights at College Park.—Congressman Lafferty was one of the judges.

Journalism Will Benefit

Journalism, which is the catalogue word for what the newspaper men usually prefer to call "newspaper work," is among the subjects taught when the University of Oregon opens its doors in Eugene September 17.

The newspaper is the last of the great public institutions and professions to gain official recognition from the universities of the country, but faculties all over the United States have awakened to its surpassing importance in a democratic society, and the training of newspaper men has become an important duty in many of the best colleges. The universities were conservative about entering a new field, but the two great middle western state institutions of Wisconsin and Missouri went ahead and established schools of journalism: It was not until practical editors, sceptical at first, began to admit that the training brought excellent results, that the movement spread rapidly.

The work at Oregon has been placed in charge of Eric W. Allen recently northwest editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. He was selected because he combined experience of both the metropolitan and country press with adequate university training and a successful record as a teacher. He has never been far from the smell of printers' ink since his boyhood.

Mr. Allen's idea is to keep the work in close touch with the practical newspaper men of the state, and he has already arranged with many of them to address his classes later in the year. Journalism is a subject on which there are as yet virtually no textbooks. The best newspapers of the country will be studied in the class room, and all the newspapers of Oregon will be in daily use. The students will get practical training on the many publications issued at the University, and will be encouraged to offer their work to the outside press.

Thanks for Correspondence

One more name, Springdale, is added this week to the list of correspondents. We want every community represented. We greatly appreciate the regular work being done by our correspondents and are sure that it will be of mutual benefit to the communities so represented and to the Outlook.

The forty-sixth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic has been in session this week at Los Angeles. Hoary fighting men from every state north of the Mason and Dixon line, with their wives, daughters and grandchildren, thronged the streets and the honored veterans formed the centers of interested groups of spectators and listeners. Monday was Pasadena day and more than 2,000 pies were received and distributed among the veterans.

Should Not Export Grain.

That Oregon is making a great mistake in exporting its grain instead of feeding it to livestock, is the belief of Dr. James Withycombe, director of the experiment station at the Oregon Agricultural College, expressed strongly in a recent address before the Portland Advertising club.

He pointed out the fact that there are ten million acres of dairy land in Oregon, and that two acres can support a cow. Thus five million cows, each worth a $100 profit annually, or five hundred million dollars together in profit each year to the state, could be fed on this land.

By feeding the grain instead of exporting it, Dr. Withycombe estimates that the farmer would get 50 cents more a bushel, or, on a crop of fifteen million bushels for the state, $7,500,000. The export of $101,000,000 worth of dairy produce, bacon and eggs from Denmark which supports a population of 2,600,000, under trying climatic conditions, proves conclusively what can be done under right management. Oregon, with its fine climate and rich variety of soils should be able to do even better.

The Outlook office is prepared to furnish school report cards with envelopes, neatly printed, one of the most compact and serviceable forms ever gotten up. The price is very reasonable. Send for sample and prices in any amounts desired. Phone 701.

Fine New Books Reviewed

Miss Halle reports that the library attendance and circulation is rapidly increasing, the return of many patrons from their vacations making quite a difference. New books are being added and the reading room is becoming a popular place. Miss Halle give a few outline of good books.

LOUISA MAY ALCOOT, by Belle Moses. This very readable biography brings out admirably the best qualities in the life and work of Miss Alcott, and will be a source of inspiration and enjoyment to both young and old. The beauty of her portrait is remarkable.

LETTERS of Robt. Louis Stevenson, edited by Sidney Calvin. These four volumes constitute a definitive edition of the correspondence. In 1895 the "Vailima letters" were published in 1899 "Letters to his family and friends" were issued. Here the two series are united for the first time and set in chronological order. Also a hundred and fifty new letters have been discovered and are printed in their proper places. This gives a comprehensive view of Stevenson's life and interests.

TOLSTOY, by Edw. Alfred Steiner. Tolstoy is described not as the old, decrepit man, but the real Tolstoy that lives in the minds and hearts of his friends and followers. The book is well worked out, gives a distinct picture of Tolstoy the thinker. It is a very sympathetic interpretation from the American standpoint of view of the great Russian prophet of social progress.

Chas. Dickens and his girl heroines, by Belle Moses. Each heroine is a distinct creation. How she grew under the author's touch, how he sends her out into the complexity of his story schemes as a human being is shown with deep appreciation for his peculiar quality of genius.

Russellville

The Russellville school opened Sept. 3rd with moderate attendance. This is two weeks earlier than the school opened last year.

H. A. Lewis and his two sons, Clayton and Dee spent a pleasant vacation hunting deer in the mountains. Dee claims with pride that he shot the first and largest buck. They had a genuine out-of-door call of the wild time and got three deer.

Mrs. W. H. Addis is just out of hospital after two weeks serious illness. She is rapidly regaining her strength.

The Mickelson boys, John and Clarence, Henry Matson, Arthur Hager and Fred Miller have returned from their summer outing in Douglas county. They saw much good country and heard a great deal about the Southern Pacific railroad company land grant. They have about concluded that they would like some of it, and that if the Graduate Specific tax bill passes they will have a chance to get some of it.

Julia and Mabel Mickelson spent their vacation at Gearhart Park by the sea. The weather here has been so much like seaside weather that it was scarce to be called an outing except for the change of scenes, and the relaxation from the every day duties of life.

W. E. and Leander Lewis are on an extended tour in Texas and California.

The second crop of blackberries are ripening now, and a spell of warm sunny weather will bring them on fast.

Mrs. Mary Jergensen is in very feeble health and Chris finds the usual work on the farm and the care of two small boys quite a chore.

T. D. Pollock has ripe strawberries of fine quality and flavor.
