"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham, Oregon.
Official paper of the Town of Fairview, Oregon.

Entered as second-class matter March 2, 1911, at the post office at Gresham, Oregon, under the act of March 3, 1879.

NEED OF FORETHOUGHT.

Even a child's life is priceless. Its preservation requires on the part of parent or guardian the utmost forethought and care.

The burning to death of a three-year old child at Lents last Saturday morning should be a warning lesson to those parents who are so thoughtless as to run such fearful risks. The explanation of most such accidents is "I didn't think," but that is not a reasonable excuse nor does it free from responsibility. Regrets will not atone for lack of forethought.

A mother left her home to make a purchase at a nearby store. A three-year old tot was left asleep in the house. The doors were carefully locked. In the mother's absence the house took fire and was soon a mass of flames. The frantic efforts of neighbors did not avail to rescue the child. There were indications that the child had tried to reach a window.

The child's name was Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Mace.

Well, well, Woodland, Washington, has an apple tree in full blossom! Couldn't some one get an apple tree to blossom here during fair time?

L. R. Alderman, state superintendent of Public Instruction, has a project under way that ought to prove helpful. He proposes to make the school houses the social centers of the various communities of the state by giving an extended lecture course during the winter months. These talks will be by well informed speakers, who will discuss subjects of common interest.

B. Lee Paget, Prohibition candidate for United States senator was in town last evening meeting old acquaintances and forming new ones. He had been announced to speak on the street, but of course, in view of the party he represents, it rained! Mr. Paget has extended his whirlwind campaign well over the state. He is a well known business man and banker of the Oregon metropolis and thinks that the splitting up of the votes in old parties ought to make his chances very good. No safer, better man could be sent to the senate from Oregon.

The Vale Enterprise has a good idea of what a Commercial club is and has the following to say: "A great many of our citizens are inclined to overlook the good that is accomplished by the Commercial club. The people of Vale are not alone in this, as it is the same, practically, all over the country. The Commercial club shoulders all the trouble and expense of advertising our community, and trusts to the people to repay them. They spend many nights in figuring on something to help the town, and the people, who are to reap the benefit, sleep peacefully. They give a good part of their time and often spend some expense money, and the people do not compensate them in any way. The officers never stand back from the work simply because there is no payroll in connection with their office. The small growing town is the one that needs a Commercial club and a town never amounts to shucks unless it has one."

"Women when enfranchised are practically non-partisan. They know the art of scratching their tickets; they are exceedingly proficient in picking out fellows who are no good."

W. C. T. U. Notes

A Letter to the Boys.

There are some of you boys around town who seem to enjoy inhaling the fumes of a cigarette. Gresham has a class of the best business men in any town the same size in Oregon. They might see you smoking and not say anything to you about it, but nevertheless they notice and it has its effect though it might not be perceptible to you. Now boys, the people saw that it was not good for you to use cigarettes and made laws against minors smoking. Now I just warn you a little, for this law is still in effect and if you are not careful it is liable to relieve you of some of that money you have been saving up for those things you were going to get and in order that you may not have any fear of being pinched, just take the advice of your parents, who desire the best there is for you.

A FRIEND OF THE BOYS.

A Boquet for Kansas.

Kansas has been criticised in many quarters, but there are some facts very much in her favor.

There are over 500,000 boys in Kansas, over school age, who have never seen a saloon.

There are 91 counties without an inmate in their jails, 17 counties without jails and 87 counties that last year did not send an inmate to the insane asylum.

Kansas has 900 newspapers that will not take a liquor advertisement.

The farmers of the state of Kansas, own 10,000 automobiles, and the state is the second richest in the Union.—Mankato, (Minn.) Journal.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Sept. 25—To make dryness doubly dry, the faculty of the State University has assumed control over the actions of the students not only while they are in Eugene, where no liquor can be sold, but even when they leave the college town for other cities. A drastic rule has been passed under which drinking in any saloon makes a student subject to dismissal.

No improprieties had been reported, but it was thought best to go on record at once, and let the students know what to expect. The faculty feels that this extension of authority is justified by the fact that many of the students are under age, and are entrusted to the University by their parents, and that it will be sustained by the public sentiment of Oregon.

In Eugene the anti-liquor law has been enforced for six years.
